WILL MASON AGAIN HEAD POLICE BOARD BY A SPECIAL ACT?

Failure of New Charter Means That Dominant Figure in Police Board Will Be Ineligible for Re-Election

FRIENDS ALREADY BUSY TO REPEAL ORDINANCE

They Will Endeavor to Adopt Ordinance, Making It Possible for Him to Be Chosen, Mason Noncommittal

The term of Carlos H. Mason, chairman of the board of police commissioners, expires on the first Monday in March of next year, and under the present law he is not eligible for re-election.

Had the proposed new charter passed at last Wednesday's election, a board of public safety, an entirely new board, would have taken the place of the police board on the first of new year, and Mr. Mason would have been eligible, and undoubtedly would have been elected to the new board.

Now, however, Mr. Mason cannot be elected to the board of which he has been the dominant figure for the past five years, unless council passes an ordinance allowing members of the police board to serve for three consecutive terms.

When Mr. Mason completed his first three-year term there was in force a law limiting the service on the members of the board to one term.

At that time the limit was imposed by the city charter. Mr. Mason's friends got to work, with the result that they passed a charter amendment through the state legislature, allowing council to fix the length of service of police board members, and then they passed an ordinance through council in order that he could take his seat again.

Mr. Mason's friends are on the job again, and there is considerable talk of increasing again the time limit. There is said to be little doubt that the required ordinance will not only be introduced, but that it will pass, if Mr. Mason wants the job again.

The police board head will not commit himself at present.

"I have heard," said Mr. Mason, when questioned about the matter, "that some of my friends have been talking about introducing an ordinance in council to increase the number of terms that a police commissioner can serve, but I haven't thought much about the matter nor discussed it.

"I have been on the board for six years now, serving five of those years as chairman. The work has been hard and trying and has taken a great deal of my time. I appreciate the action of the board in making me chairman so many times, and the action of the council three years ago in wanting me to serve a second term. The fact that my friends want me to hold the position still another term is very gratifying also, but I feel that, after six years of service, I deserve a rest."

Should an ordinance increasing the number of terms to be served by police commissioners be passed, it is probable that it would be vetoed by Mayor James G. Woodward, but council has a number of times overriden the mayor's veto.

The complexion of the police board may change considerably at the reorganization in March. With the chairman's, the terms of four other commissioners—A. R. King, of the Ninth ward; R. C. Clarke, of the Eighth ward; George E. Johnson, of the Sixth ward, and J. N. McEachern, of the Seventh ward—expire then.

Messrs. Clarke and King will be candidates for re-election.

If the law is not again changed so Chairman Mason can succeed himself, Mr. McEachern will not be eligible for another term, as he has served six years. Mr. Johnson is said to have other political aspirations, which will result in his not standing for re-election.

As a result, it is probable that there will be at least three new members of the board next year, and the dominant faction may be without its leader.

M'NAUGHTON'S DEATH SENTENCE COMMUTED TO PRISON FOR LIFE

State's Executive in Proclamation Extending Clemency States His Belief in Physician's Guilt

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE RESPONSIBLE FOR DECISION

Convicted of Slaying Fred Flanders—Dr. McNaughton's Execution Has Been Stayed for Years

M'NAUGHTON SAYS HE'S DISAPPOINTED

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 27.—"I am extremely disappointed," said Dr. McNaughton, when told of the governor's decision.

"I had confidently expected a complete pardon.

"I feel no resentment or bitterness towards those who are responsible for my condition, and have persecuted, rather than prosecuted me.

"I will begin my sentence without a word of reproach, for I have long since reached the point where man's worst has no fears.

"When I go to a final judgment before my Lord and Master, I know He will clear me, and He is the only one I have ever feared."

Except the prisoner himself, probably the most disappointed man in Savannah at the outcome of the McNaughton case, is Rev. John S. Wilder.

Mr. Wilder did not pretend to disguise his feelings at the report from Atlanta. He said he had been much disappointed that Governor Slaton had permitted to be influenced by the enemies of Dr. McNaughton.

"We shall hear a great deal of this case all over the state of Georgia as time passes," said Mr. Wilder, "and it will not be to the credit of the executive either."

Dr. W. J. McNaughton will not be hanged on October 3d for the murder of Fred Flanders, of Emanuel county, nor will he be hanged at all. Instead, he must spend the remainder of his life in the state penitentiary.

This is the decision reached Saturday afternoon by Governor Slaton, after a two weeks' review of the record in the famous south Georgia murder case, which has engaged the attention of the courts, the prison commission and the governor for about three years.

In the announcement of the commutation of Dr. McNaughton's sentence from hanging to life imprisonment, Governor Slaton states that in his opinion the evidence shows the guilt of the physician, but that it was all of a more or less circumstantial nature, and that "expert testimony offered since the trial by physicians of high standing impresses the fallibility of human judgment."

"Human life is sacred," declares the governor. "Its protection is the highest function of the law, and the governor, an officer sworn to enforce it, should remember its sacredness to the condemned criminal as well as to his victim."

The following brief resume of the record in the McNaughton case forms the preface to the governor's proclamation extending executive clemency:

RESUME OF RECORD.

"W. J. McNaughton was found guilty of poisoning Fred Flanders, and at the October term, 1910, of Emanuel superior court, was sentenced to death. His motion for new trial was overruled, and the judgment of the lower court was affirmed by the supreme court, one of the judges dissenting on the ground that the evidence was legally insufficient. A writ of error to the supreme court of the United States was granted, but before the case could be reached, it was withdrawn. An extraordinary motion for new trial was made, was overruled, and by the supreme court was affirmed, the bench unanimously holding that the newly discovered evidence would not reasonably change the result.

"The wife of Fred Flanders was jointly indicted with Dr. McNaughton, and application for executive clemency having been filed, Governor Brown deemed it wise that a respite be granted until the case of Mrs. Flanders be disposed of. An entry of nolle prosequi against her was entered at the August term, 1913, of Emanuel superior court.

"Upon consideration of the court record, additional evidence in the shape of affidavits and oral testimony, two members of the prison commission recommended a pardon, while the third recommends commutation to life imprisonment.

"The matter is now before me on the evidence presented to the prison commission, together with additional affidavits and oral testimony."

Then the governor takes up at some length the evidence adduced at the trial of Dr. McNaughton, showing that the physician and Mrs. Mattie Flanders, the wife of the deceased, were infatuated with one another; that Flanders and his wife lived in a house belonging to Dr. McNaughton; that the latter boarded with them; that the time he became ill Flanders was about to move to Thomasville and take his wife with him; that Dr. McNaughton treated Flanders and supplied the drugs administered to him; that after his death a considerable quantity of arsenic was found in his stomach; that on March 10, 1910, Dr. McNaughton had given a life insurance company a certificate to the effect that Flanders' kidneys were in good condition, and that on June 22, following, he had given a certificate setting out that Flanders had died from a

JUDGE FITE AGAIN SCORES APPELLATE COURT DECISION

Declares Court Should Either Be Abolished or Some New Judges Selected for This Bench

Judge Augustus W. Fite, of the Cherokee circuit, who was recently fined $500 for contempt by the state court of appeals because of his published criticisms of decisions rendered by that tribunal, takes another shot at the court in a signed card which he has sent to The Journal for publication.

As in the former instance Judge Fite takes exception to the fact that the court of appeals reversed his court. The case out of which the contempt proceedings grew was that of a negro who had been found guilty of attempt- [illegible] upon a white woman. The present case involves a conviction for perjury.

In the first paragraph of his card Judge Fite declares that the latest decision of the appellate court is the most ridiculous he has ever read outside of Gault's Reports of Justice Courts Decisions, and "I criticise it in self-defense and for the public good. The decision was delivered by Judge Russell, soon to be chief judge of that unique court."

Judge Fite, in concluding his card, says that "the above and foregoing decision of the court is the merest nonsense, and is not founded in law or fact, and there is nothing in the record to justify it, and I repudiate it as a reflection upon the judge, lawyers and jurors who tried the case. That decision turns a guilty man loose on a false issue, dodges the legal and moral question involved, outrages the law and facts and is a travesty on justice."

Then comes the most caustic paragraph of the card, written in a vein of ridicule:

"Alas, I know not what made them do it, for they are wise and honorable, but it does seem to me that 'Philip, drunk or sober,' would have known better. Neighbors, friends and fellow citizens, we must either retire the present judges of the court of appeals or abolish the court."

With the publication of Judge Fite's latest attack upon the court of appeals will very naturally follow public speculation as to how it will be received by the court, and whether the doughty judge will be again cited for contempt.

JUDGE FITE'S CARD.

Following is Judge Fite's card:

Cartersville, Ga., Sept. 27.

Editor of The Journal: I have just read a decision recently rendered by the court of appeals in the case of Black against the state from Whitfield superior court which is the most ridiculous decision I have ever read, except in Gault's reports of justice court decisions, and I criticise it in self defense and for the public good. The decision was delivered by Justice Russell, soon to be chief judge of that unique court.

The facts are as follows: Black was a witness for the defendant in the case of Mrs. Maynard against the Western and Atlantic railroad company, an action for damages alleged to have been caused by the negligence of the company in setting fire to and burning her store house by sparks from an engine in the day time. Black was a swift witness for the company, and, among other things, swore that he was a single man, when in fact he was a married man, having recently been married under circumstances not com-

ROAN NOT LIKELY TO HEAR PLEA FOR NEW FRANK TRIAL

Although He Would Like to Do So, There Is Little Probability That Case Will Reach Him in Time

While Judge L. S. Roan, who presided at the trial of Leo M. Frank, is ready and willing to hear the motion for a new trial in the case, it still appears unlikely that the motion will be argued for several weeks, or before he becomes a judge of the court of appeals.

Saturday the amended motion for a new trial had not been served upon the solicitor by Frank's attorneys, and naturally he cannot commence the preparation of his answer and his brief until after he has been served, and knows the exact grounds upon which the motion is based.

Judge Roan is anxious to dispose of all business pending before him before he takes his seat on the appellate court bench. Saturday morning he instructed the solicitor general to have all pending motions set for October 4 and October 11 in order that he might dispose of all cases by the last named date, and the solicitor stated that this would be done as far as possible.

At the same time Judge Roan asked if the prosecuting officer had yet been served with the amended motion in the Frank case and the latter replied that he had not.

"I had hoped that the matter might be disposed of in the next two weeks," the court remarked, and the solicitor replied that when he was served that he would make every effort to get ready as quickly as possible to argue the motion.

That the solicitor will be able to get ready with his side of the case within two weeks from the time he is served with the amended motion is not considered probable.

Should the defense of Frank charge that jurors were prejudiced before they were chosen, it might take the solicitor several weeks to get evidence in rebuttal of that introduced by the defense.

The record of the evidence in the case is so long that it will take the solicitor probably a week just to read it, and the preparation of his brief will take probably another week.

The case is an important one, not be slurred over, and as a result there is little probability of it being argued before the 13th of next month, when according to present arangements Judge Ben H. Hill is expected to exchange places with Judge Roan.

As a result the question of which of the superior court judges will hear the Frank motion is still an open one.

The position of Judge Roan in the matter is that the case was tried before him, and that naturally he should pass upon the motion if possible. In addition, he is desirous of leaving just as little unfinished business as possible to his successor.

But if the motion can't be heard before the 13th of October it is not considered probable that he will postpone the taking of his seat on the appellate bench simply in order to hear the Frank motion.

Such action is possible, but in view of the congested condition of the courts it is not probable.

When on the appellate bench Judge Roan will be disqualified to pass upon any case tried by him in the superior court, and for that reason, he does not wish to hear any more cases in the superior court.

DEMOCRATS AND BAD WEATHER FORCE NEW HIGH COTTON PRICE

Unfavorable Weather in the Western Half of Cotton Belt and Action on Tariff Committee Cause Rise

HIGHEST PRICE REACHED FOR SEVERAL SEASONS

Cotton Market Reaches Highest Point, but Breaks Just Before Close of Business on Saturday

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 27.—The price of cotton rose to new high levels for the season today, and to the highest levels seen on the boards in several years. Continued unfavorable weather in the western half of the belt, and promise of more over-Sunday, coupled with the fact that encouraging news early in the day from Washington regarding market legislation gave the bulls a free hand at first, led to the improvement in values. At the highest of the day, however, reports that Representative Underwood had introduced the future tax bill caused a break. The market lost 26 to 34 points from the high.

In the earlier part of the day buying for long account was heavy, much of it apparently coming from outside sources. The market went up in the face of considerable profit-taking by buyers of the first part of the week. There was little short selling on the rise and spot people reported little increase in offerings of actual cotton from the interior.

On the opening the tone was steady and prices were 5 to 10 points down. This initial decline was due to the fact that Liverpool did not make a good enough response to the advaice on this side yesterday. Liquidation of long cotton was rather heavy around the opening, and immediately after the first call prices were 8 to 9 points under the close of yesterday. This small decline brought out fresh buying in volume, which increased after the forecast was posted. The market gradually did better on reports of crop damage from many sections of the western belt, and at the highest the trading months were 13 to 16 points over yesterday's last quotations. The market was at about its highest levels when the reports concerning legislation were received. The close was irregular at a net loss for the day of 18 to 22 points.

Savannah Brokers Predict 15-Cent Cotton in October

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 27.—Fourteen-cent cotton became a reality in Savannah yesterday afternoon, and the spot market opened in Savannah this morning strong at that figure. Members of the Savannah cotton exchange are now predicting 15-cent cotton before the middle of October.

Atlantian Named

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 27.—As a result of elections to the editorial board of the Harvard Law Review, Herman E. Riddell, of Atlanta, Ga., was elected editor. He is a graduate of the University of Georgia, 1911, and a member of the third year class at the law school.

Wife of William H. Yeaton Gets Maiden Name Restored And Is Married to Minister

Her New Husband, Formerly of Macon, Faces Charges Before Presbyterian Church Board in Texas -- Was Formerly Miss Lillian Phillips, Told Husband of Other Man Before Leaving -- Was Married to Mr. Yeaton When 18 Years Old

Dispatches to The Journal last night from Fort Worth, Tex., tell of the marriage of an Atlanta young woman to a young Presbyterian minister, formerly of Macon, after she had obtained divorce from her first husband, whom she married when eighteen years old. Her maiden name was restored when the divorce was granted.

The minister has been summoned before his church board because of the affair.

The Atlantians who figured in the drama are Mr. and Mrs. William Hall Yeaton, and the minister is Rev. Lloyd B. Field. Mr. Yeaton is the credit man for the International Agriultural Corporation, of this city ,and has an apartment at 17 West Cain street.

Rev. Mr. Field, who formerly was pastor of several small Presbyterian churches at Macon, was early last April called to the pastorate of the Presbyterian church at Warren, Ark. A year before he left Macon he visited Atlanta and a mutual friend introduced him to Mrs. Yeaton at a soda fountain.

TOLD OF OTHER MAN.

An immediate attachment grew up between the minister and Mrs. Yeaton. Mr. Yeaton knew nothing of his wife's acquaintance with the minister until after the latter had gone to Arkansas. One day in the early part of last April, he says, his wife confided to him that she was in love with Rev. Mr. Field and announced her intention to go on a visit to an uncle in Fort Worth.

Mr. Yeaton says he was deeply grieved and shocked, but feeling that there had been no misconduct between his wife and the minister he agreed for her to go to Texas, hoping that after mature reflection she would reconsider. He states that he accompanied her to the train, bought her a ticket, gave her money, kissed her good-by, and that from cities along the way of her journey she sent him telegrams; that she again wired him after her arrival at Fort Worth and later wrote him endearing letters.

"I continued to correspond with my wife and sent her liberal sums of money," says Mr. Yeaton. "Two or three months after she went away I learned through a woman friend of hers that she did not intend to return to me and it was then, and then only, that I stopped sending her money. However, I continued to write to her urging her to reconsider and to do nothing that would bring unhappiness to both herself and to me.

ASKS FOR DIVORCE.

"On September 3 I received a letter from my wife's attorney requesting me to waive service on the divorce suit. After thinking it over and deciding that I should not endeavor to hold my wife if she was determined to abandon me I complied with the request.

"Not until The Journal informed me did I know that Mrs. Yeaton had obtained the divorce and that she had married Field. The entire matter is a great shock and deeply embarrassing to me. For my own defense I desire to state that while it was true that Mrs. Yeaton was under age when I married her—being but eighteen—her mother and father consented to the marriage and the mother obtained the marriage license for us. We were engaged a year

CANDIDATES WHO SEEK ELECTION TO COUNCIL

Ten Councilmen and Five Aldermen to Be Chosen, Polling Precincts

The voters of Atlanta will on next Tuesday elect ten councilmen and five aldermen.

While registration for the elections to council is the same as it was last Wednesday, when the revised charter was defeated, the vote over the city is expected to be heavier at Tuesday's election. Interest in the elections has been increased by the announcement of Mayor James G. Woodward that he would like very much to see certain gentlemen elected to council and others defeated.

In the First ward C. B. Alverson is opposing J. N. Renfroe for council. In the Second ward Alderman C. H. Kelly (elected by council) is an unopposed candidate for alderman to succeed John E. McClelland, who resigned some time ago. In this same ward Councilman C. D. Knight is a candidate to succeed himself, and has no opposition.

Councilman Orville H. Hall, of the Third ward, is opposed for re-election by R. R. Jackson, attorney and former justice of the peace, while Alderman James E. Warren is being opposed for re-election by C. C. McDonald, a well-known grocer.

A. D. Thomson, present councilman from the Fourth ward, is a candidate for alderman and is being opposed by Amos W. Brazelton, a former druggist. A. W. Farlinger and R. E. George are opposing candidates for council from that ward.

There are no races in the Sixth and Seventh wards. In the former ward, Councilman Jesse M. Wood will succeed himself. S. L. Dallas is without opposition for councilman from the Seventh ward, and Jesse W. Armistead will be elected alderman without opposition.

In the Fifth ward Jesse B. Lee is opposing Dr. William Etheridge in the race for councilman.

In the Eighth ward Frank H. Reynolds will succeed Councilman Clarence Haverty without opposition. The race for alderman from the Eighth ward is the hottest in the city. The candidates are John S. Owens, official of the Central Bank and Trust Corporation, and wealthy capitalist, and William A. Hancock, a prominent brick manufacturer and formerly a member of council.

In the Ninth and Tenth yards Councilmen Charles Whiteford Smith and Claude C. Mason will be re-elected without opposition.

Mayor Woodward is supporting J. N. Renfroe, C. C. McDonald, R. R. Jackson, A. W. Farlinger, Jesse B. Lee and W. A. Hancock. He has announced that he is especially anxious to see Messrs. Hall, Warren and Thomson defeated.

While the mayor's support has been given him, Mr. Hancock states that he is running as an independent candidate on his former record in council. The mayor's support came unsolicited, he says, and while he is glad to get it, he wants the people to understand that he is not aligned with any side or faction, and expects the support of the political enemies as well as the friends of the mayor.

All candidates fo ralderman are voted upon by the entire city, while the councilmen are elected by the voters of the wards they are to represent.

Announcement of the polling places and poll managers for the city primary election next Tuesday was made yesterplimentary to his moral character at what is known as a "military wedding." This fact was known to counsel for the plaintiff, and they sought to weaken his evidence and discredit him by showing that he was a married man and the circumstances under which he was married, and thus show that he was of bad moral character. I held that the evidence, as in case of a woman under similar circumstances, was material and admissible for that purpose, and Black swore falsely as above stated.

JUDGE FITE AGAIN SCORES APPELLATE COURT DECISION

Black was then indicted for perjury, and he defended on the ground that the evidence was immaterial, and that no lawful oath had been administered to him as a witness; and he was acquitted on the ground of a reasonable doubt as to whether or not he had been so sworn. Later Black was also indicted for perjury in falsely swearing that he was at the store about ten minutes before the fire started, and that the fire caught near the stove flue, when in fact he was elsewhere. He filled a plea of former jeopardy, and a plea of not guilty, but was convicted. His motion for new trial was overruled and carried to the court of appeals and the case was there reversed.

JUDGE RUSSELL QUOTED.

In delivering the opinion of the court on the materiality of the evidence of Black, that he was a single man, Judge Russell says: "The question, then is presented as to whether the alleged false statement in the indictment, on which the defendant had previously been tried, was material. If it was, the acquittal of the accused upon that indictment would bar any further prosecution for perjury alleged to have been committed in the particular judicial investigation. If the statements alleged to have been knowingly, willfully, and falsely made in the indictment upon which the accused had been tried were not material to the issue, then the plea in bar would be worthless. In the former case in which the defendant in this case was tried it was alleged in the indictment that he willfully, knowingly, absolutely, and falsely swore that he was a single man, when in truth and in fact he was not a single man, but was a married man and an investigation of the testimony in the records shows that, while this testimony was apparently irrelevant and immaterial matter, because it was the statement of a fact which, if true, would very likely have influenced the jury in the case then pending, and in which the defendant was a witness."

"The case in which Black was a witness was that of Mrs. Maynard against the Western and Atlantis railroad company, an action for damages alleged to have been caused by the railroad company's negligence in setting fire by sparks which burned her two-story frame storehouse. The material question in that case was the extent of Black's knowledge of the origin of the fire. He testified in that trial that he was at the storehouse about ten minutes before the fire, and that the fire caught near the stove flue. If the defendant had testified truthfully that he was a married man, the jury might have doubted his statement that he was at Mrs. Maynard's house at a late hour of the night on which the fire occurred. He swore he was a single man, which, would naturally cause the jury to give credence to the statement that he was visiting there at a late hour at night and that he saw the fire start—that it started from the stove flue and not from sparks thrown out from the railroad company's train. And while it was not at first apparent that his false statement that he was a single man would or could be material, an investigation of the record as a whole shows that it was necessarily material, because, if the jury believed it to be true, it tended to supply a reason for his absence from home and his presence at Mrs. Maynard's storehouse on the night of the fire, and thus corroborated other testimoney tending to show that the railroad company was not liable in the proceedings then pending."

"DECISION MEREST NONSENSE."

The above and foregoing decision of the court is the merest nonsense, and not founded in law or fact, and there is nothing in the record to justify it, and I repudiate it as a reflection upon the judge, lawyers and jurors who tried the case. Mrs. Maynard is a married woman and did not live at or near the storehouse, nor was the storehouse burned in the night time, but was burned in the day time—in broad, open daylight. No such suggestion as set out in the foregoing opinion was made by counsel on either side during the trial of the case, and if it had been I would have treated it as too trivial for a moment's consideration.

That decision turns a guilty man loose on a false issue, dodges the legal and moral question involved, outrages the law and facts, and is a travesty on justice.

"Alas! I know not what made them do it, for they are wise and honorable;" but it does seem to me that "Philip drunk or sober" would have known better. Neighbors, friends and fellow citizens, we must either retire the present judges of the court of appeals or abolish the court. Respectfully,

A. W. FITE.

P. S.—It is suggested that the decision is not entirely without merit, for while it may tend to encourage single men to keep later hours, it will tend to keep married men from going to locker clubs that sell spirituous malt or other intoxicating liquors, and to keep them at home at night.—A. W. F.

ROAN NOT LIKELY TO HEAR PLEA FOR NEW FRANK TRIAL

Therefore, if Judge Hill does not take up the work in the superior court by October 13, it will mean that the court calendar will become still more congested and all officials are trying to guard against this contingency.

There are now in jail 125 felony prisoners, some of whom have been awaiting trial for several months. There are eight or ten murder cases in the lot, and other serious felonies which it will take the court some time to try. As a result the superior court must grind regularly for several months before the jail is cleared. There are many hundreds of bond cases, several of them years old, which the court should dispose of.

It has been more than two months since the criminal division of the superior court was in session, and new arrests have been made daily.

The number of pending cases is constantly increasing, and for that reason it is regarded as likely that despite the Frank case, Judge Roan and Judge Hill will exchange places on October 13 and the latter will immediately commence disposing of the pressing business.

J. W. Coleman, step-father of Mary Phagan, conferred with Chief Lanford, of the detectives, over an hour last night, presumably in connection with the Frank case.

At the conclusion of the conference, however, neither Mr. Coleman nor the chief would say what it was about.

before marrying, and for the last eight months of that period I was a boarder in my wife's home.

"If there was any incompatibility between us I did not know it. Until just a few days before she went away to Texas I was happy with her and had no desire but to administer to her happiness. I lavished my salary and my attentions upon her."

Mrs. Yeaton (now Mrs. Field), was formerly Miss Lillian Phillips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. E. L. Phillips, of Warsaw, Richmond county, Va. Mr. and Mrs. ffYeaton resided together in Atlanta from September, 1911, to April, 1913.

HER LETTER TO YEATON.

A letter from his wife which was written to Mr. Yeaton at the time her attorney was requesting the waiver on the divorce petition service follows:

"My Dear Bill:

"Today, perhaps, Mr. Burns will send you the waiver to sign. After careful, serious thought I can see no other way, for a greater injustice than obtaining a legal separation could be done you (in living a lie) than in being honest and truthful.

"The whole affair is unfortunate, but I can't see any other way out of it. Don't worry over me, for I have fallen among friends and in some way will manage.

"Intricate details are painful to both you and myself, so I will hasten the close. I am sorry if I have caused you pain; forgive and forget me, and please realize that my action is determined by my own self, and will continue to be so. You know me well enough to know that I never allow influence of any sort to lead me into anything.

" Ipray God to guide and direct your paths into peace and contentment. He wil lanswer my prayer for you.

"It is hard to write as I would if I could. I can only ask you to help me by signing the waiver and forget me.

"Good-by,

"LILIAN."

After learning that Field was at Warren, Ark., and that his wife was to sue him for divorce Mr. Yeaton laid the entire case before the elders of Field's church with the result that the minister was relieved of his pastorate and charges preferred against him in the presbytery. These charges will be tried on October 16. The following letter to Mr. Yeaton from the clerk of the session of the Warren church, tells of the suspension of Pastor Field:

"Warren, Ark., Sept. 15, 1913.

"Mr. W. H. Yeaton, Atlanta, Ga.:

"Dear Sir: At a called meeting of presbytery, held at Dermott on the 11th instant, our request, that the pastoral relation, existing between this church and Rev. L. B. Field, be dissolved, was acte. on favorably and as the result our pulpit was preached from yesterday by a minister appointed at presbytery, and the pulpit declared vacant.

Worked in Office of County Clerk in Texas

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

FORT WORTH, Tex., Sept. 27.—After getting a divorce only a few days ago, Miss Lillian Phillips, of Atlanta, Ga., tonight married Rev. Lloyd B. Field, of Warren, Ark. Miss Phillips obtained her maiden name early this week, by an order of Judge Marvin M. Brown, of the Sixty-seventh district court. Formerly she was the wife of William Hall Yeaton, one of the leading business men of Atlanta, Ga. She had recently been employed here in the county clerk's office. She married Rev. Mr. Field at 8 o'clock Saturday night and the couple left immediately for Warren, Ark.

At Warren the new husband will face charges before the ruling board of the state Presbyterian church, on October 16, of alienation of his wife's affection from her former husband. He declares he will fac ethem fearlessly. He declares his conduct has been without blame, and any indiscretions, he says, are excused by the fact that he loved.

The bride is of Virginia parentage and claims relationship with the family of Thomas Nelson Page, while Mr. Fields says he is related by marriage to President Woodrow Wilson.

Miss Phillips was married to William Hall Yeaton, June 26, 1909, at which time she was eighteen years old.

In her petition for divorce she alleged that at the time of her marriage she was under legal age and that her parents had not consented to the wedding, also that there was incompatibility of temper between herself and Mr Yeaton.

His Pocket Picked As He Made Contribution, Convinced 'Man's Good,

While he stopped to drop a silver dollar into a tambourine passed round by a Salvation Army lassie, and to listen for a few moments to the peracher who was stressing the natural goodness of mankind, Brown H. Dougherty, of Shreveport, was robbed last night of $160.

He was on his way from the Piedmont hotel to the Union station to join his mother, who was to meet him here and return with him to Shreveport. He had some time to while away before the arrival of the train which he was to meet, and his attention was drawn by the singing of the Salvation Army workers.

He walked up Marietta street a block from Five Points, and stood among the crowd, listening to the peracher who was speaking fervently from his text with the street as his pulpit.

Dougherty was moved by the speaker's words of assurance. He dropped a silver dollar into the tambourine which the Salvation Army lassie passed, paused for a moment to hear the beginning of a hymn set to popular music, then turned toward the statoin.

At this moment, he chanced to feel in his other trouser's pocket, and found that bills amounting to $160 had been stolen from him. He believes that he was robbed just when the minister was preaching upon the text that manhood is good, not bad, by nature.

DR. J. F. M. DAVIS DIES FROM HEART FAILURE

Dr. J. F. M. Davis, of Calhoun county, Ala., died suddenly last night at the residence of his son-in-law, George C. Jones, vice president of the J. M. High company.

Dr. Davis was seventy-three years old. His death occurred suddenly at midnight as the result of heart failure.

Dr. Davis was a Confederate veteran, a Mason and a prominent citizen of Alabama. H eretired from the active practice of medicine some time ago.

Surviving him are his wife by his third marirage, Mrs. Callie B. Davis; and the following children: Mrs. Luther H. Maxwell, of Tuscaloosa, Ala.; Mrs. George C. Jones, of Atlanta; J. Mallary Davis, of Memphis; James B. Davis, of Itta Bena, Miss.; and Dr. Cleland Davis, of the same place.

COLDS

The second sign of a Cold is a sneeze, a shiver, or a hot, flushed face, which never would have been if you had heeded the first sign of lassitude, as described last week.

Even now it is not too late to break up the Cold if "Seventy-seven" is taken at once.

Don't wait until the cough and sore throat sets in, or it may take longer.

"Seventy-seven" is a small vial of pleasant pellets, that fits the vest pocket, easy to carry, easy to take—

BIG ELECTRIC SIGNS FOR LAGRANGE MERCHANTS

LAGRANGE, Ga., Sept. 27.—Callaway's department store and Jas. L. White, haberdasher, have just ordered two very large and expensive electric signs to be delivered and erected over their stores in LaGrange by the time of the opening day of the fair on November the 5th.

Hospital for Rome

ROME, Ga., Sept. 27.—The fund for building a city and county hospital was given a substantial start today by a donation of $1,000 from John H. Reynolds, a Rome banker. An aggressive campaign will be waged to bring the amount up to $30,000.

"GETS-IT," Nothing Like It for Corns

Easy As One, Two, Three; No Fuss, No Pain, By Using "GETS-IT."

Just take two seconds to put a little "GETS-IT" on that corn. That corn is "done for" as sure as the sun rises. The corn shrivels up, vanishes. That's the surprise you get by using this new-plan corn cure. There's nothing to stick to the stockings or socks; your corn pains stop. You're saved the bother of applying plasters that make the corn bulge out from the core. You're saved salves that eat into the healthy flesh and "pull" no more fussing with bandages. You don't have to help by picking and dragging out your corns or cutting with knives or razors.

"GETS-IT" is safe, painless, stops pain, never hurts healthy flesh. It is guaranteed. Try it on warts, calluses and bunions, too.

"GETS-IT" is sold at all driggists at 25 cents a bottle, or sent direct by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago.—(Advt.)

Good Time Now For Blood Health

Energies Are More Keen and Respond Quickly to Help.

Let S. S. S. Help You to Health.

If you are down with rheumatism; if you sneeze, feel chilled, are choked with catarrh, have a cough, or your skin is pimpled and irritated with rash, eczema, or any other blood disorder just remember that all the ills of life come from impure blood. And you can easily give your blood a good thorough cleansing, a bath by using S. S. S. There is no need for anyone to be despondent over the illness of blood impurities. No matter how badly they attack the system, or how unsightly becomes the skin, just remember there is one ingredient in S. S. S. that so stimulates the cellular tissues throughout the body that each part selects its own essential nutriment from the blood.

This means that all decay, all breaking down of the tissues, is checked and repair work begins. S. S. S. has such a specific influence on all local cells as to preserve their mutual welfare and afford a proper relative assistance to each other. More attention is being given to scientific medicine than ever before and S. S. S. is the highest achievement in this line. For many years people relied upon Mercury, Iodide of Potash, Arsenic, "Physics," Cathartics and "Dope" as remedies for blood sickness, but now the pure vegetable S. S. S. is their safeguard.

You can get S. S. S. in any drug store, but insist upon having it. And you should take no chance by permitting anyone to recommend a substitute. And if your blood condition is such that you would like to consult a Specialist freely, address Medical Dept., The Swift Specific Co., 218 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

The Sweet Tone of the Cable Piano

Any good musician will tell you that the Cable piano is one of particularly high merit.

It is made to please the best judges of tone quality and its reputation has been established by the opinions of those who know what a piano should be.

Aside from its desirable musical qualities, it has constructive features which commend it to the observing buyer.

The Cable is strongly built of carefully selected and perfectly seasoned material. That is why it is a favorite piano with those who want an instrument for practical use. You can play a Cable every day for years and it will still have its fine tone.

The Cable naturally is higher in price than many pianos you see because it is better and costs more to make. And yet with all its good qualities it is not an extremely high priced instrument.

You can buy on easy terms.

JAMES E. WARREN

Candidate for Alderman Third Ward

My experience as Alderman for the past three years has better equipt me in handling the various intricate and perplexing questions that are constantly being considered by the council.

During this term of service I have not allowed the influence of factional politics to shape my conduct in matters considered by the General Council but have always considered them solely from the view point of the public good.

I am not and never have been the candidate of any man or faction, nor have I taken partisan stands on public questions.

I have always advocated conservative policies in all matters. I believe the city affairs should be conducted in a strictly business way and that political influences should play no part in public affairs.

If re-elected I will give my best efforts and most faithful service to the city.

"FALSE," SAYS COCHRAN, OF WOODWARD'S CHARGE

Chairman of City Executive Committee Issues Two Playing Politics

J. O. Cochran, chairman of the city executive committee, issued two cards yesterday, one in reply to Mayor Woodward's charge that the executive committee is playing politics, the other in reply to the mayor's charge that the assessments required of candidates by the executive committee are "an outrageous holdup."

Following is the first of these cards:

"Mayor Woodward's charges that the primary committee is playing politics, or trying to prevent any section of the city from having an opportunity to vote, or that the committee is discriminating against any candidate, are utterly false.

"The committee did not allow two polling places in the Third ward for the reason that two places are not needed. The primaries have never had out one place in that ward, but generally have two sets of managers.

"The polling place is located at Hunter and Fraser streets, where it has been for years. This place is accessible from every part of the ward, as cars pass by this corner or within a few blocks from every section of the ward.

"The section where Mr. Woodward claims to want a place located is within a few blocks of this place and can easily be reached by car line.

"Mr. Woodward knows that there is no justice in his kick, and furthermore he has nothing to do with this primary, not being a candidate; but he thinks he sees an opportunity to make political capital by his howls.

"I wish to say, in justice to Councilman Hall and Alderman Warren, that they have never suggested anything to the committee about having only one place, and I suppose they did not know the committee had acted until the ysaw it in the press."

Following is Mr. Cochran's card in reply to the mayor's charge that assessments required of candidates are a hold-up:

What's Mayor Woodward got to do with the assessments for candidates for the primary?

He's not running for office now and I can't see where he gets on. The candidates are not raising any disturbance. We returned Mr. Woodward $95, last year after paying the expenses of two primaries.

We will return a considerable amount to the candidates this year. The books of the committee are open to the inspection of any one interested. A record is made of every penny spent and for what purposes it was spent.

The assessments were higher this year than usual because there were only a few offices to fill and it costs as much to hold a primary with a few running as it does for many. When the time comes the committee will render an account to the candidates, who paid in their money, and Mr. Woodward will not be consulted.

Mr Frank Hammond, the mayor's secretary, is a member of the primary committee and voted for these assessments, knowing that it was necessary to defray the expenses of the primary. If the mayor is bent on running the committee he ought to begin by controlling his secretary before casting insinuations against the other members.

It seems the only way for the mayor to keep in the limelight is to quarrel with everything and everybody whether what he says is true or not, or whether he has anything to do with it or not.

J. Q. COCHRAN,
Secretary.

INDICTMENTS AGAINST L. C. THURMAN DROPPED

Four indictments, charging atrocious offenses to L. C. Thurman, for many years well known in Atlanta, were nolle prossed by Judge L. S. Roan Saturday morning on the recommendation of the solicitor general.

Rosamund Thurman, aged seven, and her five-year-old sister, were the principal witnesses on whose testimony the indictments against their father were returned more than a year ago.

In recomending that the cases be dropped without cost to the defendant, Solictior Dorsey told the court that he had been informed that the little girls now say that they were told to make the startling charges against their father by their mother and grandmother.

The mother, the solictior said, bears a bad reputation, while the father's general character is excellent.

Judge Roan followed the solicitor's recommendation.

"A KING FOR A DAY" AT COLUMBIA THEATER

"A King for a Day" is the attraction at the Columbia burlesque theater for the week beginning Monday. The management also announced the engagement of "Vanita," who comes direct from a long metropolitan engagement, presenting what has been claimed to be the classiest posing act on the stage. "Vanita" is but one of the high class attractions that are promised the popular Central avenue house.

Miss Beatrice Darling is featured in this week's offering. "A King for a Day" is said to be replete with catcchy music and interspersed with clever dance numbers.

CONVICTED MAN GIVEN BACK CITIZENSHIP RIGHTS

A proclamation restoring his rights of citizenship to Juan Fowler, a Habersham county farmer, was issued Saturday morning by Governor Slaton.

Fowler was convicted of manslaughter seventeen years ago and served a two-year sentence. His conviction automatically took away his citizenship. For the past fifteen years he has lived an upright life, has married and three children have been born to him.

He Defied Cops

For running amuck in the saloon at 35 Decatur street Friday afternoon, and for threatening to whip the whole police force as soon as he regained his liberty, Millard Stevens was sentenced by Judge Broyles to twenty-nine days in the city stockade Saturday morning, and was bound over to the higher courts under $500 bond for assault and battery. Stevens is a blacksmith, twenty years old.

SOUTHEASTERN DENTAL WILL OPEN ON OCT. 2

Formal Opening Exercises to Take Place in New Building on Luckie Street

Announcement is made by the Southeastern Dental university that it has moved into its new building on Luckie street and that the opening exercises for the new term will be held there at 10 o'clock Thursday morning, October 2. Rev. Dr. Lincoln McConnell, pastor of the Baptist Tabernacle, will deliver the opening address.

Formerly the institution's dental and dental assistants departments were located at 174 Whitehall street. The new building, 158 to 166 Luckie street, furnishes much more adequate quarters, with three lecture halls, an amphitheater, three laboratories and an operatory, wherein a white clinic will be conducted daily, facilities with which those in charge of the Southeastern hope to make it rank foremost in dental education in the south.

FIRE COMPANIES WIN JAKE GOLDBERG SUIT

After a trial, which lasted nine days, a jury in Judge W. D. Ellis' division of the superior court, on Friday returned a verdict for three defendant fire insurance companies, the Rutgers Fire Insurance company, the Provident Washington Insurance company and the Exchange Underwriters, incorporated, which alleged that Jake Goldberg did not have the furniture in the store, which he claimed to have lost, when the building at, 350 and 352 Decateur street, burned in September, 1911.

Goldberg sued for $4,825.

MISS HAYS TO SING AT CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

She Also Will Sing at the Auditorium Concert Sunday Afternoon

Miss Mamie Hays will sing at the Central Congregational church, corner Ellis and Carnegie Way, Sunday morning and Sunday night. Miss Hays has been spending the summer in Atlanta and returns shortly to New York to continue her grand opera studies. She is to sing at the auditorium Sunday afternoon and the Sunday night service at the Congregational church will be the last opportunity for hearing her for some time.

APPOINTING THE WEDDING DAY

There are many little perplexities connected with functions carried out upon the wedding day, but there is none so important as sending out the right kind of invitations.

This is an item that should never be given to the "bargain counter," where lack of knowledge of correct forms or cheap material are the dominating features.

If there is ever a time when the bride should appear well to her friends it should be through the proper appearance and verbage of her wedding cards; to fail upon this point is a mistake that induces unfavorable comment.

The safest plan is to have these very important representatives of one's taste executed by an engraving house that has an established reputation for the manufacture of such articles. The name of such a maker upon the envelope is a guarantee that establishes beyond doubt the correctness of style.

For over twenty years past the imprint of the J. P. Stevens Engraving Co., of Atlanta, has stood for the very finest products in the engravers' art. Material is of the highest grade, the forms of expression are those required by the strictest rules of social dictum, their engraving has that finish and balance that is only attained by engravers of skill, and shapes are right-up-to-the-minute style. Upon request, this house will send out samples that will exhibit the superiority of its work.—(Advt.)

'BUS FOR CAPITAL CITY COUNTRY CLUB

Passengers Will Ride in Comfort From End of Car Line to Club House

Hereafter the members of the Capital City club's country club house, and their guests, will ride in style between the end of the car line and the club itself. The club has purchased from the White company a "country estate 'bus," and the 'bus already has been put in commission. It is a combination car for the carrying of passengers and supplies.

A specially designed body is being built to replace the temporary body that now is on the 'bus. The big car will be in permanent condition soon, and is promised to be a stylish and handsome affair.

It will have a carrying capacity of twelve passengers. The motor is a thirty-horse power machine. The 'bus will operate solely between the end of the car line and the club house.

GIVE PEEVISH, CONSTIPATED CHILDREN AT ONCE "CALIFORNIA SYRUP OF FIGS"

Harmless "fruit laxative" cleanses stomach, liver and bowels

Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, it is a sure sign that your little one's stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once.

When peevish, cross, listless, pale doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally, or is feverish, stomach sour, breath bad, has stomach ache, sore throat, diarrhoea, full of cold, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in just a few hours all the foul, constipated waste, undigested food and sour bile gently move out of its little bowels and you have a well, playful child again.

You needn't coax sick children to take this harmless fruit laxative; they love its delicious taste and it always makes them feel splendid.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on each bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

TARIFF BILL TO PASS MINUS COTTON FEATURE

Leaders Think It Unlikely That Cotton Futures Tax Can Be Settled

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 27.—The inability of the tariff conferees to agree with reference to the cotton futures tax will be reflected in the senate and house is believed tonight by persons supposed to be familiar with the temper of congress. As a result, the tariff bill will become alaw without any provision relating to cotton exchanges, and the whole question will be made the subject of legislation at the regular session of congress.

It is regarded as certain that the Smith-Lever plan for regulating the cotton exchanges will be accepted by the house. Leader Underwood incorporated the plan in a bill which he introduced in the house as a basis of speedy action.

The only element of doubt in the situation has to do with the attitude of the senate. An effort will be made to induce the senate to accept the Smith-Lever plan, but Senator Simmons expressed the belief tonight that this effort will fail. He added that the house would finally recede from the Smith-Lever plan and that the bill would become a law without any provision bearing on cotton futures.

Senator Clarke, of Arkansas, author of the original cotton futures tax, declined to indicate what his attitude would be with reference to the Smith-Lever plan, but he intimated very strongly that he thought the issue involved to be of importance enough to justify and demand its consideration by congress as a distinct mater. It is believed that, while interested in the success of his original proposition, he is willing that the question shall go over rather than imperil the tariff bill or further delay its final passage.

There was current a report, however, that Senators Clarke and Pomerene, of Ohio, might possibly form a combination to force the senate to stand by the original Clarke amendment and an amendment of Senator Pomerene relating to a tax on domestic wines. The Ohio senator succeeded in amending the bill in the senate so as to impose a tax on domestic wines made in vineyards. The conferees struck out this tax, and Pomerene is reported to be anxious to force its reinstatement.

Senator Vardaman, of Mississippi, is threatening to revolt unless the Clarke amendment is restored to the bill. He stated late this afternoon that he would not vote for any conference report unless it contained the cotton futures tax as originally passed in the senate. He said that in his opinion the cotton exchanges, next to whisky, have done more injury to the south than anything since the government was established.

"I believe the Clarke amendment is a step in the right direction and I am not inclined to accept any conference report that does not contain this proposition," he said.

ZACHRY HEARING ON BEHIND CLOSED DOORS

Public Barred From the Court Room While Fight Begins for Possession of Children

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

AUGUSTA, Ga., Sept. 27.—The hearing in the case of Mrs. Mary W. Zachry vs. Julian J. Zachry for the possession of their two children began in the superior court before Judge Henry C. Hammond Saturday at 10 o'clock.

Judge Hammond after a consultation with John T. West and Hamilton Phinizy, attorneys for Zachry, and C. E. Dunbar, attorney for Mrs. Zachry, excluded everyone from the court room except those directly concerned in the case. Only one officer of the court, Deputy Sheriff Plunkett, was allowed to remain.

Present were only Mrs. Zachry and her mother, Mrs. Hallihan; her attorney, Dunbar; Julian J. Zachry, his attorneys, West & Phinizy, Judge Hammond and Plunkett.

At the conclusion of the hearing in the case Saturday afternoon Judge Hammond reserved his decision.

SHINBONE RED ORE CO. IN BIG BANKRUPT CASE

Involuntary Petition Is Filed Against Walker County Company

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

ROME, Ga., Sepjt. 27.—One of the biggest bankruptcy cases in the history of north Georgia broke here this afternoon when an involuntary petition was filed against the Shinbone Red Ore company, of Walker county. Liabilities are in the neighborhood of $90,000, and book value of assets is $125,000.

The company conducted extensive mining operations at Hillsdale, Walker county, but during recent months the mines have been closed. R. N. Dickerson, of Lafayette, who is clerk of Walker county superior court, was appointed receiver.

Singers' Convention

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

DALTON, Ga., Sept. 27.—Tilton will, on October 11 and 12, be the Mecca for Whitfield county singers, when the Whitfield County Association will hold its annual fall convention there. A number of classes will enter the contests for the banner.

M'NAUGHTON'S DEATH SENTENCE COMMUTED TO PRISON FOR LIFE

EVIDENCE SUMMED UP.

Summing up the evidence the governor says that it was such that the jury could find these facts:

"Defendant and Mrs. Flanders were infatuated with each other, and were criminally intimate. Fred Flanders, his wife and defendant were living in the same house. Fred Flanders determined to move to Thomasville, and having moved his furniture, and household effects, expected to take his final departure on Thursday morning. On Wednesday night he became sick, some of his symptoms being those of arsenical poisoning. Dr. McNaughton was the only physician who prescribed for him and these prescriptions were filled by Dr. McNaughton himself from his own apothecary's shop. When medicine was given Flanders, he vomited and he suffered dimness of vision, pain in the stomach and showed other symptoms found in poisoning by arsenic. He said the medicine made him worse. The night he didn't take the medicine, he was better. Although Dr. McNaughton in the early part of his patient's sickness expressed doubt a sto his recovery, he refused the insistent requests of the patient's relatives to call in Dr. Smith, although he promised to do so. He advised against moving Fred to his brother's house.

"Dr. Green Bell came only one time, and he thought Fred Flanders ought to be up in two or three days. For eighteen days, from May 17, 1910, to June 4, 1910, he lingered, taking the doses of medicine given by Dr. McNaughton. One Friday evening nobody except defendant and Mrs. Flanders were with Fred Flanders, and he died that night. He was buried on Sunday, and Monday morning Dr. McNaughton and Mrs. Flanders endeavored to engage Mrs. Durden to come to Dr. McNaughton's house, and keep house for them. They got to Swainsboro to ordinary's court before it opened, to provide for administration on Fred's estate, which was presumably worth, exclusive of insurance, between $4,000 and $5,000. In Swainsboro they were laughing and talking, with no evidence of grief.

"Dr. McNaughton went down to Thomasville that week to look after property for the widow.

SUSPICION AROUSED.

"The suspicions of the dead man's relatives being aroused, the body was exhumed and seven-eights of a grain of arsenic, because a dose would be 1-40 heart and stomach, each being analyzed separately. It was tasteless and odorless and in the opinion of the chemist was administered as a white powder.

"Arsenic being eliminated rapidly, it would have been impossible for deceased to have taken that found in his stomach prior to May 17, 1910, because in twelve days it would have practically been eliminated, and death did not occur until eighteen days after the man took to his bed.

"A doctor must have administered the arsenic, because a dose would be 1.40 to 1-20 of a grain, and a layman giving it would have probably given such quantity as to produce immediate death.

"Now, the foregoing facts might have been found by the jury. They might also have found the conjectures suggested by the defendant in his statement as unsupported and fanciful.

"The defendant introduced no evidence. He did not offer to prove his good character. He urged no motion for change of venue. He was represented by able and experienced counsel. Twelve jurors, who heard the evidence, found him guilty; the presiding judge not only approved the verdict, but declined to exercise the discretion granted him in cases of circumstantial evidence to substitute life imprisonment for the death penalty. On hearing before the supreme court, five of the six judges joined in affirming the judgment. I think the evidence amply sufficient to support the finding.

"After the writ of error to the supreme court of the United States was dismissed by defendant's counsel, an extraordinary motion for new trial was made. This motion was based on affidavits setting out alleged newly discovered evidence, in brief as follows:

"Several witnesses swear that in April, 1910, deceased while at Thomasville took some medicine, and some swore that Flanders said: 'This will kill me some day.'

"The uncle of the deceased wife, Seaborn Bell, swore that on his way home deceased stopped by affiant's house for the night, and while taking some medicine said, 'You see how particular I am—it is poison.' Deceased was sick, nauseating and vomiting.

"Mrs. Flanders, wife of deceased, swore that when Fred came home from Thomasville he was sick and nauseated, and during his last sickness took some white substance and water to wash it down, which he said was salts, and sent Fred Stewart to get some Ramon pills for him. Affiant told deceased Dr. McNaughton would not like his taking other medicine, and deceased said he would not know it.

"A man who went with him to Thomasville in April, 1910, swore that Fred went to the drug store to get some medicine on complaint that his liver and kidneys hurt him. This evidence was fortified by affidavits as to the credibility of the witnesses, and the prior ignorance of counsel of the evidence, the legal rules being complied with.

THE STATE'S RESPONSE.

"The state responded with affidavits in substance as follows:

"Affidavits tending to charge knowledge to the defendant of this evidence at the time of the trial.

"R. N. Thompson swore that he was with deceased at Thomasville, where he took some medicine for constipation, but he did not take any at Seaborn Bell's house. That he was well, joking and in good spirits and proceeded from Bell's house to Covena, where he superintended his teams, etc.

"Stewart swore he got some Ramon pills for Fred Flanders, and the latter told him that 'they would kill him if he didn't get away from there.'

"R. A. Flanders testified that two days before Fred took sick Fred told him he was tough as a mule.

"J. E. Thompson contradicts the affidavit of S. Bell and corroborates R. N. Thompson. Curl testified that Seaborn Bell was present at the trial of the defendant.

"D. L. Smith swears that two days before Fred Flanders took sick, about May 17, 1910, deceased worked with him, carrying a chain, surveying land, and appeared strong and healthy.

"It will be seen that the contradiction in the affidavits is remarkable. Why Mr. Bell did not disclose this knowledge, if he were willing to take the stand, is remarkable, when he was at the trial. Why Mrs. Flanders should not have given her co-defendant information in her possession is unusual.

"Judge Rawlings overruled the extraordinary motion for new trial, and the supreme court unanimously affirmed it, holding that the newly discovered evidence would not likely change the result, although the judge previously dissenting adherred to his original dissent.

EXECUTIVE CLEMENCY.

"Appeal was then made for executive clemency and the application was duly entertained by the prison commission. Governor Brown by several orders respited the defendant until the case against Mrs. Flanders was disposed of. That case was nolle prossed at the August term, 1913, of Emanuel superior court. In order to allow the prison commission to report, I granted a respite for thirty days. Said order expires on October 3, 1913. Evidence was introduced before that body and before me, by affidavit, statement and sworn testimony."

Here the governor recounts the expert testimony of a number of physicians, based upon the symptoms manifested by Flanders during his last illness. Some of this testimony was submitted by the attorneys for the defense and some by the attorneys representing the state. It concerns the probable cause of death and effect of arsenic poisoning. These experts differ in some respects. Continuing the governor says:

"Several witnesses for the state swore that Dr. Green Bell, the uncle of Mrs. Flanders, on his return from seeing Flanders, made statements to the effect that he was being poisoned by Dr. McNaughton and Mrs. Flanders, and after his death suggested exhuming the body.

"The defense presents affidavits from members of Dr. Bell's family and others that they never heard him express such an opinion, but had said Fred Flanders had uraemic poisoning. Dr. Bell died before Dr. McNaughton was tried.

"There was produced before me the original affidavit, dated June 20, 1913, made by Dr. Bell for collecting the insurance reciting as follows in affiant's handwriting: 'When I saw him on May 28, 1910, he was suffering from gastritis. I did not see him any more. It was complicated with nephritis. I do not know of how long standing.'

"Subsequently to closing the hearing, the officers of the Southern States Life Insurance company, having read of the hearing before me, sent me correspondence connected with an application of deceased for insurance in December, 1909. Its agent in Thomasville, to whom the application was made, wrote the company in Atlanta that he heard that Flanders had suffered with an attack of renal colic and Dr. McNaughton had attended him. The company's medical director wrote Dr. McNaughton asking him about it and the doctor replied 'that Fred Flanders had a slight attack, lasting about two hours, in April, 1909, but he had no symptoms since and in his opinion he was a fair risk since his health has always been good as had that of his family.'

MRS. FLANDERS' CASE.

"Emphasis has been laid on the failure to try Mrs. Flanders. The state's counsel give as their reason for entering the nolle prosequi their inability to prove guilty knowledge on the part of Mrs. Flanders in administering arsenic. While they can prove intimacy with Dr. McNaughton, infatuation with him and a lack of affection for her husband on Mrs. Flanders' part, they say that many married women are guilty of unchastity who are unwilling to assassinate their husbands—there being no logical connection between the two, they could only produce suspicion, but no evidence of knowledge of the poisonous character of the medicine Dr. McNaughton was providing from his pharmacy. This is their position and it seems to me a forcible one. The guilt of one is not necessarily dependant upon that of the other. In any event, if two people are guilty, the escape from justice of one is no extenuation of the other's offense."

Concluding, the governor says:

"While the governor, if convinced that a grand jury, a jury, a trial judge and the supreme court are all wrong and the defendant is innocent, should pardon, yet he, in the plenitude of power, should be certainly most clearly convinced an injustice has been done. He never saw the witnesses nor had the means suggested by human experience of detecting the truth. If he reviews anew each record, and finds in cold type the same number of witnesses swearing each way he would invariably find doubt and set aside every such verdict, unless guarded by a spirit of reverence for trials by jury and the forms prescribed by law for the ascertainment of the truth. Of all citizens of the state, he is not to be the only one bound by no law.

"The conviction was on circumstantial evidence and one judge of the supreme court believed it did not exclude every reasonable doubt. Two of the prison commissioners recommended a pardon and one life imprisonment.

"The law provides that in case of conviction of murder on circumstantial evidence, the judge in his discretion, may sentence to life imprisonment. The jury's recommendation to mercy would impose the same penalty. Thus, while the evidence may exclude every reasonable hypothesis of innocence, nevertheless, because of the possibility of error the life of the convict is saved.

LIFE IS SACRED.

"Human life is sacred. Its protection is the highest function of the law, and the governor, an officer sworn to enforce it, should remember its sacredness to the condemned criminal as well as to his victim.

"I believe the evidence shows the guilt of Dr. McNaughton. Yet, the expert testimony offered since the trial by physicians of high standing impresses the fallibility of human judgment.

"After a full consideration of this case from every aspect, after search for truth from every available source, I believe it my duty to do what the judge and jury would likely have done in the light of the facts now before me. While I believe the evidence strong, yet it is purely circumstantial. One justice of the supreme court dissented because of the insufficiency of the evidence. The entire prison commission recommended clemency, I believe it to be my duty to commute the sentence of death to life imprisonment, and it is so ordered."

DECISION MAILED.

Governor Slaton's commutation of the senetence of Dr. McNaughton has been mailed to the sheriff of Emanuel county, to which the physician belongs as a prisoner, although he is now and has been for many months confined in the Chatham county jail.

Notice of the governor's action will be transmitted to the state prison commission Monday morning and it is probable that by the middle of the week Dr. McNaughton will be taken from the Chatham county jail and attached to one of the county convict camps. Emanuel county will have first claim upon his services. In the event this county does not want him the commission will allot him to some other county.

It is more than likely that Dr. McNaughton will be assigned to the care of the sick at whatever camp he is sent rather than that he will be placed at hard labor on the roads. It is possible, but hardly probable, that he will be taken to the state prison farm near Milledgeville.

GEORGIA TEACHERS, NOT PAID, SEEK ALABAMA?

So Declares Alabama State Auditor, Declaring That Many Are Getting Places

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 27.—Georgia teachers are coming to Alabama and accepting positions in schools because Georgia has not paid their salaries promptly, according to C. Brooks Smith, state auditor.

"Georgia has been putting off paying it's teachers for several months and many of them are accepting positions and signing contracts to teach in this state," said Mr. Smith today.

"Alabama has been able to meet all it's obligations promptly and this is not an indication that the state treasury is in such bad condition."

LAW-ENFORCEMENT BILLS REMAIN ON CALENDAR

Turbulent Extra Session of Tennessee Legislature Comes to Close

(By Associated Press.)

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 27.—The turbulent extra session of the Tennessee general assembly ended late tonight with three of the so-called law enforcement bills still on the calendar of the house. These bills, designed to make less difficult the enforement of laws against the liquor traffic, were the subject of story debate during several closing days of the session, and, by a filibuster conducted by "regular" Democrats, were prevented from coming to a vote of the house after they had been passed by the senate.

The senate today defeated a proposed amendment to the refunding bill, the stipulation that state bonds should not be sold below par being the feature chiefly opposed by the leaders. Both house and senate passed a bill providing for the substitution of the electric chair for the gallows in the punishment of criminals condemned to death.

Governor Hooper today sent a message to the house indicating his inclination to call another extra session for the consideration of "law enforcement" bills alone.

In contrast with the scenes on the floor of the house at the first of this week, when charges of the presence of gunmen threatened a riot, tonight's session was marked by jocular speechmaking and singing.

Mr. Hancock's Record in the City Council

Voted Several Times Against Electing City Officials by the People

A LETTER has been sent to the Voters of the City by Mr. W. A. Hancock, candidate for Alderman from the Eighth Ward, in which he takes credit for many things done by the General Council during his extended service in that body.

The record of a public official is always a legitimate subject of discussion when the official offers for re-election. Therefore, we call attention to some specific votes by Mr. Hancock which are not mentioned in his letter.

The Executive committee ordered a vote on the question of electing the City Clerk, Marshal and other officials by the people. Mr. John S. Owens was a member of this committee and voted FOR it.

In this election the people voted over 6,000 to 900 that these officials should be elected by popular vote.

A resolution was introduced in Council to amend the Charter and carry out the decision of the people. A motion was made to lay it on the table. Mr. Hancock voted YES. (Minutes of Council No. 21, Page 699). Various motions were made to strike from the list several officials named by vote of the people. Mr. Hancock voted TO STRIKE each one proposed. (Minutes of Council No. 21, Page 708). Afterwards a resolution was introduced to "Carry out the will of the people." Mr. Hancock voted "No," (Minutes of Council No. 22, Page 15.)

Throughout the whole fight Mr. Hancock voted in favor of all motions to delay or to defeat the expressed decision of the people in the election held on the subject. (Minutes of Council No. 22, Pages 63, 66 and 427.)

The people finally won their fight, and these officials are now elected by popular vote, but it was OVER the vote of Mr. Hancock.

Now, Mr. Voter, if Mr. Hancock, when last in Council, refused to carry out your will, as expressed at the ballot-box, can you expect him to carry out your will, if he is put back in Council, whether you hold an election on the subject, or simply express it to him in person. He has shown a contempt for the people, even when they acted and voted together almost unanimously. How can he now ask the same people to re-elect him as their REPRESENTATIVE. A representative is a man who represents. He did not do it. You cannot now expect him to do it. "By their fruits ye shall know them."

Mr. John S. Owens has never been in politics. He is not lined up with any faction. He will put some "new blood" into our City government. He is an active, successful business man. He is the kind of man the people are always saying they want in Council. Now is the chance to get SUCH A MAN!

ROGERS AND RELIABILITY

Rheumatism

A Home Cure Given by One Who Had It

In the spring of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who have it know, for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, and doctor after doctor, but such relief as I received was only temporary. Finally, I found a remedy that cured me completely, and it has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicated and even bedridden with Rheumatism, and it effected a cure in every case.

I want every sufferer from any form of rheumatic trouble to try this marvelous healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. After you have used it and it has proven itself to be that long-looked-for means of curing your Rheumatism, you may send the price of it, one dollar, but, understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when positive relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write today.

DO YOU KNOW ANY OE THESE PEOPLE?

Here are the names and addresses of some of your friends and neighbors, who have been cured or greatly benefited after using the Quaker Extract and Oil of Balm a few days or weeks. Bear in mind that some of these people have been sufferers for years; that they have spent thousands of dollars for different treatments, and without getting even the slightest relief, and today are enjoying perfect health, and willing to let the world know how they got it.

Little Annie Donaldson, 5 years old, expelled a monster tapeworm, alive, 41 feet long, after taking Quaker Extract only four days.

Mr. Charles Owens, 20 years of age, resides with his parents at East Point, Ga., expelled a life-sapping tapeworm, head and all complete, after taking Quaker Extract only two days, and he is well after suffering for years with what was supposed to be some form of stomach trouble.

Mr. J. S. Calicutt resides at 55 Wyman street, suffered with stomach trouble for years, bloating, belching, shortness of breath, dizziness, badly constipated; was unable to work. After taking Quaker Extract two weeks went back to work, and is feeling fine.

Mr. E. B. Venable, who is well known to the business people of Atlanta, is located at the soda fountain in The Journal building, two years ago weighed 190 pounds, commenced having pains in his bowels, stomach and liver trouble. Everything he ate caused him distress. He kept growing weaker, losing flesh, although taking treatments all the time, but nothing seemed to help him, until he called at Coursey & Munn's drug store and got a small treatment of Quaker Extract, commenced improving from the very first dose, and today is well.

Mr. A. M. Benton, who has an office in the Austell building, and his home in Commerce, Ga., suffered for fifteen years with stomach, liver, kidney trouble, badly constipated, after taking Quaker Extract five weeks, feels like a new man, and is recommending Quaker Extract to his friends.

Little Jessie Butler, 2 years old, expelled several stomach worms 12 inches in length, after taking only one single dose of Quaker Extract.

Mr. K. F. Herder, No. 70 Fowler street, who is employed as meat cutter at the Singleton market on Cone street, had stomach trouble and liver trouble, badly constipated, had tried many treatments without the least benefit, but after taking Quaker Extracta few days said: "I feel like a new man."

Mr. M. White, who is a passenger conductor on the Southern railroad, was in a rundown condition, and suffered with stomach and kidney troubles; vitality completely gone; very despondent, which caused his poor health, and had tried many treatments without relief, but after using Quaker Extract for five weeks, he feels better than for any time in years, and says Quaker Extract is the best medicine in the world.

Mrs. L. P. Moye, East Point, Ga., suffered for years with catarrh of the head, stomach and lower organs, and female trouble and after using Quaker Extract for four weeks, says she is better than at any time in years.

This is only a few of the many hundreds of people who have certified to the wonderful benefits received from the wonder Quaker Extract. The Health Teacher claims that the wonderful Quaker Extract will cure all cases of stomach, liver, kidney, bladder and female trouble, also worms.

Call today at Coursey & Munn's drug store, 29 Marietta street, for these wonderful Quaker Herb Remedies, as they always carry a fresh line of these Remedies. We prepay express charges on all orders of $3.00 or over.—(Advt.)

FIFTH IN SHOOT ON THE 10TH OF OCTOBER

Handsome Silver Trophy to Be Prize at Firing Match for Company D

The members of Company "D," Fifth regiment, national guard of Georgia will compete at a special firing match on October 10 for a handsome individual silver trophy valued at $50.

Captain W. J. Stoddard and the members of his company are all taking great interest in the coming shoot, and practically every member of the company will enter the competitive match.

Besides the members of Company "D" military men in the city generally have become interested in the coming event, and a big gallery is expected to be on the rifle range early on the morning of October 10 to watch the marksmen. Among the military men especially invited are General R. A. Evans, commander of the department of the gulf; Colonel J. T. Van Orsdale, of the Seventeenth infantry; General J. Van Holt Nash, of the national guard, and others.

The ranges shot at Company "D's" match and the number of shots fired will be the same as given in C. O. No. 4, 1913, for the record practice.

All members of the company are eligible for the competition, and the man making the highest aggregate score will be presented with the trophy, which is now on exhibit at the armory.

Among the crack marksmen of the company who are sure to compete for the cup are Captain W. J. Stoddard, Sergeant Hubert Johnson, Sergeant J. F. Bracewell, Corporal J. R. Cothran, Corporal R. G. Forsythe and Corporal J. R. Almond.

BOARD PICKS SITE FOR EAST ATLANTA SCHOOL

New High School Equipment Ordered – Appointments Announced

The board of education has selected a site for the East Atlanta graded school, on a lot measuring approximately 300 by 300 feet, on Metropolitan avenue, near South Moreland. City council must accept the site before it can be bought. The proposed purchase price of $4,500 also must be appropriated by council. Of the $40,000 that the building will cost, some $11,000 is available out of East Atlanta's proportion of the school bonds issue.

The board has ordered eighty class chairs for use in the Boys' High school. Fifteen compound miscroscopes, and a quantity of maps, charts, and other like equipment, also have been ordered. Further work on the improvement of city school grounds will have to be deferred until council appropriates more money, the $3,000 appropriation for this purpose having been exhausted.

The following promotions and appointments of teachers are announced: Miss Helen Roddey, asistant principal of the Luckie street school, has been elected principal of the new Moreland avenue school. Miss Ida Hurtell has been elected asistant principal to succeed Miss Roddey. Among the new teachers elected are Misses Rosebud Hooper, Beatrice Hartford, Irene Silvey, Anna Laura Robinson, Edna Bush and Lillian Johnson, and Mrs. Burton Cloud. Misses Louise Henderson and Grace Anderson have been elected as supernumeraries. W. A. Sutton has been elected to fill the chair of English and history in the Boys' Technological High school. Miss Sue Densimore has been designated as clerk in the superintendent's office.

SAM VENABLE INDICTED FOR ALLEGED LANGUAGE

W. B. Blount Indicted for the Same Offense at Friday's Session of Jury

Sam Venable was indicted by the grand jury Friday for using language calculated to provoke a breach of the peace, the witnesses before the grand jury being I. Springer, whom, according to the statements of the complainants, Mr. Venable made the object of his remarks, and Mrs. Springer.

W. B. Blount was indicted for the same offense, H. P. Feay making complaint.

A true bill was returned against P. W. Holingshed, treasurer of the International Brotherhood of Blacksmiths and Blacksmith's Helpers, charging him with larceny after trust. The evidence was to the effect that during April Hollingshed had misappropriated $182 of the order's money. Hollingshed says that he lost it.

A no bill was returned against C. A. Vaughn, who was charged with arson. The complaint against him was lodged several months ago by Mrs. C. A. Clapper, with whom he boarded at 256 East Hunter stret. The house was burned, and the landlady preferred charges against Vaughn. He was arrested and remained for some time at the station house. Later he made bond. When the bill was brought before the grand jury Friday Mrs. Clapper was not there to give evidence, and it was stated that she was out of the county and could not be subpenaed.

BUTCHER SHOP EMPLOYE ARRESTED FOR DESERTION

N. H. Pritchett, employed as a butcher at 77 Decatur street, was arrested last night charged with deserting his wife and children who live in Banks county.

After officers had taken him from the shop, he asked leave to return to pay a small debt that he owed to another employee. But, upon re-entering the shop, he slipped through a back door and ran toward Pryor street. He was captured after a chase and was brought to police station handcuffed.

Dedicate Scroll

The dedication of a holy scroll, made in Jerusalem and written by hand upon parchment, will take place this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Red Men's wigwam, 86 Central avenue.

This scroll was bought by D. Zabam in New York, and will be presented by him and his family to the congregation of which he is a member.

An invitation is given to the public to be present at the exercises at which the scroll will be dedicated.

H. V. Baswell Hurt

While standing on the top of a truck operated by the sanitary department of the city, at Walton and Peachtree streets shortly after 11 o'clock Saturday morning, H. V. Baswell, connected with the department, was thrown to the ground when a street car hit the vehicle. He struck on his head and was rushed to Grady hospital. An examination by attending physicians determined that he was not seriously hurt.

STATE HOTEL MEN MEET HERE DECEMBER 12-13

Delegation From Ohio Hotel Men's Association Will Visit Here Then

Atlanta will play hostess in December to a lot of merry bonifaces not only from Georgia's own hotels but from the big hostelries as well of the north and east. On December 12 and 13 the Georgia State Hotel Men's association will meet here, and at its sessions will gather the men who furnish entertainment for the weary traveler in almost every town of the state.

Just prior to that meeting, the Ohio State Hotel association will meet in Cincinnati, on December 10 and 11. That will be attended by a fine gathering of hotel men from the bigger cities of the country. They and some members of the Ohio society will come to Atlanta, by invitation, to attend the state meeting here.

From Atlanta this party, increased by new members from the Georgia gathering, will go to Jackson, Miss., to attend the state meeting there. And immediately after that, on December 16 and 17, they will be in New Orleans, at the convention of the Southern States Hotel Men's association.

The following entertainment and reception committee for the visitors has been named to represent the Atlanta Hotel Men's association: J. F. Letton, of the Hotel Ansley, chairman; H. N. Dutton, of the Piedmont; Ed L. Brown, of the Kimball, and J. T. Williams, of Durand's.

A. N. & I. I. BEGINS ITS THIRD TERM

The Atlanta Normal and Industrial institute began its third term Wednesday, September 24. The enrollment was unusually good, so it is stated. Prof. O. A. Combs, who has taught in Morris Brown college for twenty years, and who is in sympathy with the industrial idea for the masses of his race, has been added to the faculty.

A four-room house was purchased during the summer and will greatly enhance the school's usefulness for the boys and girls who must work their way. The house is badly in need of a new roof and patching. The school will especially give attention to preparing its students to work with their hands, to learn a trade of some kind.

ATTORNEYS INDICTED FOR ASSAULT AND BATTERY

True bills charging assault and battery were returned Friday by the grand jury against Burton Smith and Reuben R. Arnold, two of the most prominent attorneys of the Atlanta Bar association, the indictments growing out of a fight which occurred on May 22 during the auditor's hearing in the famous Crawford will case.

A no-bill charging the same offense was returned against J. C. Cox, a member of Mr. Arnold's office force.

QUARANTINE IS LIFTED IN OCONEE AND NEWTON

Fourteen Georgia Counties Are Now Free of Cattle Ticks

"We have just released from quarantine the counties of Oconee and Newton, which are now free from the cattle tick," said Dr. Peter F. Bohnsen, at the capitol Saturday.

"This makes fourteen counties out of 147 in Georgia which are now immune from the cattle tick, which animal pest is costing the live stock raisers thousands of dollars a year.

"Ridding the state of the cattle tick means thousands of dollars a year to live stock raisers, for with the tick out of the way it is possible to raise cattle for profit in Georgia as well as anywhere else. With Georgia as one of the largest producing states for cotton seed meal in the union and this state being rapidly freed of the cattle tick, it would seem that Georgia is destined to become a great cattle raising state as wall as cotton and corn producing state."

ATLANTIANS TO RIDE IN "SPECIAL" TO KNOXVILLE

"Chamber of Commerce Special" for Atlanta Day at Expo Announced by L. & N.

The "Chamber of Commerce Special" to Atlanta day at the Knoxville exposition was announced yesterday by the Louisville and Nashville railroad, upon authority of the transportation committee of the Atlanta chamber of commerce.

The special will leave Atlanta at 12:15 a. m. on the night of Monday, October 6, departing from the Union depot. Sleepers will be ready for their occupants at 10 o'clock. The train will arrive in Knoxville at 7 o'clock the next morning, Tuesday, October 7, Atlanta day at the big exposition. The local delegation will spend the entire day and evening in the exposition, and will leave Knoxville that night, on the same special, at 12:15 a. m., arriving in Atlanta at 7 o'clock the next morning. By this schedule the Atlanta business men who are going will lose but one day from their affairs.

A big fine time is in store for all who go, according to Colonel R. J. Lowry, who returned to Atlanta Friday after experiencing the cordial hospitality of Knoxville's citizens. The Eagles' drum and bugle corps of Atlanta will go along to kick up some music for the Atlantians. The members of the chamber of commerce transportation committee are Colonel Lowry, Major J. S. Cohen, Clark Howell, and F. N. Schraudenbach.

There Will Be No Trotting and Such At Elk Club Balls

It's all a mistake about that "abandon" of future dances in the Elks' Home of Atlanta. The entertainment committee and the house committee of the home have met and decreed formally that the announcement, published not in The Journal but in other Atlanta papers, that the authorities there had given away gracefully to the invasion of new dances, was unauthorized and not correct.

The truth of the matter is that the dances at the Elks' Home will continue as decorous as they have been heretofore. None of the so-called "animal" dances will be permitted. The bunnies can hug and the turkey can trot elsewhere, but the Elks' Home will have none of them.

In this regard the Elks' dances will be almost unique among the club affairs of Atlanta. The conservative policy which has characterized Elk dances heretofore will not be modified, say the authorities of local Elkdom, no matter what other clubs may recognize.

The first dance of the new season at the Elks' Home is to be announced shortly.

THREE "BANDITS" HELD INNOCENT, OFFICERS SAY

Sentiment Is, However, That Detectives Have Adopted Attitude for Purpose

(By Associated Press.)

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Sept. 27.—Three men are still held in jail in this city in connection with the hold-up of Alabama Great Southern passenger train about midnight Thursday night. These men are Robert Vaughan, aged about sixteen; Harry H. Poll, and John Gannon, three of the five men arrested near Eutaw last night.

Detectives and local officers claim that they do not believe the men in jail are guilty parties, but there is a feeling that this attitude is adopted for a purpose. The prisoners are being kept as much as possible from being interviewed, and the members of the train crew have been positively instructed not to discuss the situation. Detectives have made numerous more or less long trips into the country during the day, and as each returns a hurried conference is held. The chauffers have been ordered to refuse to disclose where these trips led them, and the officers are silent.

Late this evening one returning party brought a large basket containing, among other things, a coffee pot and some wearing apparel. The entire bundle was carried to a hotel room and several detectives called in for conference.

Robert Vaughan, the youngest of the trio now in jail, was interviewed this afternoon and denied any connection with the robbery, although he says the entire party was on the train. He claims to live in New Orleans, and says that he was on his way home when arrested. Poll and Gannon, although not seen by newspaper men, claim, it is said on good authority, that they are employed at one of the industries around Bessemer, Ala., near Birmingham, and that they are acquainted with Vaughan One of them, it is stated, on the same authority, claims to have boarded at the same place as Vaughan, and that the party had expressed their baggage through to New Orleans.

The men claim that they were on top of the cars when the hold-up occurred, and say that they were afraid to move for fear of being shot, and say that they did not even rise up and look. Vaughan says he was on top of the express car when the safe was dynamited and that when the hole was blown through the roof part of the debris flew up near him. He says he then crawled back on the baggage car, where the other two men say they were at the time. The stories of the three men are very similar, each and all of them claiming to have remained on top of the express car until the runaway engine stopped at Englewood, when the steam was exhausted.

Each of the men deny knowing when the runaway train was stopped for the robbers to get off, although they were all on top of the baggage car during the wild ride, claiming that they were asleep when the cars were pulled back to Tuscaloosa after being recovered, waking up at a crossing near this city. They admit that the trail the dogs took down at Phifer was made by them, and Vaughan admits that the hat found is his and that he bought it at Hull's.

The negro fireman who got a good glimpse of the robbers early today said that the men under arrest bore strong resemblance to the robbers. Later, while being interviewed by the Advertiser correspondent, the negro was called to one side by a company detective and instructed not to talk. He then became doubtful as to his identification. Express Messenger Kelly declined to state whether the men are the robbers, but it is not known what he told the officers.

Treasure of Pills Found By Bold Footpad Who Held Up Giddings Johnson

Bold Highwaymen Stop Medicine Peddler at Pistol's Point, Draw Forth Heavy Black Wallet and Locked Chest, Open It to the Pale Moon and Find—Pills

Thirty dollars worth of pills and an old land book showing grants which were made in Georgia in the days of Oglethorpe, lay in the bottom of Giddings Johnson's one-horse chaise as he jogged along last night into the suburbs of Atlanta.

He was thinking in a dejected way of the trials of a medicine peddler, when Madge, the ambling horse, shied as though she welt a returning youthfulness. Then, from out of the dark stepped four figures, and four voices directed Giddings to hold up his hands. Four highwaymen began at once to search the one-horse-shay; while Madge, lapsing back into her usual drowse, stood with her head between her knees.

One of the highwaymen exclaimed with pleasure as he lifted a heavy square object from the chaise, and dropped upon his knees before it in the roadway; yet, what he opened to the moon were land grants which were a relic of Oglethorpe, and were old when Georgia as a state was young.

But his displeasure was lost in the delight of another of the bold robbers who was dragging from the chaise a heavy box. He set it down in the dust of the road. The highwayman upon his knees rose hurriedly, the other two crowded about; and eagerly, they looked on, the moon shining palely upon them, as the box was opened.

They might have been treasure-seekers, remnants of a pirat egang, or just what they were.

The lid of the box ripped, a part of it tore loose. The remainder of the lid was pried off, and the four bold robbers, the moon shining palely upon them, bent forward, and in the wan light looked upon the treasure of $30 worth of pills.

"Why not make him take all the pills?" advised another.

But a third, with that sixth sense peculiar to real highwaymen, heard the far-off approach of a vehicle; spoke in brief, sharp words to the others, and all four melted into the shadows of the night.

Then, did Giddings Johnson remember that a shotgun lay in the bottom of the chaise. In a moment he had it out, put it to his shoulder, aimed, pulled the trigger—then remembered that he had forgotten to load it.

He got out, replaced the pills and the book of land grants returned to the chaise, drove to the nearest telephone, and gave word to the police.

This attempt at robbery took place last night at 7 o'clock at the corner of Murphy avenue and Gordon street.

BUY DIAMONDS THAT ARE WORTH WHILE

Our interests and the interests of our customers are identical. We do not mean by this merely, that it is good business to render good service.

We invest heavily in diamonds, and naturally take care that they are carefully and efficiently graded, weighed and priced. This we do ourselves as diamond specialists.

Diamonds carefully bought are an investment. They are particularly safe, marketable and appreciate in intrinsic value. They are not subject to manipulation or depreciation.

Our diamonds are marked in plain figures; nothing is hidden. If a stone is not perfect, the shape or cutting not correct, or if it is "off color" it is so marked.

Every diamond is absolutely guaranteed to be just what we sell it for, and you are therefore fully protected, as it is graded and classed to its real intrinsic value.

Let us explain personally our terms and prices on diamonds. We are never too busy to give you courteous attention, whether you are ready to buy or merely seek information.

The Piedmont, "A Byword"
With the Atlanta as Well as the Traveling Public, Wishes to Announce

"FRENCH NIGHT"
After Theater
Monday, September 29, 1913

An entertainment so gorgeous in its conception as to put into the shade anything ever attempted before in Atlanta.

The Piedmont's Gala Souvenir Nights every Monday have become "A Byword," and the encouragement given us by the public has put us on the "Qui Vive" to elaborate on our previous entertainments.

The Restaurant on "French Night" will resemble the historical Gardens of Fontainebleau at the time of Louis XIV. Every lady will be presented with a magnificent flower hat and flower cane of the style of the "Directoire;" the gentlemen with high opera hats, moustaches and goatee.

Our star, "Miss Claire Garner," will on this occasion sing some French songs, including the "Marseillaise." Miss Garner, just from successful engagements at Hammerstein's, New York, and the Majestic Theater, Chicago, has already won the hearts of the Piedmont's patrons.

Our Lady Orchestra will render French and all popular airs.

LITTLE ATLANTA

INVESTIGATE

One Hundred Dollars Reward Offered to Any Person or Party If the Following Facts Do Not Exist:

SOMETHING DOING HERE

Tignall, Ga., with a new railroad, together with the Atlanta Spirit, working night and day to complete the road, and to move the ten thousand bales of cotton being brought to Tignall from Wilkes, Lincoln and Oglethorpe counties, "and Lincoln county without a foot of railroad" in it, is creating a volume of business that the local merchants and business men cannot take care of, and the following is needed here in Tignall: Newspaper, Hotel, Furniture Store, Hardware Store, Dry Goods Store, Gents' Furnishing, Garage, Livery Stable, Lawyer, Dentist, Oil Mill, Warehouse, Brick Plant, Judware Factory (plenty of clay), Guano Factory, Knitting Mill, Millinery Store, Cigar Factory, Lumber Yard, Ice and Coal Dealer, Drug Store and numerous other enterprises.

HEART TO HEART TALK

Tignall has been 11 miles from any railroad, until now the Elberton and Eastern is just reaching town. The opportunities here are beyond anyone's conception without a visit here. If you are considering a change of location or a paying investment, investigate at once. Brick buildings going up, steam shovels working day and night, gins running at full tilt, and cotton coming 20 miles, is something you don't see every day. Investigate.

Want 50 good men who want nice farms. (Signed) BOARD OF TRADE.

The above ad appeared in last Sunday's Constitution. What we have done since it appeared is what interests us, and we believe you can be interested. "YOU WE MEAN." Wilkinson Bolton Company have finished brick store twenty-five by seventy-five feet. Dr. E. W. Ragsdale has finished his excavation for brick store twenty-five by sixty feet. Mr. B. G. Sayres has foundation laid for a brick store twenty-five by sixty, and six wagons busy hauling other material. W. J. Adams & Brother are receiving material as fast as Elberton and Eastern Railway can bring it, and with 75 men and twenty teams from their ten thousand acre farm, are breaking dirt for a fifty by seventy-five brick store. J. S. Bunch is going on, as fast as material can be had, with a nice dwelling. J. F. Witcher is nearing completion of a nice dwelling. A Cotton Warehouse of four thousand bales capacity is under way. A fifty bale capacity Cotton Gin has been completed, and ginning night and day. A big Kentucky farmer has answered our ad, and a trade is in progress for a ten thousand dollar Stock Farm. We do things---quick action will insure you something good here. The deposits of the Bank of Tignall have trebled in fifteen days. Local merchants here can not furnish the incoming trade satisfactorily. Highest cotton market in Georgia. J. J. Wilkinson and associates have organized a twenty-five thousand dollar bank, and building is being rapidly pushed. He also has a big supply store under way.

Come to Tignall and see for yourself--if you can't come, send. Write any of the above parties or the Board of Trade, Tignall, Georgia

St Paul's Publishes Directory Naming Each Of Its 2,000 Members

Through the enterprise of Rev. B. F. Fraser, pastor, and W. P. Carmichael, assistant pastor of the St. Paul Methodist church, a complete directory of the 2,000 members of this big church has just been issued.

The volume contains an interesting history of the church—the largest numerically in southern Methodism—telling of the work under each pastor since the St. Paul church sprang into existence on April 21, 1867, at the Trinity Sunday school. Since then a magnificent building has been erected and the last note on the indebtedness of the church has been paid.

The directory shows that Rev. B. F. Fraser, the present pastor, is the twenty-second pastor of the church. Sixty well known Atlantians are listed as stewards. The directory contains interesting sketches of the work of the Sunday school, the Epworth league, oman's Missionary society, Young People's Missionary society, and the nursery which has attracted the attention of workers all over the south.

The St. Paul church will begin a two weeks' revival Sunday, with Rev. L. B. Bridges preaching. The church will be dedicated by Bishop Collins Denny on October 19.

COMMISSION CONSIDERS ATLANTA BELT LINE

The legal status of the Atlanta Belt line was considered by the railroad commission during its protracted executive session Friday, and finally was submitted to the commission's special attorney. The question is—shall it be treated as a part of the Atlanta and West Point road, which owns all of the stock, or shall it be treated as an independent road, with its own tariff?

The Southern railway was directed to submit alternative plans and proposals of another site for the proposed new depot at Cornelia. Citizens there protest against the former location, and want separate freight and passenger depots.

The commission ordered the Southern railway to submit within sixty days plans for a new depot at Varnell, Whitefield county. The application of the Central of Georgia to cancel special commodity rates on short logs form local stations to Macon and Fort Valley was denied temporarily because of outstanding contracts. The Central's application for authority to cancel special commodity rates on hollow proof tiling from Macon and Milledgeville and Stephens Pottery to the ports, was granted. Its application to cancel special commodity rates on brick from Macon, Columbus, Milledgeville, Augusta and Atlanta to Savannah and Brunswick, was denied.

The commission's storage rule No. 2, providing for notice to consignees of the arrival of freight at given points, was amended so as to require the notice to state the point of origin and the initials and number of the orginal car in which shipped as well as of the car in which it arrives, and further to provide that this notice as to carload shipments only need not specify the weight.

Several cases were discussed without any action being taken upon them.

Why Third Ward Citizens Want ORVILLE H. HALL Returned to Council

Two years ago the citizens of the Third Ward were interested in securing a GOOD man to represent them in Council.

They wanted an HONEST, competent man.

They wanted a man who had been loyal to their section and whom they knew had the ability not only to secure many needed improvements, but who could help them to be rid of some of the undesirable things they had, and could prevent the further establishment of undesirable things in their section.

It was just at a time when there was much discussion, with a strong probability of LOCATING a crematory in the Third Ward.

Orville H. Hall had been one of the leaders in opposition to this move.

He had also been active, but only as a citizen, in securing the removal of the stockade nuisance.

He had co-operated with citizens' committees in getting better sanitary service and better street conditions for the Third Ward. The citizens insisted he should serve them in Council.

Almost without his consent his entrance fee into the primary was paid by these citizens and Col. Hall found himself a candidate for Councilman.

He was elected.

His past two years' service has fully justified the wisdom of the choice of the citizens.

He has been one of the most active and aggressive men in the City Council.

He has served on many important committees.

While aiding in the upbuilding of all sections of the city, he has been particularly active in GETTING great improvements for the Third Ward.

Under his administration during the past years as chairman of the Street Committee, it is an admitted fact, that he has SECURED more needed improvements for the Third Ward than she has ever gotten before in any two or more years.

He was largely instrumental in PREVENTING THE LOCATION OF A CREMATORY IN THIS SECTION.

He has been one of the leaders in the movement to remove the stockade from the Third Ward. Through his interest and efforts a SITE HAS ALREADY BEEN PURCHASED AND TWO PAYMENTS MADE ON IT, which will be the future home of this institution, and before a great while the stockade grounds and buildings will house the Tech High School.

His record is one of progress.

He has accomplished much for our section.

We want him returned to Council.

His service to the city has taken much of his time from his private business. He did not desire to continue in the Council.

But the Third Ward was not to be deprived of his services.

His experience, his knowledge of how to do things, and his willingness to do them, has again impelled the taxpayers to pay his entrance fee into the primary and put him in the race to succeed himself.

The Third Ward needs him.

He should be given an overwhelming majority vote.

We ask his friends and all citizens interested in the welfare of our section to be sure to go to the polls on Tuesday next and vote for him.

HE DESERVES THIS MUCH AT YOUR HANDS.

YOU OWE THIS MUCH TO YOURSELF AND THE THIRD WARD.

OPENING EXERCISES OF JOINT MEDICAL SCHOOLS

Two Atlanta Schools Begin First Year Under Same Management

The opening exercises of the Atlanta Medical college will be held Monday morning, September 29, at 10 o'clock. Short addresses will be made by Judge Westmoreland, the president of the board of trustees; Dr. Willis Westmoreland, president of the college; Dr. W. S. Elkin, the dean, and several members of the board of trustees. The public is cordially invited to attend.

The Atlanta Medical college is the result of the consolidation of the Atlanta College of Physicians and Surgeons and the Atlanta School of Medicine. At a meeting of the trustees of these two institutions, held on September 22, the permanent organization was perfected, the following gentlemen constituting the board of trustees of the Atlanta Medical college:

President, Judge T. P. Westmoreland; first vice president, Bishop C. K. Nelson; Mr. E. W. Martin, treasurer; Colonel J. S. Prather, secretary; Mr. Reuben R. Arnold, Mr. H. H. Cabaniss, Mr. C. E. Currier, Mr. Hugh M. Dorsey, Mr. John J. Eagan, Mr. T. A. Hammond, Judge George Hillyer, Mr. Marion Jackson, Mr. J. H. James, Mr. George S. Lowndes, Colonel Robert J. Lowry, Mr. R. F. Maddox, Mr. Wilmer L. Moore, Mr. F. J. Paxon, Mr. J. Carroll Payne, Mr. W. S. Witham.

The registration is particularly heavy this year and there will be about 420 students in attendance, divided as follows: Freshmen, 60; sophomore, 120; junior, 120; senior, 120.

NORTH CAROLINA WILL HAVE "GOOD ROADS DAY"

Governor Craig Calls on All Citizens to Shoulder Pick and Shovel

(By Associated Press.)

RALEIGH, N. C., Sept. 27.—Declaring that the people of North Carolina lose twelve million dollars annually because of the poor condition of the state's highways, Governor Locke Craig today issued a proclamation designating November 5 and 6, as "good roads days," and calling upon all patriotic people throughout the state to work upon the public roads of the state on those dates.

The governor pointed out that the modern highway is essential to the material prosperity and social advancement of every community, and declared the country has awakened to the importance of improved roads. "Everywhere," he said, "there is a generous rivalry to have the best, and everywhere enthusiasm for them is apparent and increasing."

Characterizing the vast sum lost annually to the people of North Carolina through lack of good roads as "a tribute paid to mud." Governor Craig's proclamation calls upon "every able-bodied man to shoulder his shovel, march out and strike a blow for progress." The "good roads days" are appointed as "days of festival, to celebrate the beginning of a new era wherein improved highways shall be built in every neighborhood."

Summoning the people of every station to answer the call of patriotism, the proclamation calls on the "farmer, the merchant, the lawyer, the doctor, the minister of the gospel, the rich and the poor to enlist as volunteers in this mighty army for grand accomplishment."

SMITH CANDIDATE TO CONTEST NON-ELECTION

Alderman Who Lost to Miller Men Will Bring Charges Against Them

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

MACON, Ga., Sept. 27.—A notice of a contest wes filed by J. W. Ramsey, one of the defeated candidates for alderman on Mr. Smith's ticket in the Second ward. According to the consolidated vote, Mr. Ramsey received 1,886 votes, while the lowest candidate elected from the Second ward, Will R. Evans, received 1,975 votes.

The committee designated next Thursday night at 8 o'clock as the time for hearing Mr. Ramsey's evidence on which he hopes to sustain his charges.

The charges must be submitted to the sub committee by next Tuesday at noon and will be submitted to the three candidates who were today declared elected aldermen from the Second ward.

Walter Defore has been engaged to represent the winning candidates, who are W. O. Stevens, B. F. Merritt and Will R. Evans. They were all three candidates on Wallace Miller's ticket.

MACON RIFLE TEAMS MAY HAVE CONTEST

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

MACON, Ga., Sept. 27.—Rifle teams representing the Macon Hussars and the field and staff of the Second Georgia regiment, may meet again on the rifle range before the present rifle season closes.

In the annual regimental meet held at Holton Thursday, the field and staff team won the regimental trophy by a few points and if the two teams should meet again a good rifle contest might be expected. It is understood the Hussars will request the field and staff team to meet them on the range some time next week.

FOUND BODY OF WOMAN MISSING SINCE AUG. 29

(By Associated Press.)

PERU, Ind., Sept. 27.—While cutting corn in a field near Cassville, south of Peru, late yesterday afternoon, farm hands found a new grave and upon investigation it was learned that it contained the badly decomposed body of Mrs. Clyde Wilkinson, forty years old.

She had been missing since August 29. About that time her husband had a public sale and it was said here that he disappeared. As neither was seen in that vicinity it was presumed they had gone away together.

Representative Bryan Dies.

RINGGOLD, Ga., Sept. 27.—Mr. J. C. Bryan, representative of Catoosa county, died this morning at 11 o'clock from a stroke of paralysis. He was sixty-one years old. He leaves a wife and three children.

Manufacturer Dead

EASTON, Pa., Sept. 27.—Herman Simon, said to be the largest individual manufacturer of silks in the world, died today in the office of his Easton mills. Several days ago Mr. Simon was stricken with heart trouble in his office and his condition was so grave that he could not be removed. His home was in this city.

Charlotte Officer Again Speeds Prisoners Away While Court Is Waiting

J. D. Johnson Didn't Linger to Say Good-Bye to Justice Jordan After Judge Bell Had Dismissed Writ for His Prisoners

J. D. Johnson, Charlotte policeman, is on his way to North Carolina with his two prisoners, W. M. Cleveland and J. P. Smith.

Johnson didn't tarry to say good-bye to Justice W. T. Jordan, who Friday issued a warrant, charging the policeman with kidnaping the men whom he brought here from Birmingham.

Saturday at 1 o'clock at the conclusion of the hearing of a writ of habeas corpus, which was denied Cleveland and Smith by Judge George L. Bell, of the superior court, Policeman Johnson loudly announced that he would turn the two men over to the city detectives to hold until Saturday evening in order that he might appear in Judge Jordan's court at 4 o'clock to answer the charges against himself.

Having delivered this statement in a voice which rang through the big court room, Johnson took himself off towards the terminal station, announcing soto voce to a friendly city policeman that he was going just as far as he could.

Presumably the Charlotte officer was some distance at 4 o'clock, for he did not answer when his name was called by Justice Jordan.

The justice of the peace allowed the officer to go on his own recognizance when he was first arested Friday, but when he failed to appear for trial, the justice instructed his three bailiffs to arrest Johnson on sight.

The bailiffs don't expect to catch sight of him for several years to come.

NOW AFTER CHIEF.

G. W. Lindsay, Birmingham lawyer, who followed his two clients to Atlanta when they were spirited away from his home city, appeared in the justice of the peace court to prosecute Johnson, who he says literally kidnaped Cleveland and Smith. When Johnson failed to appear the Coal City attorney consoled himself with the knowledge that Chief George H. Bodaeker is still in Birmingham. Mr. Lindsay declares that he is going to ask Judge William T. Fort, of the criminal court of Jefferson county, to arraign Bodaeker for contenmpt on the ground that he assisted the Charlotte officer in spiriting the prisoners away and thus violating the court's order.

"The kidnaping of prisoners has gotten to be a habit in Birmingham," the attorney asserted, "but I believe that the practice can be stopped by pushing this case, one of the most flagrant of which I have ever known the Birmingham police to be guilty."

The journey of Johnson and his two prisoners from Alabama to North Carolina was interrupted Friday, when they reached here, by the warrant sworn out in Judge Jordan's court by Attorneys Jackson & Gober, who had been requested by wire by Attorney Lindsay to assist him.

The local attorneys, immediately after they had stopped all parties, drew out a writ of habeas corpus for Cleveland and Smith.

IN CONTEMPT OF COURT.

Judge George L. Bell, who heard the case, declared that Johnson was clearly in contempt of the Alabama courts, since he had spirited the man away while their appeal was pending, but he said that he had no jurisdiction in the matter here. As a result, he remanded the prisoners to the custody of Policeman Johnson.

Then there was a fight in the court room over the prisoners between a bailiff from Judge Jordan's court, who wanted them as witnesses, and the city detectives, who were co-operating with the Charlotte officer. The trouble was quickly stopped by the court, who ordered other officers to allow the Charlotte man to take charge of the prisoners.

The chief of police of Charlotte and an attorney from that place were in Atlanta to assist Johnson, but nothing has been seen of them since hearing of the habeas corpus.

GOVERNMENT ISSUES LIST OF ACCREDITED SCHOOLS

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—Because of the fact that a thousand miles counts for little nowadays and that the principal of a high school in San Francisco Denver or Seattle is likely to be called on at any time in admitting new students to pass on the standards and standing of secondary schools in Halden, Mass., Sumter, S. C., San Antonio, Texas, or any other place, the United States bureau of education has prepared an accredited list of the secondary schools in the country.

Both public and private schools are represented on the list, which is intended mainly as a guide to school and college officers in admitting students to advanced high school standing or to college. Incidentally it reveals the marked improvement which has taken place of recent years in secondary education in the United States.

FAMOUS NECKLACE SOLD FOR $700,000

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Sept. 27.—The famous $625,000 pearl necklace which was stolen from the mails and later picked up by a workman on a London sidewalk, was sold today to Mlle. Du Monceau de Bergendael, of this city, for $700,000. Mlle. de Bergendael is said to be acting for a "celebrated personage."

The contract with the London jewelry dealer stipulates that if the two pearls missing when the necklace was found should be recovered, the price will be increased to $750,000.

Grocery Robbed

Reports to the police Saturday morning were that $5 had been stolen overnight from the cash register at 20 East Mitchell street, and that $10 worth of groceries had been taken from the store at 210 Bellwood avenue. In each instance the burglar broke in through a rear window.

"All is Well That Ends Well"

Along with dyspepsia comes nervousness, sleeplessness and general ill health. Why? Because a disordered stomach does not permit the food to be assimilated and carried to the blood. On the other hand, the blood is charged with poisons which come from this disordered digestion. In turn, the nerves are not fed on good, red blood and we see those symptoms of nervous breakdown. It is not head work that does it, but poor stomach work. With poor thin blood the body is not protected against the attack of germs of grip—bronchitis—consumption. Fortify the body now with

Albert Thomson States His Platform

ALBERT D. THOMSON.

To the People of Atlanta:

After serving one term (two years) as Councilman from the Fourth Ward, I am a candidate for Alderman from that ward.

I am opposed by Mr. Amos Brasleton, against whom personally I have nothing to say.

But there is a moral issue between us that vitally concerns every citizen of this city.

Atlanta's prenomenal growth in population and in prosperity is due, in a large measure, to the fact that the moral element of the community has always been ascendant.

Atlanta is known throughout the State and the Nation as a City where the laws are enforced.

As a citizen of Atlanta I want her to continue to deserve and enjoy that reputation.

If Atlanta is to keep on growing and keep on prospering, it is necessary that her home-loving, law-abiding citizens shall continue in control of her public affairs.

As a private citizen I am not, and never will be, in favor of a "wide-open town." As an Alderman, if I am elected, I will not favor a "wide-open town."

Atlanta is too great and too fine a City to turn over to gamblers, white slavers and prostitutes.

As a Councilman I have voted for every progressive measure introduced in the General Council during my term. In 1912 I was chairman of the Park Committee of the General Council, which brought me in touch with the City's park system, and I am proud to say I contributed my share to the development accomplished.

If I am elected Alderman, there are two or three things in particular to which I shall devote my energies.

FIRST—The City needs a topographical map, so that sewers can be laid properly, and so that streets can be adjusted to correct grades for all time.

SECOND—The City needs a City Plan, so that our development can be shaped to definite ends, instead of developing by haphazard.

THIRD—There should be established next year at Lakewood Park a public bathing place; and as soon as the City's finances will permit, Lakewood should be developed to the highest, according to an expert landscape architect's plan.

In conclusion, I wish to say that so far as "trusting the people" is concerned, as a citizen and a Councilman I voted for the Initiative, Referendum and Recall, which to my mind is a perfectly effective instrument whereby the people can control their public affairs and public servants.

As to the Charter, I am and always have been willing for the people of Atlanta to have any sort of a Charter they want.

Respectfully,

Albert D. Thomson

GIRLS! LOTS OF BEAUTIFUL, GLOSSY HAIR! NO MORE DANDRUFF—25-CENT DANDERINE

Hair coming out? If dry, thin, faded, bring back its color and lustre

Within ten minutes after an application of Danderine you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, fadad, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance.

Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all—you surely can have beautiful hair and lots of it if you will just try a little Danderine.

Von Skibinsky Recital at

WASHINGTON SEMINARY

Friday evening, October 3d.

ALEX. V. SKIBINSKY.

Eminent Russian Concert Violinist, Professor in Washington Seminary.

The program for this recital is as follows: Tschalkowsky Concerto D; Compositions of Matheson, Dittersdorf, Dvorak (Humoresque), Sarosate, Ries (perpetual motion), Skibinsky and Wieniawsky.

The public is cordially invited.

J. N. RENFROE MAKES CLEAR STATEMENT OF CANDIDACY

I am asking your support of my candidacy for Council from the First Ward and I want to tell you, in this public manner, how I shall stand upon matters of importance to our ward and to the city at large, if I am elected.

I shall continue to urge the widening of West Hunter street; the widening, regrading and repairing of West Mitchell street, the widening and improving of Walker and Nelson streets and the regrading of Whitehall street.

The proposed viaducts from Alabama St., to Rhodes St., and from Spring street to the Terminal Station are of vital importance, not only to our ward but to the entire city. I shall not only push this, but I will be one of 200 other citizens of Atlanta to give $500 each in order to start this work. This will create a fund of $100,000. I believe the Street Car Company would give twice this amount, making $300,000, and I am sure the city would give the balance. I am ready to deposit a certified check right now.

I will also give $100 with 100 other citizens for the construction of a new, modern brick school on Davis street, to take the place of the present fire-trap. This school has the finest park and playground of any school in the city, and one of the smartest principals I ever met If elected, I shall work unceasingly to provide adequate school and park facilities for this and other wards.

JAMES N. RENFROE.

I am not now and never have been connected with or financially interested in any public service corporation.

I have been a citzen of the First Ward for thirty-five years. I have endeavored to serve in the ranks to the best of my ability. I believe the citizens of this ward wish to be represented by an active, energetic, business man. My experience and knowledge of conditions will enable me to serve my ward and the entire city efficiently. My ambition is a laudable one and I sincerely request your support.

J. N. RENFROE.

MYSTERIOUS WOMAN IN SULZER CASE SOUGHT

She Is Said to Have Been Familiar With Wall Street Deals

(By Associated Press.)

ALBANY, N. Y., Sept. 27.—A mysterious woman, who is believed by the board of managers of the impeachment trial of Governor Sulzer to be conversant with many of his Wall street transactions, is being sought. Detectives have been searching for her in New York for weeks, it was learned today, but have been unable to locate her.

On one occasion a detective called at her home and a woman who answered the door said she was the much-wanted witness. But the process servers, convinced that they were talking with a maid, left without serving the papers.

The search has not been abandoned, however, and there exists a possibility, it is believed, of serving her yet. Several detectives are looking for her. Her testimony is desired to be introduced next week along with that regarding the governor's deals in stocks.

None of the transactions was made directly through her as the governor's agent, it is said, but she is believed to know much of the manner in which the deals between him and his agent, or agents, were consummated.

Frederick L. Colwell, the governor's alleged "dummy" in certain Wall street ventures, was not produced by attorneys for the defense today, and tonight it appears more unlikely than ever that he will testify. Friends of the governor said that illness might prevent Colwell from taking the stand. They further explain that his ill health has had much to do with his not being seen recently. They still were firm in their assertion, however, that he was not attempting to conceal himself and would be a willing witness, if able.

Charges that the governor bartered his political influence will be taken up early next week, it developed today. Two witnesses, Chester C. Platt, the governor's secretary, and John A. Waldron, a recorder of executive bills, have been served with subpoenas duces tecum in connection with this feature of the case.

Platt was ordered to produce the reports of John Carlisle, state highway commissioner, in connection with certain projected road improvements in the counties of Greene, Essex and Warren. The reports were made while Carlisle was a member of a committee of inquiry appointed by the governor. The report opposed approval of the bill for improvement in Greene county. Waldron must produce the bills.

According to a charge made by Eugene Lamb Richards in his opening address on behalf of the assembly managers, $190,000 was expended from the general fund of the state for the Greene highway. It is alleged that the governor signed the bill in exchange for the vote of Assemblymen J. Lewis Patrie for his direct primaries bill.

A similar trade is alleged to have been effected between Assemblyman E. G. Prime, Jr., and the governor. Richards charged in his speech that the governor told Prime his motto was: "You for me and me for you."

At the extraordinary session of the legislature Prime voted for the governor's direct primary bill, and Mr. Richards, in speaking of this, called attention to the fact that Prime had not voted on the bill at the regular session.

What final disposition will be made of the case of James C. Garrison, who is held in the Albany county penitentiary for contempt of the assembly, was the subject of much discussion today. After Supreme Court Justice Cochrane, at Hudson, had denied Garrison's application for a writ of habeas corpus on the ground that the court was without jurisdiction, Garrison was returned to the penitentiary. His friends plan to use every effort to induce the assembleymen to release the prisoner when the assembly reconvenes on October 6.

There was much speculation in Albany today as to what will be the nature of the defense of Governor Sulzer. It is stated that even the governor's attorneys do not know at this time just what his entire defense will be. This is due to the fact that much new evidence of which they had not the slightest knowledge before the trial began, is being introduced. One feature of the defense will be that most of the unlisted contributions were given the governor for his personal use.

Thought Robber Friend

James Costner, sixteen years old, of 13 Estoria street, was held up and his hand badly cut by a footbad who, at first, Costner had thought was a friend.

Costner was on his way when at Boulevard and Wyman street he was accosted by a young fellow about nineteen who asked him if he had any money.

"Sure" said Costner, thinking it was a friend playing a joke on him. He pulled his pocketbook from his pocket and the footpad slashed his hand with his knife.

Costner held his pocketbook and fought the robber, who was finally worsted and ran away. The police are looking for him.

Auto Located

Eugene R. Barmore, a contractor, of Capitol avenue, was notified last night that his automobile had been found at Piedmont park.

Mr. Barmore was not aware of its loss. It is probable that a joy rider had took it out.

PROGRESSIVES NOMINATE JUDGESHIP CANDIDATES

Col. Roosevelt's "Humanity and Justice" Plea Was Keynote

(By Associated Press.)

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Sept. 27.—United States District Judge Learned Hand, a Progressive, and Supreme Justice Samuel Seabury, a Progressive-Democrat, today were nominated for chief justice and associate judge of the court of appeals, respectively, by the Progressive state committee, in session here, upon recommendation of the Progressive state conference. Both are residents of New York City. The conference heard an address by former President Roosevelt.

The plea of Colonel Roosevelt that the state courts be "recalled from legalism to humanity and justice" was the keynote of nominating speeches.

Judge Hand, who was nominated for chief judge on April 28, 1909, was appointed a United States judge for the southern district of New York by President Taft.

The platform adopted by the conference reaffirms the principles enunciated by the national and state platforms of 1912. Of the high court of impeachment the platform says:

"Much of the evidence was a familiar detail to Tammany leaders long before the impeachment proceedings were thought of. The Tammany mind was not at that time immoral. It became immoral only when the newly elected governor proposed to carry out his party's platform and aid in the writing of a genuine direct primary law upon the statute books, and when investigation by the governor began to disclose gerat frauds.

"The responsibility for the shame of the commonwealth is not upon Tammany Hall alone. The Barnes machine in every crisis has been a faithful and effective coadjutor of the Murphy machine."

MAJOR MURPHY'S SONG FIGURES IN DIVORCE CASE

(By Associated Press.)

MONROE, La., Sept. 27.—That Mrs. Bessie C. Merriam, who is defending a divorce suit of Captain Henry C. Merriam, in San Francisco, had nothing to do with the song "At the Grindin' of the Cane," which has figured in the case, was the statement of Mrs. P. H. Chauvan, of Monroe, La., today.

After "Major" Clarence Murphy wrote the song Mrs. Chauvan, then Miss Coralie Renaud, of New Orleans, wrote an inscription on the cover with which the prosecution has tried to connect Mrs. Merriam. Mrs. Chauvan at first denied she had written the inscription.

IMPRESSIVE FUNERAL OF RODDENBERY TODAY

Delegation From Congress and Hundreds of Citizens to Attend Services

THOMASVILLE, Ga., Sept. 27.—To receive the congressional delegation which will arrive here tomorrow morning from Washington to attend the funeral of Congressman S. A. Roddenbery, Mayor Luke has appointed a committee of prominent citizens consisting of A. H. S. Cook, H. W. Hopkins, J. H. Merrill, H. J. MacIntyre, C. H. Hansell, J. H. Flowers, J. T. Culpepper, L. H. Jerger, W. J. Hammond, W. H. Hammond, W. H. Brandon, W. H. Rockwell, C. A. Cochran, T. M. McIntosh, J. L. Turner, C. T. Gandy, W. D. Hargrave, W. A. Watt, S. W. Davis, H. D. Phillips, J. W. L. Yates, W. Ferberg.

These gentlemen will meet the delegation at the train and escort them to the Tosco hotel for breakfast, after which they will be taken to the home of the late congressman on Hansell street, where by his special request the funeral services will be held.

These services, which will be at 10:30 o'clock, will be conducted by Rev. J. M. Rushin, of Boston, a Baptist preacher, of which denomination Mr. Roddenbery was a member. He was also an especially warm friend of the late congressman. By Mr. Roddenbery's request, the services will be short and very simple in their nature. All arrangements for his funeral were made by him before his death with a view of saving his family the trial of going into the details.

That the funeral tomorrow will be the largest ever seen in Thomasville there is no doubt. There will be no services in any of the churches here during the morning, and it is safe to say that every citizen, old or young, will attend the funeral if possible. In addition, many are coming from all over the Second district and from nearby towns outside it. Hundreds of telegrams of sympathy from all parts of the country have been received by the family.

POLICE TRY TO DRAW MOON IN DENTON CASE

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Sept. 27.—The Birmingham police are attempting to connect W. A. Moon, the young white man, who is believed to be wanted in Tallahassee, Fla., with the alleged kidnaping of Eunice Dease and Elise Elliot by J. L. Denton, the well-known Atlanta contractor.

The Dease girl admitted to Miss M. A. Hutchinson, who arrested the two girls, that she was in Moon's company on the train coming over to Atlanta, and that she took dinner with him.

Moon has been under arrest several days and will say nothing to reporters. It is reported here that friends of Denton hope to use Moon as a witness in clearing Denton.

Baby Girl Found Lying in Middle Of Railroad Track

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

MACON, Ga., Sept. 27.—While walking along the track of the Central of Georgia railroad near the M. and A. junction, three miles from the city, at 7 o'clock this morning, W. S. Daniels, a section foreman, nearly stumbled upon what appeared to be a bundle of clothes. Stooping to pick it up, he was amazed to discover that the object was a tiny baby, lying face downward in the dirt and cinders.

Its little eyes were almost blinded with tears and dirt and its face was badly bruised. However, the child was very much alive and in lusty shape. It had evidently cried for hours until exhausted, for all it could do was sob and in a heart-rendering manner.

The baby, a girl with luxuriant dark hair, was wrapped up in two outing kimonos and was also tied in a sling to which was attached a rope made of cloth torn from a woman's underdress. Apparently the infant had been lowered out of a train window and dropped near the track during the night. This is the only supposition arrived at by those who investigated the circumstances.

MILLIONAIRE BIXBY'S CASE TO JURY MONDAY

Californian Is Charged With Statutory Offenses Against Girls

(By Associated Press.)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 27.—The case of George H. Bixby, the millionaire charged with statutory offenses against girls, will be in the hands of the jury Monday afternoon. Testimony was completed today and Judge B. F. Bledsoe limited arguments to three hours for each side so that the charge could be given by Monday afternoon.

The offense charged is a high misdemeanor, set forth in an indictment based on allegations made by Cleo Helen Barker, a nineteen-year-old girl. A second indictment charging Bixby with practically the same offense against Irene Marie Brown Levy, is still pending.

C. C. McDonald Indorsed by Prominent Business Men, Also Members O. R. C.

The city primary, to be held next Tuesday, is attracting considerable attention because of the opposition of a number of the members of the present council and aldermanic board who are candidates for reelection. This race is run in the third ward where C. C. McDonald, is candidate for alderman against the present incumbent, James E. Warren.

Mr. McDonald has been a resident of the ward he aspires to represent for many years and has stood for every improvement possible in that section. While he has never held public office, he has by his public spirit and zeal, done valuable service on many occasions for the third ward and Atlanta. Mr. McDonald has been a member of the Order of Railway Conductors since 1887. When he left the employ of the Southern railway he did so to go into business in his home ward. While not claiming to be a man of wealth, he has accumulated enough to demonstrate his good judgment in caring for his own affairs. A man capable of acting for the city should prove worthy of good will and the friendship of those with whom he is brought in contact. Mr. McDonald is rated as one of the most reliable men ever with the Southern railway. Since his entry into business he has received the highest indorsement:

We the undersigned wholesale and retail grocers and commission merchants of Atlanta take pleasure in testifying to the business ability and business integrity of Mr. C. C. McDonald. We have known him for a number of years and our business and personal relations have been highly satisfactory.

We are glad to be able to testify to his high moral character as well as to his business ability.

C. C. M'DONALD.

Mr. McDonald has not severed his connection with the Atlanta division of the Order of Railway Conductors. This lost no time in indorsing Mr. McDonald as soon as he announced his candidacy for Alderman:

"Mr. C. C. McDonald.

"Dear Sir and Brother: It affords me much pleasure to inform you that the Atlanta division of the Order of Railway Conductors and the legislative committee of the order have unanimously indorsed you for Alderman from the Third Ward. To those who know you like your brother conductors, you need no indorsement, for we know you to be a man of sound principle and good judgment and are satisfied that you can and will fill the office with credit and honor to yourself and your friends. We trust that those who have the interests of the city at stake will feel it to their interests to cast their vote for you. We know that you are a man in whom they can place any trust and that you will work for the good of all.

Yours in P. F.,
E. A. WARWICK, Secty."

A like action has been taken by Georgia Division O. R. C. and a letter announcing the fact has been sent to Mr. McDonald by W. N. Hawkins, secretary and treasurer.

Mr. McDonald feels a pardonable pride in these indorsements and has allowed them to be published. He is strongly supported by those who know him best.

Mr. McDonald is a man of the people and feels that the people should at all times have the right to decide questions of public government in whatever manner they deem best for themselves. He feels sure that those who vote for men to fill public office should have the right to say what they desire those officers to do. He is in favor of an economical and conservative handling of the city's finances. He is opposed to any increase of taxes until ABSOLUTELY NECESSARY.—(Advt.)

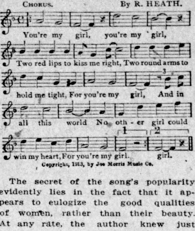
SWEET GIRL'S DELIGHT

Pretty Love Song That Seems to Appeal to the Fair Sex

A new song is now the vogue of New York with the plain title of "You're My Girl." It has only been out a few days, but thousands of copies have already been sold. The composition is one of those simple affairs that appeals to women, and, strange to say, there is not a high note in the entire song. Here is part of the chorus:

YOU'RE MY GIRL

CHORUS. By R. HEATH.



You're my girl, you're my girl,
Two red lips to kiss me right, Two round arms to hold me tight, For you're my girl, And in all this world No oth - er girl could win my heart, For you're my girl. girl.

Copyright, 1913, by Joe Morris Music Co.

The secret of the song's popularity evidently lies in the fact that it appears to eulogize the good qualities of women, rather than their beauty. At any rate, the author knew just what he was doing, for the fair sex think the song is just about the right thing. The music seems to be very catchy.—(Advt.)

JOURNAL WANT AD Horoscope

SEPTEMBER 29.

A person of this birthdate dislikes hard or dirty work and will go without the necessities of life rather than work in surroundings that do not please. Libra is the governing planet.

When awake to their spiritual forces, there is no goal of human attainment which the "Libra" people may not reach.

Venus gives great sex attractions and as Venus is the governing planet of this birthdate, wisdom should be exercised in the choice of companions.

Libra people or those born between September 23 and October 23 will find the highest companionship and the most congenial friends among "fire people" or those born between March 21 and April 19.

Or they will be happy with those born under the sign Aquarius between January 20 and February 19.

The Journal Want Ads will bring good results to those wishing to sell manufacturing sites, apartment houses, hotel or restaurants.

Some Want Ads are inserted free in The Journal. For charge ads, ask that they be sent for, or telephone them to Main 2000, or Atlanta 426.

The Importance of Planting Small Grain During the Fall of the Year

THERE is another beauty about a man planting oats on his land. He is sure to improve it. Nearly all of our southern lands need vegetable matter, and oats leave a large amount of stubble and humous in the soil which leaves it open so it can take air and water, and by the use of acid phosphate or Tennessee phosphate rock used on this land that is so thoroughly filled with vegetable matter it makes available an unlimited amount of food for your growing crop that should follow afterward. By our taking care of our lands in planting oats, crimson clover, alfalfa and peas we are not only making our ground rich while we are growing these profitable crops, but we are fixing them so that they will make twice to four times as much cotton and corn per acre as we have been making in former years. There are but few sections of country that have the climate that will enable them to grow an oat crop and then make another crop just as valuable on the same land.

There is no reason why we should not have a big cereal factory to manufacture oat flakes, pin head oat meal and other oat products, the same as there is in the west. Because, with our longer seasons we can grow an oat, either the Fulgum or the Bancroft, that is an extra large, fat, heavy oat that will make a quality of oat flake that I do not believe could be made out of any western or even irrigated grown oat that would be anything like the equal of the oats grown in this country. I have seen oats of these two varieties weigh forty pounds to the measured bushel, showing that they have the weight, are large in size and are invaluable. They are different by far from many of the small husky oats that are now used for this purpose. A big cereal factory established somewhere in the south would be a big thing for this country.

I have visited two parts of country this year that have built poor worn out $1 to $5 an acre land less than ten years ago to such a stage that this year these lands have produced from fifty to one hundred bushels of oats per acre, and these two parties have harvested this year close to 12,000 bushels of oats. And, the lands are now growing a magnificent crop of peas. At one of these places I saw more than 600 acres of peas growing. It has thoroughly convinced me that the possibilities of oat growing and feed production in this country will revolutionize our possibilities sooner or later, and further has convinced me that oat and pea growing is by far more profitable than cotton or corn growing. It can be done in unlimited amounts and all done with machinery. It can be done in unlimited the southern farmer is sooner or later going to be compelled to resort to handle our crops.

With the encouragement and education of oat growing in the south sooner or later would soon stop some of the $37,000,000 going out of Georgia for food products. Furthermore it would increase the growing of hogs, cattle, horses, also poultry if more grain was raised in our country. It would be a big thing for the south to organize oat and pea growing clubs over the country the same as has been done with the corn clubs. The corn clubs have served a great purpose. They have been started, are doing the work intended and will continue to do so. Now something else that is just as badly needed should be taken up and pushed in the same manner, and nothing will pay the country better than to encourage the alfalfa club, an oat club, potato club and others on similar lines. It is surprising how much good work can be done by the agitating and organization of such clubs. The corn club demonstration has proven that it is worth while, and while many who have to spend time and money to do this work and never get revenue in return, yet there is a certain amount of this kind of work that people have to do. It is put on them, and in a round about way it comes home sooner or later, and in time to come many receive a reward for this work that they are entitled to. If it were not for the ambition, push and energy in men to do such work the entire country would soon stop, but hundreds are working nowadays for the benefit of the country as much if not more so than they are for the almighty dollar. While the dollar is the most valuable asset and we cannot get along without it, still by the untiring efforts and work of many who are not directly benefited at once in dollars and cents for their efforts they are usually liberally rewarded in years to come for the good work they are doing and for helping our country as many are now doing.

The hilly, red lands of Georgia, Alabama and South Carolina are ideal places for the growing of oats. They help preserve and keep much of this cover land from washing away, and it is astonishing the food elements that are raked up in these old red hills that can so easily be made available and converted into wonderful yields of food when once planted in small grain, peas, clover and alfalfa. And, by the use of acid phosphate which is the principal and most essential of all commercial fertilizers it unlocks and makes available with this vegetable matter food elements in these soils that have value that is unknown.

The growing of more oats and grain of all kinds in the south, together with our monopoly of the cotton crop will eventually make our country one of the greatest sections on the globe. With the splendid seasons we now have for doing this work every one should get planted as many acres as possible in oats during October and November, and you will never regret taking up this work.

Yours very truly,

FEED FEED

LISTEN, POULTRY RAISERS!

FROM reading poultry journals and poultry papers geenrally, it seems in the last year a good many who have attempted to get rich quick by raising fancy birds and eggs at fancy prices have failed in their efforts and have quit the poultry business. It seems evident from reading the papers that the commercial side of the poultry business is just starting and is here to stay. High priced beef and pork is making it necessary for the farmers as well as the family on a town lot to raise poultry especially so they may have fresh eggs. Now there is no doubt that the hen either on the farm or on the town lot, will pay if kept free of insects and fed correctly, and to feed correctly you must feed the necessary ingredients required to make the egg. If you do not the hen can not lay, and in addition to feeding the right kind of food, you must know that your feed per hen is not costing you more than you can sell the eggs for. Have you figured what it cost to feed your hens scratch or hen feen made of mixed grains such as you buy from your dealer? If you only give your hens a half a pound a day each it will cost at present prices, 1 1-4 cents per day to feed each hen, which is $4.56 a year your hen has cost you. Now if the hen has laid 180 eggs, fifteen dozen during the year and you average 30 cents per dozen then your hen has laid you $4.50 worth of eggs and she has cost you $4.56. Now as a successful egg raiser I tell you there is no man or woman that can make their hens pay by pouring grain or scratch feed down the hen. If you will only think for a minute the word scratch feed on the bag means the scratch feed is only made to feed the hens in a small way to make her scratch for exercise. While Aunt Patsy Poultry Feed is an egg producer, composed of every ingredient of which the egg is made; it at the same time contains everything the hen needs in the way of feed and if fed as per instructions in each bag, the hen can not help herself; she must lay. Now as to the cost: 100 pounds of Aunt Patsy will feed twenty hens thirty days. Now suppose you pay $3 for 100 pounds that is a half a cent a day to feed each hen or $1.82 per year; now if your hen lays 180 eggs, fifteen dozen, and you sell them at 30c per dozen, your hen has made you gross $4.50; deduct cost of Aunt Patsy Feed, $1.82, and your hen has netted you $2.68 for each hen while on scratch feed as shown above you lose on each hen. Ask your dealer for this feed.

SEED, PET STOCK, SUPPLIES

H. G. HASTINGS & CO.
Seeds, Bulbs and Poultry Supplies
Both Phones 2568.

IF YOU are going to fix your lawn up, you should do it in the next thirty days, seed sown now will get a good start before the cold weather comes. English rye grass sown on a Bermuda lawn, will come up in a few days and make a pretty green lawn all winter and last until the Bermuda comes out in the spring, for a lawn 50x50, five pounds of seed is sufficient to sow it. The price is 10c a pound. For a new lawn we would advise using our Evergreen Lawn Mixture, it is composed of both winter and summer grasses and if properly cared for will stay green winter and summer. This mixture sells at 20c per pound; $2.50 per bushel of 14 pounds.

SOON be time to use flower pots, we have all sizes, also saucers and bulb pans.

WE HAVE a beautiful lot of Gold Fish at 10, 15 and 25 cents each. Globes, 25 cents to $3.00.

CANARY BIRDS and cages.

WHEAT makes a fine feed for chickens during their moult, we have some extra good stock at $1.50 per bushel.

CHICKEN CORN, small grains, $1.00 per bushel.

RED COMB SCRATCH FEED, $2.35 per 100 lbs.

HAVE YOU planted some Narcissus for Thanksgiving blooming? They should be started right away, our bulbs are extra large and sure bloomers. 25 cents a dozen.

FEED CONKEY'S LAYING TONIC during the moult, it insures a quick and complete moult and that means plenty of eggs during the winter.

SOON be time to start up incubators. We are sole agents for the famous Cypher Incubator and Brooders, acknowledged by leading poultrymen to be the best made, let us send you a catalogue.

ALFALFA

NOW IS the time to plant alfalfa, crimson clover and vetch. Use inoculin and it will insure a perfect stand and success will make your land rich by filling the ground with nitrogen enough to treat seed for one acre $2, 5 acres $9. Raise your own hay. Plant alfalfa and you can always have plenty hay. You cn find out how to do it by addressing Southern Inoculin Laboratories, Box 541, Atlanta, Ga.

WEARY WOMEN RESTED

BY SAVING TIME AND STEPS AND STANDING WITH A HOOSIER KITCHEN CABINET

There are 500,000 women in the United States who have learned how to make kitchen work easy.

They are NOT WALKING back and forth between pantry and cupboard and kitchen table, collecting the dishes and utensils and supplies they need in cooking and putting them away again.

They are not standing long, back-breaking hours over the kitchen table.

They have abolished all this dangerous, health-sapping drudgery, and are saving hours of time with that wonderful miracle worker, The Hoosier Kitchen Cabinet.

Once you get your Hoosier you can lock up your pantry and cupboard and forget that you have a store room.

It holds everything you need in cooking—supplies, dishes and utensils—is fitted completely with convenient, sanitary receptacles.

Flour is in a metal lined bin, fitted with a sifter; sugar in another; there are crystal jars for coffee, tea and spices. Your table top, which pulls out to size of 40 inches—larger than the average kitchen table—is covered with pure aluminum, rust proof and spot proof—cleaned silver-bright by simply wiping.

There are ample cupboards; drawers for knives and linen; a metal lined bread and cake drawer.

Call at our store and let us show you the Hoosier and explain it to you. You incur no obligation—we are glad to demonstrate.

VISITORS ALWAYS WELCOME!

FOR SALE—REAL ESTATE

FALL TRADING

Almost any business, especially the Real Estate Business, has a tendency to become more active with the change of the season; for example we hear on all sides these expressions: "When business opens up in the fall," or "We are going to offer this land in the spring."

Good traders realize this situation and are always prepared when the active time comes to trade, buy or sell.

When business is quiet they have ample time to size up the situation, to locate the section that seems to be the logical trading section, locate desirable property, get all the necessary information, and when the Fall or Spring trading begins, they are ready.

Fall trading is just about ready.

The north side will come in for its usual big share of trade. We know what has happened in the past and we can certainly count pretty well on the future. These facts make the north side a logical trading section.

Property within a few blocks of Peachtree street, between the City and the Georgian Terrace, is very good if it can be bought at a reasonable figure. We have seen what has happened in the past on Ivy, Baker, Cain, Harris, Ellis and a number of other streets.

The steady growth of Atlanta north and eastward puts North avenue, Linden, Pine, Forrest Avenue, Courtland, Piedmont Avenue and a number of other streets in this section on an equal footing with the streets we have just mentioned, and it certainly stands to reason that in time the same thing will take place with these streets that has happened with the first ones we mention.

We offer three investments that should certainly show a good profit within a reasonable time.

BAKER STREET, one and one-half blocks west of the intersection of Peachtree and West Peachtree streets, 50x200 feet, $15,000. Terms.

Each of the three above places has a well built house that is in the ideal renting section and will bring in enough rental to take care of the property until time for more substantial improvements.

FOR SALE—REAL ESTATE

FALL TRADING

Almost any business, especially the Real Estate Business, has a tendency to become more active with the change of the season; for example we hear on all sides these expressions: "When business opens up in the fall," or "We are going to offer this land in the spring."

Good traders realize this situation and are always prepared when the active time comes to trade, buy or sell.

When business is quiet they have ample time to size up the situation, to locate the section that seems to be the logical trading section, locate desirable property, get all the necessary information, and when the Fall or Spring trading begins, they are ready.

Fall trading is just about ready.

The north side will come in for its usual big share of trade. We know what has happened in the past and we can certainly count pretty well on the future. These facts make the north side a logical trading section.

Property within a few blocks of Peachtree street, between the City and the Georgian Terrace, is very good if it can be bought at a reasonable figure. We have seen what has happened in the past on Ivy, Baker, Cain, Harris, Ellis and a number of other streets.

The steady growth of Atlanta north and eastward puts North avenue, Linden, Pine, Forrest Avenue, Courtland, Piedmont Avenue and a number of other streets in this section on an equal footing with the streets we have just mentioned, and it certainly stands to reason that in time the same thing will take place with these streets that has happened with the first ones we mention.

We offer three investments that should certainly show a good profit within a reasonable time.

BAKER STREET, one and one-half blocks west of the intersection of Peachtree and West Peachtree streets, 50x200 feet, $15,000. Terms.

Each of the three above places has a well built house that is in the ideal renting section and will bring in enough rental to take care of the property until time for more substantial improvements.

Frontage Adjoining Ponce de Leon Apartments on Ponce de Leon Brings $600 a Foot, Kirkwood Subdivision Changes Hands—Other Sales, Trinity Church Corner to Be Improved?—C. H. Black Replies to Request for Delay of Whitehall Grading—Other Real Estate News

A NEW record front foot price was established on Ponce de Leon avenue, near Peachtree street in the sale of forty feet announced on yesterday.

John W. Zuber has sold to the Daniel Brothers company a lot fronting forty feet and adjoining the Ponce de Leon apartments for $24,000, or $600 a front foot.

This is known as No. 15 Ponce de Leon avenue. It is directly opposite the Georgian Terrace hotel. The lot has a depth of 130 feet and has a frame dwelling on it.

It adjoins forty feet which the purchasers alerady own, giving them eighty feet adjoining the apartment house property and in the heart of the hotel and apartment house section.

Kirdwood Acerage Sale.

J. E. Pritchett, of the L. P. Bottenfield agency has just sold for the receivers of the Guarantee Trust and Banking company to J. W., J. R. and W. J. Collier two entire city blocks in the center of Kirkwood. The consideration was $12,500.

This property consists of 31 building lots with a total frontage of 616 feet on Kirkwood road, 900 feet on Robson place, 450 feet on Emory street, 450 feet on Hardee street and 622 feet on Norwood avenue.

The purchasers are considering the matter of building several residences on part of this property and offering a few single lots at reasonable prices to home builders. No doubt the Bottenfield agency will have exclusive nandling of this property for the Messrs. Collier.

ALSO OTHER SALES.

Mr. Pritchett also sold for Miss Anna Bennett to Miss Gussie May Bridge, a vacant lot 50x150 on the corner of North Moreland avenue and North avenue, for $2,850, and for a client to Mrs. Annie Lou Pritchett, a small acreage tract on Lakewood road, near Lakewood, for $1,500.

In Woodlawn park—lot 40, $850.

In Oakwood Terrace—lot 22, block 4, $500.

C. H. Byack to Build.

Intimation that he would build on the old Trinity church corner at Whitehall street and Trinity avenue was conveyed in a reply which Charles H. Black made yesterday to certain persons who want the regrading of Whitehall street postponed.

Mr. Black did not go into the details of his building, but said that the financial arrangements for it had about been made.

Mr. Black's statement in regard to the request for delay is as follows:

"We are a little surprised that the Whitehall street 'merchants' should have delayed until the last minute to try and block the regrading of Whitehall street, in view of the fact that this matter has been publicly agitated for over a year and they have had every opportunity to appear before every committee that we have appeared before. The Whitehall street committee has worked on this proposition a long time and we were very anxious to begin the work on September 1, but at the urgent request of some of the merchants, it was postponed until October 15.

"We at first opposed this delay, but finally agreed to it with the understanding that they were not to fight to delay the matter longer.

"I understand from the papers that a committee of 'merchants,' headed by Mr. W. F. Winecoff, appeared before the mayor yesterday to try to postpone this much-needed improvement, and claimed that it was simply a scheme of a 'syndicate,' who owned the corner of Whitehall and Trinity avenue to raise values.

"To begin with, Mr. Winecoff is not a merchant on Whitehall street and as I understand it, he has simply made a speculative investment in a lease. It seems to me that speculators who have put their money in Whitehall street are entitled to as much consideration as speculators who have put their money into a lease on the street, both knowing that the improvement was going to be made.

"No syndicate owns the corner of Whitehall and Trinity avenue as suggested by that party of gentlemen, but this corner is owned by me personally and I not only did not buy it to speculate on, but I am today in receipt of a telegram from my attorney, Mr. A. J. Orme, in New York City, stating that he had concluded financial arrangements for a building on this property, the erection of which I propose to start on October 15, and this property is not for sale at any price.

"In conclusion, I would like to say that we all heartily indorse the prompt action of Captain Clayton in calling a meeting of the officials of the street car company, the telephone and gas companies for the purpose of pushing this work through quickly.

"There is no reason why this street should not be regraded and finished by the first of December and I believe that Captain Clayton will see that this is done.

"Mr. Shelby Smith, chairman of the county board, informs us that the county can do its part of the work in about three weeks.

"We are glad that Mayor Woodward informed these gentlemen that they were too late and we are satisfied that they will get the hame answer from the street committee at its meeting on next Friday."

A. S. Hook Makes Change.

A. S. Hook, for many years connected with the firm of Foster & Robson, in their sales department, has accepted the position of manager of the city sales department for the Chelsea Land company, with offices in the Empire Life building.

The splendid record made by E. C. Rupley, manager of the subdivision department, has been one of the bright exceptions to the otherwise dull real estate market which has obtained for the past few months. One hundred thousand dollars' worth of these lots have been sold in the past ninety days.

Mr. Hook will organize and manage a city and suburban sales department for the company. His years of successful experience in this field assures the success of the new department.

S. O. Vickers was the organizer, and is the guiding genius and general manager of the Chelsea Land company, which now takes its place among the successful real estate businesses of Atlanta.

TO CUT PRICE OF BEEF MORE THAN ONE-HALF

Peru Beef Soon Will Be Delivered in New York at 10 Cents a Pound

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—A message of hope for a reduction of the price of beef to less than one-half of what it costs today, which would be a big help in solving the cost of living problem, has ben brought to the American people by Augusto B. Leguia, former president of Peru, who is now in this city. He made the declaration that with the opening of the Panama canal and a reduction of four thousand miles in commercial distance between the United States and Peru, beef could be delivered in New York for ten cents a pound from his country.

Figures made public by the department of commerce show that during the first few months of the present fiscal year there were increases of several million pounds of beef coming principally from Argentina and Australia, which averaged in price from seven to ten cents a pound.

BAINBRIDGE FORMS A BOARD OF TRADE

BAINBRIDGE, Ga., Sept. 27.—The Bainbridge board of trade was organized here last night at a large and enthusiastic meeting of citizens. W. A. Wheeler was elected president and H. H. Coombs secretary of the board. Sufficient funds have already been secured to place the organization on a firm foundation. A permanent secretary to devote his entire time to the position will be employed immediately and the slogan of the club will be "twenty thousand inhabitants for Bainbridge in 1920."

R. F. BISHOP PURCHASES REALTY FIRM INTEREST

R. F. Bishop, who has been connected with the Southern railway for the past eleven years, has bought a half interest in the well known real estate firm of L. O. Turner company, and the new firm will be known as the R. F. Bishop & L. O. Turner Co., and will do a general real estate, renting and loan business.

Mr. Bishop has been trading in real estate as a side line for several years, which has familiarized him with values.

Mr. Bishop also took part in the handling of real estate matters of the Southern Railway company, while connected with that company. His office prepared all sketches and assessed a valuation on which all property was to be leased.

Mr. Hancock's Record in the City Council

Voted Several Times Against Electing City Officials by the People

A LETTER has been sent to the Voters of the City by Mr. W. A. Hancock, candidate for Alderman from the Eighth Ward, in which he takes credit for many things done by the General Council during his extended service in that body.

The record of a public official is always a legitimate subject of discussion when the official offers for re-election. Therefore, we call attention to some specific votes by Mr. Hancock which are not mentioned in his letter.

The Executive committee ordered a vote on the question of electing the City Clerk, Marshal and other officials by the people. Mr. John S. Owens was a member of this Committee and voted FOR it.

In this election the people voted over 6,000 to 900 that these officials should be elected by popular vote.

A resolution was introduced in Council to amend the Charter and carry out the decision of the people. A motion was made to lay it on the table. Mr. Hancock voted YES. (Minutes of Council No. 21, Page 699). Various motions were made to strike from the list several officials named by vote of the people. Mr. Hancock voted TO STRIKE each one proposed. (Minutes of Council No. 21, Page 708). Afterwards a resolution was introduced to "Carry out the will of the people." Mr. Hancock voted "No," (Minutes of Council No. 22, Page 15.)

Throughout the whole fight Mr. Hancock voted in favor of all motions to delay or to defeat the expressed decision of the people in the election held on the subject. (Minutes of Council No. 22, Pages 63, 66 and 427.)

The people finally won their fight, and these officials are now elected by popular vote, but it was OVER the vote of Mr. Hancock.

Now, Mr. Voter, if Mr. Hancock, when last in Council, refused to carry out your will, as expressed at the ballot-box, can you expect him to carry out your will, if he is put back in Council, whether you hold an election on the subject, or simply express it to him in person. He has shown a contempt for the people, even when they acted and voted together almost unanimously. How can he now ask the same people to re-elect him as their REPRESENTATIVE. A representative is a man who represents. He did not do it. You cannot now expect him to do it. "By their fruits ye shall know them."

Mr. John S. Owens has never been in politics. He is not lined up with any faction. He will put some "new blood" into our City government. He is an active, successful business man. He is the kind of man the people are always saying they want in Council. Now is the chance to get SUCH A MAN!

JOHN S. OWENS Campaign Committee.

Strength of Union Pacific and Reading Had Little Influence

Trading Was Light, and With These Exceptions the Stock Market Closed With Prices of Active Stocks Little Altered

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—With the exception of Reading and Union Pacific, each of which made gains of about a point, the stock market closed today with prices of the active stocks little altered. Trading was light and at the opening the market sagged slightly. The decline was due less to pressure than to lack of interest. It afforded an opportunity for week-end covering, which was the main factor in the slow recovery which set in. Early losses were made up in most cases, though another dip downward toward the close resulted in small net declines for many of the leaders.

Strength of Reading and Union Pacific exerted little influence elsewhere, bullish operations in these stocks being productive of no market gossip other than reiterated rumors of segregation plans. Although official information was still lacking regarding Union Pacific's plans for disposition of the proceeds of its sale of Southern Pacific stock, the report was current that some announcement would be made within a few days. Union Pacific rose to the highest quotation of the present movement.

The bank statement made a disappointing showing. Instead of the expected gain in cash of $8,000,000, the increase was only $2,250,000. There was an actual loan expansion of about $8,000,000 and the surplus was virtually unchanged. That a better exhibit was not made was attributed to preparations for October 1 disbursements. Germany's needs at the quarterly settlement period were emphasized by the appearance of Berlin in this market as a bidder for funds. For loans to carry over the settlement period, 6 1-2 per cent was offered, but so far as could be ascertained, New York bankers have declined to acept these terms.

Bonds ruled steady. Total sales, par value, $800,000.

United States 2s declined 3-4, the 4s coupon 1-4, and Panama 2s a point on call on the week.

LONDON STOCKS

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Sept. 27.—The attendance on the stock exchange was small and business light today. The markets were featureless. There was little doing in American stocks. Prices fluctuated narrowly, and at the close was ¼ higher to ⅝ lower than yesterday's New York final.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 27.—The condition of the United States treasury at the beginning of business today was:

Net balance in general fund $125,965,519.

Total receipts yesterday $2,131,826.

Total payments yesterday 1,727,916.

The deficit this fiscal year is $12,790,245.

Against a deficit of $10,940,852 last year, exclusive of Panama canal and republic debt transactions.

FINANCIAL BUREAU ON STOCKS

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Financial Bureau says: Stock market looks as oversold. The conservative bull position continued to be favored by important sources. Bullish views noted in good quarters on cotton. On weakness wheat and corn may be bought.

WEEKLY STOCK REIEW

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—The stock market drifted aimlessly through the week, without definite trend. Price movements were confused and apparently the only guiding impulse was the passing whims of the trading element. Sentiment was inclined to bearishness, on account of the failure of the recent rise to attract a following on the long side of the market.

Uncertainty over the effect of tariff and currency legislation, unfavorable reports from the steel trade and evidences of uneasiness abroad regarding the monetary situation, all militated against operations for the rise. At the same time, the steady demand whenever substantial concessions were offered, and the ease with which prices rose when covering was attempted tended to restrict short selling. Net results in consequence were not important.

The week passed with no developments of especial influence on the stock market. Traders were of the opinion that some new stimulus was needed to give the list a definite tendency. Fears of renewed hostilities in the Balkans and of a severe strain on the Berlin money market in connection with the quarterly settlement were disturbing elements in the situation abroad, which found some reflection in European selling of stocks here.

BRADSTREET'S REVIEW

Bradstreet's Review says: "Distributive trade has held the center of the stage this week and in this line dry goods, clothing and wearing apparel generally have been most active, both at wholesale and retail. Trade tendencies in general, however, are onward, and though there are enough exceptions to prevent uniformity, business affairs show further improvement.

"This manifestation may very properly be correlated to the fact that stocks everywhere are light, that rains in the southwest have superinduced a better feeling there, that colder weather over a wide area in the forepart of the week, furnished a reminder that heavy goods were needed, besides affording a stimulus to retail trade, and that the crop movement has enlarged with farm product prices especially remunerative, this latter feature being reflected in somewhat improved collections.

"Most reports indicate that trade is better than it was at this time yast year. Moreover, money appears to be a little easier.

"Business failures for the week were 287, which compared with 259 last year.

"Wheat, including flour, exports from the United States and Canada for the week aggregate 5,980,265 bushels, against 5,850,902 last year."

NEW YORK BANK STATEMENT

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—The statement of the actual condition of clearing house banks and trust companies for the week shows that they hold $11,044,050 reserve in excess of legal requirements. This is an increase of $386,500 over last week.

INTERESTING NEWS AND GOSSIP OF THE MARKETS

COTTON GOSSIP

Times-Democrat says:

It is a paradox of all speculative markets that the higher the price, the cheaper the commodity looks. In the Sully year the speculation on the bull side did not become rampant until the level of 15 cents had been reached, when the entire south became obessed with the idea that cotton would sell at 20 cents a pound. Reality fell short of the dream by some two or three cents a pound and fortunes were swept away in the twinkling of an eye when the final crash came.

Consequently, with March and May selling yesterday above 14 cents, some of the older heads were inclined to advise caution for the time being, but the tyros in business, market aviators, who have succeeded the cliff dwellers of ancient times, had no stomach for counsel of this sort, their only ambition, apparently, being to reach new high altitudes. Fortunately for this class of operators, they have a parachute at hand in the shape of constantly enhancing spot values. Both Houston and Galveston advanced their quotations to the basis of 4 cents for middling, which was quoted at 13¾c.

Weather map favorable, shows cloudy belt, no frost, on the contrary, temperatures rose six to ten degrees in west. General rains western half of the belt, mostly light except in Shreveport. Monroe district of north Louisiana. Cloudy eastern belt, no rain. Storm formation at mouth of the Rio Grande but no danger whatever for belt. Indications generally cloudy weather belt, general showers, cooler north central and northeastern belt.

Rain storm formation near mouth Rio Grande, will bring a storm warning but no danger indicater for belt.—Kofler.

Journal of Commerce reports rain damage in Louisiana, Mississippi and Florida past two weeks, impairing growth, boll weevil cuts top crop prospects in Mississippi and Louisiana. Some bolls rotting. Alabama condition about 69 percent, picked 25 per cent.

Forecast:

Georgia: Rain tonight and Sunday; cooler in northwest portion.

Alabama: Rain tonight and Sunday; cooler tonight.

Kentucky: Fair tonight, slightly warmer Sunday. Light frost in north portion.

Tennessee: Unsettled with local rains tonight or Sunday; cooler tonight in north and east portions.

Mississippi: Local rains tonight or Sunday; cooler tonight.

Louisiana: Tonight and Sunday rain; light to moderate easterly to southerly winds on the coast.

Arkansas: Tonight and Sunday rain.

Oklahoma: Unsettled; rain tonight or Sunday.

East Texas: Unsettled; showers tonight and Sunday; moderate northwest winds on the coast.

West Texas: Tonight and Sunday unsettled; showers tonight or Sunday except in extreme west portion.

North Carolina and South Carolina: Local rains.

It was rumored late yesterday that National Ginners placed condition of crop at 61.8.

Clement & Curtis make condition of cotton crop 61.8.

The selling on and after call was general, some which came from brokers closely identified with spot interests. There was apparently considerable liquidation going on. This, it is said, was based on the uncertainty of the situation at Washington. A reaction is freely talked and we may have some setback.—Anderson.

GRAIN GOSSIP

Chicago Inter-Ocean says: Some of the big wheat traders said they believed wheat should be bought on any little decline. Bears said the world's supply is too large to induce substantial buying except at reduced levels. It was said that all the big holders of corn, with possibly one exception have reduced or dumped their lines in the past few days. Bullish houses said that they believed conditions justified present values but the bears saw nothing but lower prices and expect rallies to be only temporary. Bears are using the Canadian oats as a club and have scared speculators from the buying side of oats.

Wheat—It looks to us as though the market has reached a point where something in the way of pressure must be put upon it to bring about any further decline and as exporters seem to be taking Canadian wheat freely, we think that pressure from that source will not be prominent.

Corn—Our cash prices have now reached a point where values are relatively lower than other market, therefore will not attract anything in the way of country offerings. Eastern buyers are holding off as is natural on a declining market.

Oats—The question of Canadian competition is still a leading one, but we are inclined to think that the worst effects of the probability of pressure from that country have been felt.

AUSTIN & RAIT COTTON LETTER.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Cotton: Two items of news have tended to keep this market nervous and feverish all the week, i. e., damage from the recent heavy rains and storm, and the frequent "rumors" from Washington of the probability or improbability of the destructive Clark amendment to the tariff prevailing against future transactions in cotton, and of the two, illogical as it is, the latter has been given the most attention. The latest news as this is written is that there will be a nominal tax of 50 cents per 100 bales where delivery is not made by the original seller, 50 cents per 100 bales where delivery is made in conformity with nine restricted grades approved by the government with a settlement of commercial differences on delivery, and $50 per 100 bales where delivery is made outside of these restricted grades, and the general feeling here is that this will not be destructive and considerable hope is manifest that this will pass, and should it become law it will possibly extend to other commodities, as there is no reason why cotton should be singled out as a point of attack, and there is no question but what this will be an important revenue feature and offset the revenue heretofore derived from articles upon which the tariff is reduced. It certainly will show also that the attacks upon the cotton exchanges of the country which have done so much to raise the price of cotton in recent years, was entirely ill-advised and undesired by the southern growers, as well as world-wide spinners and cotton interests who require some modern means of hedging and protecting themselves against commitments and contracts extending over a period of months and years.

While it is somewhat previous to anticipate this favorable turn, yet we feel that upon its passage it will be the signal for another upturn in values, especially following the destructive damage reports which have come from all parts of the belt just previous to the date upon which the final condition figures are gathered, to be announced upon October 2, at noon. The condition figures will undoubtedly be bullish, and the government methods of estimating the crop, the probable outturn will be estimated very small.

Entirely apart from the possibility of legislative matters, the conditions regarding the future price of cotton are fairly evenly balanced at the moment, with the short crop in prospect and the spinning world unsettled by tariff adjustments at home and confronted by poor business prospects abroad on account of the political upheavals there for the past several years. Trade reports from old world spinners reaching this market recently indicated very pessimistic possibilities for long-time contracts on account of the critical money position of some European countries as the result of the Balkan war, but this should not be taken too seriously for the reason heretofore stated, that the world is bare of finished goods, and when business conditions warrant replenishing, they must start their source of supplies from the raw article, which would allow spinners to pay advanced prices for the raw article and resell profitably. There has been considerable discussion as to the probability of a lowering of values during the period of the heaviest movement of the crop, but one writer opportunely quotes the advances in the years of 1903, 1909 and 1910 as exceptions to this rule, and 1913 may yet be added. With any return to normal business conditions, the present prospects will be competed for at advancing prices and we can only caution against buying on sharp advances at this season of year, but spinners who have missed the big advance to date will be attracted by any substantial concessions and probably prevent any serious decline, and we still believe that cotton bought on such reactions will show good profits and look for higher prices.

Cotton seed oil: With the completion of liquidation in September and October options, refiners have appeared as final takers of September deliveries, with the probability of repetition in October. There has been considerable crude pressure on these options at the high levels prevailing, but the strength that has spread to other options is inspiring confidence in a general high level of values all the coming season. European demand is good, with cocoanut oil high, our own supply of animal fats insufficient, with a lowering of supplies this year, and we advise buying on all reactions.

NEW YORK COTTON LETTER.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—There was liquidation and short selling early because the average trader believed that a reaction was in order. Some of the prominent bulls had lost their cotton and were hoping for a decline to buy it back, but the bullish condition reports issued by Clement & Curtis and Turner, of Memphis, together with private wires from Texas and Oklahoma stating that continued rains were adding to the damage already sustained, brought about a better feeling and brokers closely identified with spot interests became good buyers, followed by general wave of buying and there was very little cotton for sale up to the close when the bulls seemed to stop the advance by selling out some of their holdings.—Anderson.

Cotton Made New High Record for Season Amid Bullish Excitement

WEEKLY REVIEW OF NEW ORLEANS COTTON MARKET

Values Are the Highest in Several Years—Closed at Net Gain of 25 to 35 Points

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 27.—The price of cotton went to new high levels for the year this week, several options crossing the 14-cent mark. Values were the highest in several years. The market closed for the week at a net gain of 25 to 35 points. The high prices were made on Saturday and the low prices on Monday. At the highest the trading months were 57 to 60 points over last week's close; at the lowest they were 12 to 15 points under. The range was 70 to 74 points. The close would have been higher but for a sensational break right on the week-end on unfavorable rumors from Washington regarding legislation.

The chief reason for the advance was the growing conviction that this crop, at its best, can be only of moderate size. The cold weather of the early part of the week and the rains of the latter part stimulated buying to a great extent, as did also statistics of the week. The more favorable turn taken early in the week in congress in regard to legislation seeking to control trading in cotton contracts was of the greatest assistance to the bulls, as it served to remove the fear that too drastic legislation was about to be passed and allowed a large volume of fresh buying to enter the market.

Bulls claimed that much crop damage was done during the week. Reports from the western belt, and particularly Texas, where the damage was said to be heaviest, noted rotting of bolls and sprouting of seed in the boll. Picking was delayed and much injury to grade resulted from the excessive precipitation.

Posting of the weekly statistics was followed by increased buying, as they pointed to a demand for cotton that appeared to be out of proportion to the supply, or at least the supply claimed by the bulls. Exports for the season were put by Secretary Hester at 653,671 bales, against 456,903 bales a year ago and 624,039 two years ago. Bulls called attention to the fact that exports two years ago were the largest on record at that date.

In the spot department prices gained nine-sixteenths of a cent, middling closing at 13 7-8c, against 13 5-16c last week and 11 7-16c this week last year. Sales on the spot amounted to 4,025 bales, against 4,282 last week and 2,715 this week last year; sales to arrive amounted to 5,374 bales, against 3,211 last week and 8,010 this week last year.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 27.—Cotton futures opened steady at a decline of 5 to 10 points. Cables were not quite high enough to meet the advance on this side yesterday and this fact stimulated considerable liquidation of long cotton on the call and immediately afterward. At the lowest, prices were 8 to 9 points down. This small decline brought in fresh buying orders in large volume and there was a sharp recovery of the initial loss. Bulls pointed that weather conditions were very unfavorable, because of continued rains in the western belt and the forecast of more rain over Sunday. At the end of the first hour of business prices were 1 to 2 points over the close of yesterday.

Many reports of crop damage came in during the morning from Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana and Arkansas. Heavy rains in north Louisiana were said to have caused much injury to crops in a section that has hitherto done well and which was relied upon to make up for boll weevil damage in other sections of the state. Bulls pointed out that in two days Shreveport had received 8.14 inches of rain and that Shreveport was in the center of an important cotton producing section. Buying gradually increased and by the middle of the morning the market was showing both strength and activity. Prices took on a sharp rise which, in spite of much profit taking by satisfied buyers of the earlier part of the week was well maintained. At the highest of the morning the trading months were 13 to 16 points over yesterday's last quotations.

Toward the close of the session the market broke in a sensational manner on the unconfirmed report that there would be introduced in congress a measure similar to the Clarke amendment to the tariff bill. The trading months lost 26 to 34 points from the highest. The market was almost demoralized on the close which was quoted irregular at a net decline for the day of 19 to 22 points.

HAYWARD & CLARK'S COTTON LETTER.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Sept. 27.—Weather conditions over night were again better than predicted. The official frost prediction for North Texas, Oklahoma, and Arkansas did not materialize. On the contrary temperatures rose six to seven points and all danger of frost is over as the cool wave has moved northeastward. Rain was general over the western half of the belt, but much lighter, the only heavy rains being in North Louisiana. There was practically no rain in the eastern half. Indications are for unsettled showery weather over the entire belt. No danger of frost or storms.

As long as there are no damaging frosts the crop is making with this weather, although the quality is injured by rain.

Our market lost about eight points in the early trading on realizing and restricted support but bullish opinion predominates and the government reports next Thursday are expected bullish.

Weather Conditions

Forecast till 7 p. m. Sunday.

Atlanta and Vicinity: Rain tonight or Sunday; cooler tonight.

Georgia: Local rains tonight or Sunday; cooler tonight in northwest portion; cooler Sunday in east and south portions.

Alabama: Local rains tonight or Sunday; cooler tonight.

The disturbance in the west gulf is still central near the Texas coast, with the atmospheric pressure slightly below 29.85 inches. Rains continue over Texas and Louisiana, but the rain area has not advanced east of the Mississippi river. Cloudy weather prevails, however, over the entire south.

The area of high pressure in the north has advanced eastward to the Ohio valley and lake region, with generally cooler weather in the north. Frosts were reported at Toledo and Green Bay.

The temperature continues relatively low over the plateau and upper Rocky mountain region, with the lowest 7 a. m. temperature 28 degrees at Sheridan.

Conditions will continue cloudy and threatening and slightly favorable for rain at Atlanta tonight and Sunday.

Bullish Private Crop Report and Continued Unsettled Weather in Texas Caused Renewal of Bull Support and Covering

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—There was a renewal of bullish excitement in cotton market today and new high records were established on all positions, with October contracts selling as high as 14.10, while December touched 13.95, or 312 points above the low level of only a little more than a month ago.

Expectations of a very bullish October bureau were strengthened by the report of a Chicago authority placing the condition of the crop at 61.8 comparing with its report of 69.4 last month. The official condition a month ago was 68.2, and should the government's figures next Thursday show as big a falling off as indicated by today's private statement, it would make the October condition around 61 per cent, or the lowest in ten years with the single exception of 1909, when the October bureau was 58.5 per cent. The yield of lint cotton per acre in 1909 was only 154.3 pounds, last year's yield of 190.9 pounds, and the outturn of 207.7 pounds per acre in 1911.

Bullish sentiment also seemed to be encouraged by reports of a heavy rainstorm working northeastward from Houston, the official forecasts for continued unsettled conditions, bullish weekly reviews of the dry goods trade and the continued steadiness of the Liverpool cables. Realizing was very heavy during the entire day, but the market closed within 4 or 5 points of the best and from 11 to 17 points net higher.

At the opening there seemed to be some selling for a reaction after yesterday's big advance, as well as profit-taking by old longs and after starting at an advance of three points to a decline of five points, the market sold 7 to 8 points net lower during the early trading. Offerings were very readily taken, however, by a broadening outside demand, continued trade buying and support from some of the local bull houses and prices soon firmed up, reaching a net advance of 16 to 22 points in the late trading. Temperatures in the south were not as low as expected, but the continued wet weather was reported to be damaging open cotton.

After the close, the trade here became alarmed over Washington advices concerning the Underwood substitute for the Clarke amendment and there were private sales of January 10 or 12 points below the final official figures.

NEW YORK COTTON.

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—The cotton market showed continued activity and excitement during today's early trading. Cables were about as due and the weather in the south seemed rather better.

After opening steady at an advance of three points on October, but generally five points lower, active monhs sold seven to nine points net lower under heavy realizing. The decline was soon checked by continued bull support and the market rallied on a bullish crop report from Chicago, making the condition 61.8, an unfavorable western belt forecast and the appearance of further buying orders. October and January contracts sold a point over the high records of yesterday.

COTTON SUPPLY AND IMPORTS.

Wall Street oJurnal says:

The main source of hope for the future to supplement the domestic supply of livestock is probably neither Argentine nor Australia, but Mexico with her great possibilities for cattle-raising and Canada with vast resources for sheep production. Last fiscal year we imported less than 500,000 head of all kinds and that was the best year in several. But we paid $9,585,791 for the animals imported, including 10,000 horses and poultry. American capital will be quick to see these nearby opportunities, and with peace in Mexico restored and import duties removed our northern and southern neighbors apparently will find good markets here while the home industry as a whole is putting itself on a sound business basis.

The meat packing industry itself is working seriously to this end. Officers of the American Meat Packing association, now in session at Chicago, are on record against the "unnecessary slaughtering of heifer calves" as a step in a campaign of education to prevent a further shortage in the country's meat supply. Farmers are being urged to go into the business of raising hogs for the market on a large scale. The packers themselves realize that if something is not done to increase the meat supply their own industry must suffer as prices rise, and the enforced habit of reduced meat consumption becomes established among 93,000,000 of people.

Probably recent imports of fresh meats from Argentina and Australia have stirred the home interests to action as a means of keeping prices from rising further.

Since 1911 cattle other than milch cows have edcreased from 39,679,000 to 36,030,000 head, a loss of 3,649,000 head in two years, and the average price on the farm has risen from $20.54 to $26.36.

Following is a comparison of livestock prices for last week with those for 1912, 1911 and 1910:

	Cattle	Hogs	Sheep	Lambs
Last week	$8.60	$8.30	$4.40	$7.00

Report That Canadian Tariff Is Not to Be Disturbed Caused Rise

Wheat Traders Who Had Sold Short Stampeded to Cover on Advices that the Duties Would Not Be Removed for Several Months

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—What were alleged to be authentic advices that Canadian duties would not be removed until after the meeting of parliament in the spring caused a decided raily in wheat prices today. The market, which at first had been depressed, closed firm 1-8 to 3-8 cents above last night. Corn showed a net loss of 1-8 to 5-8 cents, oats a gain of 1-4 to 3-8 cents, and provisions finished irregular, varying from 5 cents decline to an advance of a shade.

Wheat traders who had oversold stampeded to cover as soon as they heard from Ottawa that there was good authority for the belief that the Canadian tariff would not be disturbed for six or seven months. Until this buying flurry set in, the market was unmistakably heavy, owing to huge receipts from the spring crop. It was said the railroad yards around Minneapolis were congested with grain and that all available sidetracks as far as North Dakota were full of loaded cars to be moved.

In regard to Canadian duties the accepted version in the wheat pit was that Ottawa ministers would not act unless it was positively shown that the people of the dominion wanted the change. In view of this news prices underwent no important reaction and at the wind-up were within 1-8 of the top figures of the day.

Liberal deliveries on September contracts with fine weather for marketing gave courage to the selling side in the corn crowd. Later, however, there was some offset in the drying up of country offerings and in the fact that eastern call had improved. Sentiment at the close was unsettled.

Oats rallied with wheat. There was considerable new investment based partly on a falling off in primary receipts.

Provisions held steady, influenced by strength at the yards. Business consisted almost entirely of changing, holders of nearby options selling out in order to acquire deliveries more deferred.

JOURNAL OF COMMERCE REPORT.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Alabama—Excessive rains during the past two weeks damaged much cotton in fields but benefitted unopened bolls. Considerable cotton is sprouting in the bolls but there is no damage from insects and cultivation is good. Some cotton is rotting in the bolls and boll weevils have done some damage this year. Top crop prospects are very poor and grade has been somewhat affected by hot weather. Preliminary returns indicate a deterioration of a few points from last month in percentage condition and about the same as a year ago when it was 69 per cent. The percentage picked is about 25 per cent against 19 per cent last year.

Mississippi.—Wet weather delayed picking and boll weevils have largely destroyed top crop prospects. Some complaints of rotting in the boll are made, but with a late frost much will be added to present prospects. Grade has been considerably impaired by excessive rains. Percentage condition is somewhat lower than a month ago, when it was 73.6, but better than last year when it was 66.7.

Florida.—Excessive rains have damaged cotton.

COTTON CROP VALUE MAY EXCEED $1,000,000,000

Production 13,764,000 Bales, Worth $894,660,000—Add 132,000,000 for Seed

Tentative estimates indicate that the cotton crop of the growth of 1913 at current prices for lint and for seed will be worth over $1,000,000,000.

The highest value in the ten years of record which the census office has kept of cotton prior to this season was $963,180,000 for the crop of 1910. Last year's aggregate value stood next to that and was $920,630,000 including cotton and cotton seed.

That the biggest crop does not bring the highest aggregate value is shown by the experience of 1911. There were then grown 16,160,126 running bales equal to 16,250,276,000 bales of 50 lbs. each. These figures all included linters. But the value of the record crop of 1911 was only $859,840,000, or just $103,340,000 less than the 1910 crop of 12,022,405 running bales.

This latter crop was remarkable for the price it brought per ponud. Its average export price of 14.4 cents was the highest in twenty-five years.

There are those who estimate the value o. the current season crop on a 14-cent basis. Farmers at southern railway stations, especially in the east, are getting on the average of 13 cents a opnd or $65 a bale. At these same points the average pricce for cotton seed is $22 a ton. At last year's production of lint of 193.2 lbs. an acre, the 35,622,000 acres would yield 13,764,000 bales. This seems conservative in view of the fact that current estimates generally range from 14,000,000 to 14,500,000 bales. At $65 a bale we should have the following results:

Crop of 13,764,000 bales at $65 each, $894,660,000; seed, 6,000,000 tons at $22 a ton, $132,000,000; total value of lint and seed at farms or gins, $1,026,660,000.

The value of cotton seed in 1912 was estimated by the census as $128,390,000. The quantity of seed itself was 6,104,000 tons, compared with 5,175,000 tons in 1910, which had a total value of $142,860,000.

The above aggregate of $1,026,660,000 represents the worth of the products, or the price basis assumed at the point at which they pass into market, or where, as in the case of seed, they are consumed on the farm because they are regarded as more valuable for planting or feeding purposes than to be sold to the seed-crushing mills.

COTTON CROP SUMMARY.

Memphis, Tenn., Sept. 27, 1913.

Weekly cotton summary by J. B. Turner, week ending September 26:

Except for heavy rains in the western belt at the week-end the period was favorable, promoting picking. Temperatures were, however, rather low and in connection with recent rains delayed opening and growing in eastern states. In this, the last of the weekly reports for the season, special inquiry was made of correspondents as to the maturity of the bolls. It has been developed that the maturity percentage range from about 66 in North Carolina to 100 in Louisiana and over large areas of Texas and Oklahoma. The mjority of the belt appears to be somewhat above 75 per cent, which does not denote a late crop, but on the other hand a rate well advanced one in this particular. The recent rains have been of material beenfit in the Atlantic states and the cotton is still making growth and fruit. It is worthy of note though that the rains have by reason of the growth stimulated increased the necessity for late frost to realize the full promise now given. Over most of the central and western districts an average date of frost will have little effect and what is most desired is favorable weather for harvesting, and while conditions have been slightly improved by September rains and the condition percentage is rather better than two weeks ago, there is a note of disappointment that early pickings are not meeting expectations.

Heavy rains, such as have fallen during past two days in the west, add nothing to the crop and are damaging to the quality of the cotton and may lessen the quantity.

By states:

North Carolina—Week favorable except as to temperature which was low and following week of rain cotton opened very slowly. Estimated only 5 to 7 per cent picked, and two-thirds safe from frost.

South Carolina—Fair weather following rains all owed resumption of picking. Late cotton developing well and most reports denote good crop if frost is late. Estimated 70 per cent fully matured and 10 to 15 per ecnt picked.

Georgia—Much accomplished in way of picking as week generally without rain. Last week's rains highly beneficial to late cotton, but increase need for delayed frost. Estimated 75 per cent crop fully matured and percentage picked large.

Alabama—Splendid picking week. Very little top crop. Great quantity open and 35 to 40 per cent picked in localities. Estimated 82 per cent crop fully matured. Frost can do but little harm. Many small bolls open. Last week's rains benefited few of low lands.

Mississippi—Rapid picking was most notable development of week. Every report brings news of smaller out-turn in boll weevil sections. Some good crops north. Free marketing. Estimated little under 80 per cent fully matured.

Tennessee—Ideal week for picking. Rains helped growth late bolls, but returns from all early pickings disappointing. Lint return light. Estimated 72 per cent crop fully matured.

Arkansas—Picking stopped by heavy rains Friday which did considerable damage to grade and may cause actual loss in quantity by reason of delay to harvest and beating out of bolls. Some rotting of bolls. Estimated about 74 per cent fully matured.

Louisiana—Rains have done considerable damage to grade and seed; 95 to 100 per cent of crop matured. No top crop. Week-end rains heavy and damaging.

Oklahoma—Weather favorable most of week, but rains retarded picking and did little good to plant. Western counties picking bolls to thresh out lint. Some new growth on plant but maturity doubtful. About 85 per cent matured.

Texas—Future weather will have little beating on yield. Nearly all of crop matured. What is desired is good picking weather. No top crop or late development of consequence except over small area south central and in northern counties where drouth was not severe. Considerable field damage from heavy rains.

AUSTIN & RAIT GRAIN LETTER.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Wheat: General liquidation has proceeded with the necessary consequence of a lowering of values all round as visible supplies have piled up at this crop marketing season. European demand appears to have been at least temorarily satiated with considerable wheat coming out from Russia in competition with the available surplus from the United States and Canada. We still maintain that it is too early for investment buying but this bearishness could easily be overdone and we regard wheat too cheap to advise selling and we think well of picking up some on the sharp drives for rallies and within the next few months we should have reasons for good advances.

Corn and Oats—Tariff possibilities have also tended against values in coarse grains and considering the extent of the corn advance it was only natural to expect sharp shading of values. We still believe other grains offer more possibilities than corn although we think well of buying on these sharp reactions as high levels hould rule for this eson. Oats have had to stand the brunt of selling here against purchae in Winnipeg on account of the weight and price in favor of the latter in event of tariff reduction, but the Canadian surplus is not so burdensome, and with the shortage of all feedstuffs we believe oats will show handsome profits later even if it should be advisable to buy on a scale down temporarily.

Provisions—The provision ituation is based largely upon feedstuffs, which eventually govern not only supplies but price. The number of stock hogs i only equal to the small numbers of a year with the condition as to health. fulnes only 89.8 compared withs ten year average of 95.1. Packing is ahead of last year on account of high priced feed and lack of paturage but this is all in favor of high levels later on when marketing lets up. We believe this market is in very strong shape and should respond to the feedstuff situation sharply and advise an investment position in all options upon any weak spots and and believe rudicous commitments will be highly profitable.—M. F. Austin.

Ratify Bond Issue

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., Sept. 27.—Cartersville today by a more than two-third's majority of a heavy registered vote ratified the issuance of $110,000 thirty-year 5 per cent bonds for the purpose of securing a system of sanitary sewerage, extension of water mains, and street grading.

UPS AND DOWNS CONTINUE IN TURPENTINE MARKET

Market Fluctuated During Past Week Two Extremes

SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 27.—While there continues in the general naval stores circles of Savannah reports of a pessimistic nature regarding the inability of the producing world to make money in the naval stores business because of the comparatively low prices, turpentine continues to move freely at Savannah.

The week closing yesterday found the articles between 38 and 39 cents, fluctuating from one extreme to the other in the seven days, but at the close yesterday a more satisfactory basis of values in the nature of an apparent compromise was quoted and a fair volume of trading was done with the article ruling firm at 38 to 38 1-2 cents.

The majority of the sales were really effected at 38 cents, however, and the supplies changing hands at 38 1-4 cents and 38 1-2 cents—for there were transactions at the three values—seemed to be largely in the nature of a "cover" by exporters with holdings at London and elsewhere to sustain the market in a purely temporary manner.

Because of the apparent uncertainty with which business was handled in the week just ended it is purely a matter of guess work as regards the trend for the new week, but it is expected at least that the first days of the new weekly session will be featured with a buying from the exporters of a fairly consistent character at least and for this reason it may be possible for the market to move back to a slightly better price basis.

There was practically no developments as regards the advent of new companies into the local field during the week just closed. The Savannah manager for the Turpentine and Rosins Export company, composed of factorate interests, has not as yet been appointed, according to Mr. J. A. G. Carson, the moving spirit, but the company is already doing a small volume of business. As soon as the permanent manager is secured the company expects to become an aggressive factor in local business circles.

The London-Savannah Naval Stores company, of which Mr. Julius C. Schwarz had been the manager for a number of years up to a few weeks ago, when he handed in his resignation, is very loath for Mr. Schwarz to leave on October 1, when his resignation becomes effective, and to this end the head of the firm is now en route to Savannah from London to make a compromise with Mr. Schwarz. Pressure has been brought to bear upon him in the effort to have him accept a flattering offer as manager at Savannah of the Turpentine and Rosin Export company.

The present market is pratcically bare on oranges. Florida stock will begin to move during the next two weeks in a small way. Some few grapefruit in the market selling at high prices. A strong demand prevails for bananas at quotations. As yet, the demand for cranberries is limited, reecipts correspondingly light. The conditions are better on celery, which will no doubt continue to improve as the season progresses. No change in the price of demons. The demand for California Tokay grapes very heavy with the supply short of requirements. The continued dry weather has affected the yield of these goods materially. Some few Colorado peaches in the market, for which the demand is limited at nominal production, will range high as to prices during the season. Vegetable sundries with the exception of lettuce is being furnished largely by local truckers at nominal values. Receipts of Irish potatoes more liberal for three days past, resultin gin lower values. Sweet potatoes plentiful and dull, also onions and cabbage. No change applying to the egg market. Both dressed and live poultry in supply sufficient to meet requirements at quotations. The market is easier on eggs. Receipts sufficient to meet all requirements.

SOUTH FINEST FIELD FOR BREEDING BEEF

Climate, Lack of Fever Tick and Cattle Records Boom This Section

The Wall Street Journal says:

Enough has been said to prove the existence of an alarming shortage of beef cattle. To allow depletion to go on unchecked must ultimately mean a meat famine. The remedy, of course, lies in increasing the supply, but the vital question is how that is to be done.

What better breeding place could be asked for than in the south? Between Virginia and Louisiana are millions of acres of cheap, well-watered lands that could carry cattle. Climatic conditions would make the carrying cost less than in the north. The fever tick is being eliminated. North Carolina, for instance, is now two-thirds free from the pest. There is room in that section (and need, too) for thousands of cattle.

In the last census year the two Carolinas, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana had 5,766,000 head of cattle, worth $72,000,000. With their total area of 348,715 square miles tnat would average 16.5 head to a square mile. New York and Pennsylvania are by no means well stocked with cattle, yet on their total area of 94,330 square miles they carried that same year 4,010,000 head of better cattle—worth $140,000,000 averaging 42.5 head to the square mile.

In that same year these seven southern states spent $60,000,000 for commercial fertilizer, and their crops were worth $916,550,000. Those of New York and Pennsylvania (without counting animal products) were worth $706,000,000. This is not because the northern soil is more fertile. The enormous yields of cotton on some of the experimental farms, and the extraordinary results obtained by some of their boys' corn clubs show what the southern lands can do. Less cropping and more cattle would mean larger returns per acre.

The census valuation looks as if a large part of the southern cattle is native "scrub," of which even New York and Pennsylvania have too much. To prepare such a steer for market is like trying to fatten a fence rail—and the product is about as juicy. But to establish herds of thoroughbred stock is a costly undertaking. The North Carolina commissioner is trying to grade up the native stock by placing thoroughbred breeding animals in different parts of the state. The plan commends itself to common sense.

If the farmers of the south will be satisfied to raise more corn and forage, and learn to look upon well-graded cattle as mills to condense that feed for market, they can raise an equal amount of cotton on a smaller acreage, and save a part of their immense bill for fertilizer. Incidentally, also, they will be on the way to solving the question of rural credit.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF THE IRON AND STEEL MARKET

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK. Sept. 27.—The one encouraging feature in the steel trade last week was the awakening of railroad interest in equipment, the result, probably, of the concessions in prices made by car builders and manufacturers of motive power equipment. Orders placed by the railroads, however, were small outside of 100 locomotives for the Pennsylvania lines east and west of Pittsburg. Car shops booked orders for only 322 cars, but the Chicago and Northwestern asked tenders on 2,500 steel gondolas and the distribution of one large rail contract for next year is imminent. Rail buying last week amounted to only 10,000 tons, including 1,000 tons more for export to Peru. Inquiries are out for 30,000 tons for Australia.

The impending new tariff has a more depressing effect, consumers being more awake to the prospect of lower prices for rolled steel generally. Steel sheets were again lower $1 to $2 per ton and business in wire, plates and shapes was reduced 15 to 20 per cent. Specifications on bar contracts from railroads and agriculture implement manufacturers were more satisfactory. More new inquiries came out for fabricated steel for bridges and buildings but the market was soft and orders actually placed called for only 7,000 tons steel shapes, including 1,000 tons for a bridge over the gunpowder river at Baltimore, 1,000 tons for pier sheds at Providence, 1,600 tons for a copper smelter for the Anaconda company, 750 tons for bridges at Philadelphia for the Philadelphia and Reading railroad, and 600 tons for the Orpheum theater at Kansas City. Bids were submitted, however, on 15,000 to 20,000 tons additional, including hotels, banks, stores, warehouses and bridges. Considerable interest was centered in the prospective requirements at Buffalo for railroad and barge canal terminals which, it is estimated, will call for 40,000 to 50,000 tons of structural shapes.

Merchant sales of pig iron in all districts are estimated at 60,000 tons, half of which were placed in the territory east of the Allegheny mountains. Small change was made in prices.

Confidence Was Maintained That Ease Would Follow London Settlements and Possibly Gold Imports to New York

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Uncertainty over the outlook for business was believed to be the principal cause of the halting tendency of stock prices during the week. The easing of the money market, in spite of seasonable demands, left no obstacle from that cause to the use of funds in the stock market.

Opinions over trade prospects are conflicting. Mercantile and commercial circles express confidence. That tone is perceptible also in the great textile centers. The iron and steel trade and railroad traffic officials are not so confident. The decline in the price of refined copper, in spite of the strong statistical position, also affects trade sentiment. Corn-carrying railroads are estimating the probable losses of traffic by reason of damage to that crop. Steel makers are giving some attention to the effects to follow operation of the the new tariff, but their principal preoccupation is with future buying by railroads. Earnings and prospects of railroads, therefore, are given prime importance in speculative forecasts.

An increase of $288,000,000 in the operating income of the steam railroads is shown in the report compiled by the interstate commerce commission for the fiscal year ended June 30. Such a growth, even with a parallel increase in expenses, which leaves but $85,000,000 for the increase in net earnings, does not bear out a plea of poverty, or of oppression of the railroads. The exhibit is dreaded, nevertheless, for the force it may give to claims of all sorts on the railroads. It was a similar increase that was made the principal grounds for the refusal by the interstate commerce commission of the petition of the railroads for general increases in freight rates three years ago. This past showing of the roads also is advanced by the trainmen to justify their claim for higher wages. The immediate returns now coming in—those for August—make so poor a showing of net earnings that security values are affected.

The failure of the expected September new orders for steel products is attributed partly to this cause.

The domestic money market was benefitted decidedly by the treasury deposits with national banks in the south and west. Part of these funds were transmitted directly to New York, some for payment for the government bonds to be used as collateral security for them.

The approach of the October settlements hardened discount rates abroad, but confidence was maintained that ease would follow the settlements and possibly gold imports to New York. Discontent in the Balkans also disturbed foreign markets.

WEEKLY REVIEW OF DRY GOODS MARKET

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—The close approach of the signing of a tariff bill is increasing the confidence in the high cotton goods values that are prevailing as a consequence of high cotton and trading at the higher levels continues steady. The immediate business is largely made up of demands for goods to be shipped during the current year but in several instances later contracts are being entered.

Advances in many lines are being made from day to day. Urinted percale has been advanced to a basis of 9 1-4 cents for four-yard 80 squares. Regular print cloths are held firmly at 3 7-8 cents bid. Fall River's sales of 240,000 pieces during the week included 80,000 for spot delivery.

Brown and bleached sheetings have been again advanced, fruit of the loom 4-4 bleached now being on a basis of 9 cents and at value orders only acceptable. Dress ginghams in the finer grades have bene advanced 1-2 cent a yard. Denims, tickings and other heavy colored cottons have been advanced. The leading line of napped cottons has been sold up and withdrawn for the balance of the year.

Most mills are now well provided with business for the next ninety days but they are unwilling to make later contracts owing to very high level at which spot cotton is quoted in the south.

Prices: Print cloths 28 inches, 64x64s, 3 7-8 cents; 64x60s, 3 3-4 cents; 38 1-2 inches 64x64s, 5 5-8 cents; brown sheetings, southern standards, 8 1-4 cents; denims, 9-ounce, 14 1-2 cents; tickings, 8-ounce, 13 1-2 cents; staple prints, standards, 5 1-4 cents; staple ginghams, standards, 6 1-2 cents; dress ginghams, 9 1-2 cents.

DRY GOODS MARKET.

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Cotton goods are being advanced sharply. The burlap markets are steady, but jute is still very high. Cotton yarns are higher. The demand for underwear and hosiery is broad. Linens are very firm.

MISINTERPRETED REPORTS CAUSED BREAK AT CLOSE

NE WORLEANS, Sept. 27.—News that Majority Leader Underwood has introduced into the house the Smith-Lever cotton futures tax measure which traders here misinterpreted caused one of the most remarkable breaks in the New Orleans cotton market in some time. The report was received only a few minutes before the close of the short trading day and struck the market when it was bound upward on continued bad weather reports. New high levels of the season had been reached.

Immediately there was a rush to unload and within a few minutes the market was demoralized. Prices that had stood 13 to 16 points over yesterday's close soon were battered down. The final gong sounded amid pandemonium when the market was 18 to 22 points under the highest of the day.

Until the Washington news came everything seemed to favor the bulls. Rain still was falling in the western half of the belt and more was predicted for over Sunday. Early reports from Washington concerning future tax legislation were what the bulls termed favorable. News of the introduction in the house of the Smith-Lever bill came as a great surprise.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

NO announcement of the fall is of more pleasureable interest than that of the approaching marriage of Miss Constance Knowles and Mr. Jesse Draper.

Since her debut Miss Knowles has been an acknowledged belle and beauty, not only in Atlanta but wherever she has visited, a popularity which Mr. Draper shares both as a club member and in the business world. The wedding will be a home ceremony, taking place at noon, Thursday, November 6, Bishop C. K. Nelson to be the officiating minister.

* * *

THE marriage of Miss Ella Jackson and Mr. Edward Alsop will take place on the anniversary of the marriage day of the young bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jackson, and will be a very brilliant and beautiful occasion.

While Miss Jackson has made no formal debut, having only finished her school days the past June, she has been a charming figure in the holiday gayeties of the younger set and was entertained at a series of affairs on her return from school. She is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jackson, and a niece of Mr. Robert Foster Maddox.

Mr. Alsop is the young son of Mr. Edward Alsop, of Washington, one of the leading financiers of the country, and the owner of a magnificent estate on the Massachusetts coast as well as at Toxaway, where the romance of his son and the lovely young Atlanta girl had its beginning.

* * *

A BRILLIANT event of the week in which a cordial interest centers will be the marriage, in Nashville, of Miss Eleanor Meeks and Mr. Inman Gray.

The church service will be followed by a reception at the Hermitage hotel. Mr. Gray, Mr. James R. Gray, Jr., and Mr. Joseph Brown Connally to leave this morning for Nashville, and a large party, to be entertained by Mr. and Mrs. James R. Gray on a private car, leaving Monday morning, at eight o'clock on the Dixie Flyer.

Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Cooney will give a buffet supper and dance at the Hermitage club, and Tuesday a luncheon will be given for the wedding party and out-of-town guests, the wedding to take place that evening at the Vine Street church.

The car party invited by Mr. and Mrs. Gray include Mr. and Mrs. John K. Ottley, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Howell, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Edwin R. DuBose, Mr. and Mrs. John E. Murphy, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Grant, Mr. and Mrs. Boykin Robinson, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. E. Rivers, Mr. and Mrs. John S. Cohen, Mr. and Mrs. Charles D. Atkinson, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Inman, Mr. and Mrs. William Adkins, Mr. and Mrs. James Castleman, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Brumby, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Gallogly, Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Maddox, Mr. and Mrs. James R. Gray, Jr., Governor and Mrs. Slaton, Dr. and Mrs. W. S. Elkin, Mrs. Clem Harris, Mrs. Earl D'Arcy Pearce, of Washington; Miss Katherine DuBose, Miss Jennie D. Harris, Miss Leone Ladson, Mr. John A. Brice, Mr. Jackson Dick, Mr. Eugene Haynes, Mr. Hugh Scott, Mr Joseph Gatins, Jr., Mr. Arthur Clarke, Mr Dozier Lowndes, Mr. Jesse Draper, Mr. Joseph Brown Connally.

OUR ASTROLOGER

"The stars incline, but do not compel."

HOROSCOPE.

SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 28, 1913.

While peace rules today
Put thy cares away.

The planets are friendly today, the astrologers declare, and it is a time for pleasant social intercourse, since anxieties should not intrude.

Mars, Jupiter and Mercury rule strongly for good, while the Sun is mildly benfic in its influence.

Priests and churchmen of every sort are under a benign government. It is held that the influences tend toward receptivity on the part of audiences, while they stimulate oratory.

Again there is a sign read to indicate an unusual amount of poverty and great suffering during the coming winter and increased work is foretold for charitable and philanthropic institutions.

Educational matters are under an astral government indicating many advances and widespread improvement. An increase of students who are self-supporting is prophesied.

Much mortality is denoted at Washington. Unusual care of the health is counseled for men high in public service.

Saturn is in an aspect read to fortell evil or treachery in dealing with foreign powers.

A London astrologer prophesies that railway troubles in the United States will bring about extensive changes in management. Increased use of electrictity is foretold.

Women are said to be still under a government, conducive to strange and erratic ideas in dress and manners. This rule, to which is attributed the mania for extreme dances, will prevail through the winter.

Uranus is in a position believed to forebode labor troubles, but there is promised of improved conditions and important reforms.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the probability of a busy and successful year. Men will prosper in business and women will realize their ambitions. Increase of salary may be expected by those who are employed.

Children born on this day have the prophecy of fair fortunes. They should be bright and clever. Intuition and logic will rule them. Their magnetic center is the Sun in Libra, the balance, and their principal ruling planet is Venus.

LACES: Have Come Across Seas to Make a Gracious Bow

Ah! the beautiful laces have burst from their boxes. Their long journey across the seas—from Switzerland, Germany, France—has but added to their charm. Marvels of form and color, delicate and intricate of design, bestrewn with gold and silver—almost every thread breathes PARIS.

—Though informal, this first showing is complete. It includes our own importations—exclusive patterns to be found nowhere else in Atlanta—as well as the confined patterns in rare laces from New York importers. The lace buyer has selected lavishly, with but one idea in mind—BEAUTY.

Shadow Laces, Chantillys, Net Tops—Names to conjure with in the fashionable lace world. Their fresh loveliness leaves description dumb. Complete stocks from the narrow bands four and five inches wide to the 45 inch wide flouncings; 25c to $15.

Gold and Silver Nets—Plain, La Tosca and Craculee nets, plain, simple weaves but always artistic and airily beautiful. The gold and silver glisten, the nets filmy and gauzy as gossamer, fairly radiate beauty. In high vogue for over draperies, blouses, etc. 45 inches wide, $2.50 to $6.

Linen Laces—Our own importation of all linen cluny and Smyrna laces as well as cotton Val laces. The assortment provides every style needed from the simple outfit of a child to the elaborate trousseau for a bride.

Shadow Allover Laces—Exclusive patterns to be found in Atlanta only at Rich's. Used freely for net waists, dresses and overdrapes. 45 inches wide. 75c to $10.

Colored Lace Nets—Plain and figured in black, white and colors that run the gamut of the card; 36 to 45 inches, $1 to $3.

Drapery Tulle—An all silk net of very fine mesh, a delightful drapery fabric; 36 inches, $2.50.

Gold and Silver Shadow Laces—Beauty magnified into surpassing loveliness. The splendor of Arabian Nights and Persian Gardens unfolded. Amidst the delicate tracery of the lace, the gold and silver threads dazzle like a dewdrop in the sun. It is noteworthy that the bullion gold used will not rust. White, cream and some pastel colors. $2.50 to $18.50.

Two Lace Specials for Monday

$1 Shadow Laces at* 69c

$1 and $1.25, 27-inch shadow lace flouncings so popular for waists, tunics, crepe de chine silk trimmings, etc. Cream and white.

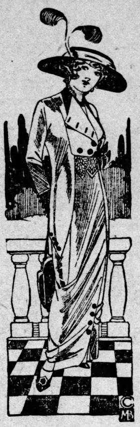
Dainty baby designs in imitation Baby Irish Embroidery patterns. Insertings and edges from 1 to 6 inches wide. Many in matched sets. (Laces, Main Floor, Right.)

Fall Apparel, Fresh from the Maker's Needle, Has Its First Showing Tomorrow

First Full Fruits of Our Buyer's New York Trip



Early Fall selections are largely a matter of experiment. No buyer can say absolutely just what fashions will be favored. By September 15, however, the styles are fixed. Dame Fashion has made her decree. The suit makers work authoritatively with sureness and precision. To keep in touch with the newest fashions, therefore, our buyer sped to New York two weeks ago. He has been there since, carefully selecting the cream of the approved styles. His selections have been arriving freely; many of them get their initial showing tomorrow. Because of the diversity in styles and prices, we can do no more than try to give a pen picture of these few:

$25—A black wool Faille. Cutaway coat. Distin[illegible]k. A band of black velvet [illegible]dle simulates a belt. Fro[illegible] two rows of small black [illegible]ons. Draped skirt. Coat [illegible]lined, finished with silk shields.

$45—A model after Callot. Cutaway coat of brown broadcloth, with long revers to where the coat cuts away. Velvet frogs, satin back, Persian silk vestee.

Just Two of the New Dresses

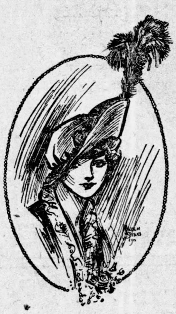
Autumn Hats Are Going Out by Scores

To Be Replaced Daily by Others Just as Charming



—We planned this season a wonderful business on popular price hats from $10 to $19.50.

Our plans have succeeded. Here are the hats—Autumn's styles in new and charming creations.

—"Are the hats Paris hats?" No, but the ideas are. Artistic milliners with deft fingers have developed velvets, plushes, satins and silks into delightful chapeaux of distinctive individuality.

—There are tailored and semi-dress hats—crooked as a ram's horn in line—but picturesque and beautiful.

Black hats have the call, though Carbeau and King's blue, peacock, Tango, green, Burgundy, brown and taupe have their adherents. A hat for any type of beauty. $10, $12.50, $15, $16.50 and $19.50.

$10 to $12 Untrimmed Hats $8.50

The season's smartest shapes in extra fine velvet, plush and hatters plush. Every desired shape. Black, solid colors and combinations.

$5.98 Untrimmed Velvet Hats $3.95

For a big Monday special we group former $4.98 and $5.98 fine velvet untrimmed hats at $3.95. Soft and semi-stiff crowns. Black and colors.

$25 Paradise Feathes $19.50

The smartest millinery trimming for all time. Two beautiful styles—the broad sweeping kind, or the branched barrel effects. Black and natural.

Fancy Ostrich $4.95

The ideal trimming for the shapes advertised above. A big assortment in fancy branching modes, stick-ups and bands. Black, colors and combinations.

(Millinery, Second Floor)

Velvets in Regal Array

Mantle Plushes for Coats
Chiffon Velvets for Skirts
Panne Velvets for Dresses
Brocaded Velvets for Trimming

—A plush coat; a velvet skirt; or mayhap a panne velvet dress. Alone or in combination, Fashion nods approval. Whatever combination you choose we can match in black, antique blue, wine, burgundy, amethyst, corinthe, venise (a new blue) and navy. 42 to 44 inches wide. $6 to $7.50 a yard.

Brocade Velvets—Used freely with above and also with silks. There are velvets brocaded on chiffons and satins. Gold and silver broches on velvet. Rich Moorish patterns in uncut brocade velvets, wonderful colorings in cubist and futurist designs. $6.50 to $35.

Moire & Failles Combine Beautifully with Delightfully Draping Charmeuse & Crepes

A moire or faille silk for coat; a soft draping crepe meteor or charmeuse silk for a skirt. The combination meets with Fashion's favor. Black, white and almost any color you wish is here.

Failles, $1.50, $2 to $8.50. Charmeuse, $1.50 to $3.50.
Silk moires, $1.50 and $3. Crepe meteor, $2 to $3.50.

Silk & Wool Brocaded Poplin $2

The beauty of one wedded to the serviceability of the other. The silk imparts grace and soft draping qualities; the wool supplies service. Beautifully brocaded in matelasse designs. Black, navy, royal, king's blue, Copenhagen, wistaria, amethyst. 42 inches wide.

Plain color silk and wool poplin to match at $1.50.

Fine Linen Table Cloths

Their Prices Drop a Third, Because they are odd numbers in the way of regular lines. Most of them, too, are slightly soiled. Almost any size table can be fitted, for there is a most complete range in cloths from 2x2 yards to 2 1-2x4 yards. All high grade linens including the famous John S. Brown's splendid Irish Damask cloths; the celebrated Fleur de Lis brand; real Moravian Damask cloths and others. Savings average a full third:

$7.50 to $8 cloths, various sizes, at $4.90.
$8.50 to $10 cloths, for round tables, $6.90.
$15 cloths, sizes up to 2½x4 yds., at $10.

(Linens, Main Floor, Left.)

Turkish Towels: Sale of 'Seconds'

Twice a year the best Turkish Towel Mill in America favors us with its "seconds."

"Seconds" because this high grade manufacturer will let no towel with even the slightest defect get by his lynx-eyed inspectors.

Since the service of these towels is in no wise impaired, the savings of a third generally "shoots" them out in a day or two.

15c guest size Turkish towels, 10c.
50c fine novelty Turkish towels, 39c.
75c extra size and quality towels, 49c.

Oriental Rugs at Half Price

That's the Headliner We Feature in Heavy Type to Add Zest to the Annual Oriental Rug Sale

Storekeepers are intensely human. Six years ago our rug chief bought some fine Oriental rugs in carpet sizes. All have sold but one. Five years ago he bought another lot. All sold but one. Of the carpet size rugs bought in subsequent years, one or two have remained each season until we have accumulated eleven. Nothing wrong with them; in fact, Oriental Rugs, like wine, improve with age. But the rug chief is human. He is tired of invoicing the same rugs season after season. Doesn't want to see them around any more.

Though they are well worth their first full price, he is willing to sacrifice any of these 10 rugs at half price. There's the unabridged story. If there are eleven rug connoisseurs in Atlanta who can use any of these rugs, they can get the bargain of their lives: Here's the list:

$200.00	Camel Hair 8 ft. 5 in. by 11 ft. 1 in.	$100.00
250.00	Serapi 9 ft. 5 in. by 12 ft. 9 ins.	125.00
250.00	Antique Serapi 9 ft. 9 ins. by 9 ft. 13 ins.	125.00

USE NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE IN TIME AND YOU WILL NEVER NEED FALSE HAIR

Wearing false hair is a harmless deceit of which many ladies are guilty. These women are all objects for sympathy rather than criticism.

Early neglect in the care of the scalp has caused the loss of so much hair that their personal appearance is sadly marred. To correct this defect they resort to artificial hair hoping by so doing to hide the results of their earlier inattention to the details of their toilet. These unfortunates are deceiving no one but themselves as no artificial hair, no matter how costly, ever has the snap and lustre nor can it be made to look as pretty and attractive as natural hair.

GOING!
HERPICIDE WILL SAVE IT
GOING!!
HERPICIDE WILL SAVE IT
GONE!!!
TOO LATE FOR HERPICIDE

Most ladies would resent any imputation of personal carelessness and neglect. And yet very many permit their natural hair to become so dull, brittle and lusterless that it looks no better than that bought at the store.

All this is as unfortunate as it is unnecessary. Hair that is unsightly or thin may usually be attributed to the working of the dandruff germ. This destructive germ burrows down into the hair follicles and shortly robs the hair of life, with the result that it finally loosens and drops out.

For preserving and beautifying the hair Newbro's Herpicide is a a prime favorite. Its intelligent use in justified by a clean, healthy scalp and the life, and lustre of the hair. In no way can one add more to her personal charm and attractiveness than by the use of this remarkable and well known scalp prophylactic.

On account of its astonishing merit and its delightful and exquisite odor, Herpicide finds users everywhere and among all classes. It may be purchased in 50 cent and $1.00 sizes at all toilet goods counters. You will find upon inquiry that Herpicide has the confidence of your dealer to such a degree that he will not hesitate to guarantee it to do all that is claimed or refund your money for the first bottle purchased. Applications may be obtained at the better barber shops and hair-dressing parlors.

Upon receipt of 10 cents in postage or silver to cover cost of packing and mailing, the Herpicide Co., Dept S, Detroit, Mich., will send to any address a nice sample bottle of Herpicide and an interesting booklet on the care of the hair.

For Two Days---Monday and Tuesday---We Will Hold the Greatest Sale This House Has Ever Announced

A Sale Celebrating the Completion of Our New Building

The Store Specially Arranged and Decorated for the Occasion

The new store is now complete. And when it is thrown open Monday and Tuesday mornings at eight o'clock, the open doors shall constitute our broad invitation and hearty welcome to all Atlanta and vicinity, to join us in a remarkable Special Sale, in which the values are greater, by far, than any we have ever offered before. An event actuated by two desires: To celebrate the completion of the New Building, and to make a new record of selling at this time.

All new and splendid merchandise at prices we have never quoted at the beginning of a season, a fact which makes this a sale beyond compare.

An occasion that it will be doubly worth your while to take advantage of.

Values of equal importance from every department in the house, which means that whatever your needs are now, or for the near future, you may supply them Monday or Tuesday at savings truly gratifying.

This is to be a sale without disappointments. We have made sure of that!

Your Grocer Sells It

What Anne Rittenhouse Says

PARIS.—The tunic is bothering a number of women. They want to wear it, but they are not sure how they can. It is quite unbecoming to many kinds of figures. One is better able to stand width above the knees than the fulness between the waistline and the hips.

The pleating of the material to the girdle in order to obtain the fulness of the tunic enlarges the figure to such a measure that few women care to contemplate themselves in the glass after trying it.

There has come about a new arrangement of it in the last few days which the conservative houses have introduced and which may prove a way out of the dilemma. An Oriental sash is used in a modified form, to hold down the fulness and keep it in a graceful line. The effect is decidedly Persian and much more becoming than the original adaptation of the tunic.

There is one most attractive model in black satin which has a narrow skirt, short all round, and a straight-away tunic made of pleated black tulle edged with an inch-wide band of velvet and rhinestones.

Around the hips there is a folded sash of black satin which is not tightly drawn in to the figure, but, nevertheless gives to it a semblance of outline and regularity. It is cut away in front to two points at the lower edge which are outlined with rhinestones and caught under and atached to the tunic. At the top is a large yellow rose with green leaves.

The bodice is of black thread lace with rhinestone edging, and the lining is of pink chiffon.

A Sash Over the Tunic.

The sash is probably the best solution of the problem so far, and while, as an accessory, it was commonized last spring, still it has returned in a better form for a better purpose. When the tunic gowns were first brought out, they were not especially well handled. The idea was new and the beginning was not graceful. After two or three weeks of experimenting, two or three things were discovered that were helpful. The skirt was made in a much plainer fashion; that is, the swirl of drapery which was brought up in broad pleats to the middle of the waistline back and front was omitted, and the skirt got its fulness from a sidewise manipulation of the material that left the hips free from folded cloth.

You can easily see that this gave the tunic a better chance. It is, in itself, always full, and it is made awkward by being placed over other kinds of fulness.

The sash is another improvement and it will probably be adopted by the majority of women for two reasons: First, it makes the waistline look smaller and gives more grace to the hips; second, it differentiates the gown from the dozens that are sold at small prices since the famous originals appeared.

Sashes Have No Loops.

This new kind of sash is, after all, only another kind of tunic. It has no loops, nor ends, nor bows. It is merely a bit of drapery that goes about the figure below the waistline and is sometimes pulled up a trifle above the waistline in the back to give the Oriental effect that evry woman aims at today, no matter how near she comes to it.

Such drapery is in keeping with the deep girdles that Premet introduced and which are now employed on a great many frocks. These are all pulled up a bit above the waistline and again below it, and although they are folded and wrinkled, they have a stiff bone at back and front to hold them in place. The new idea seems to be to lengthen the waistline. One observes this everywhere.

Mite Box Opening

The Junior Missionary society of Park Street church will hold a mite box opening Saturday, September 27, 1913, at the church at 3:30 o'clock.

All the members are cordially invited to attend and bring their mite boxes.

College Society

The Mezzofantian society entertained its new members at a delightful reception last Saturday evening in the college parlors. A fine program was rendered, including piano selections by Miss Cooper and Miss Foster, and a reading by Miss Bradford, who is head of the expression department. After a social hour ices were served.

The domestic department is a popular addition to the cllege. A specialist is at the head of this department, and work done will be of a high grade.

An event of much interest slated for next week is the faculty concert. Ahis will be the first of a series of recitals to be given every other week during the year.

Plans have been made for the inauguration of a student government system. An honor board of five will be elected by the student body at an early date.

A Touch of Novelty

Some of the most attractive variations of the sandwich plate and kindred silver, combine cut glass with the silver; and this with pierced work gives a delicacy of style which is decidedly decorative.

The material has been cleverly handled in our showing, however, to insure also the strength of construction which is essential to the real value of a piece of silver.

WEDDINGS

Garner-Hobbs

The marriage of Miss Kate Garner and Mr. John Abner Hobbs, of Gainesville, took place at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. James Howard Garner, in Waverly, Ala., on Wednesday evening.

Rev. H. J. Sargeant, of Birmingham, performed the ceremony at 7 o'clock. The wedding music was in charge of Mrs. Sheeler and Mr. W. M Webb. Preceeding the ceremony, Mr. Webb sang "O Promise Me" and to the strains of Mendelsohn's wedding march which immediately followed, the bridal party grouped themselves about the altar of palms and ferns. Miss Jessie Johnson, of Opelika, entered first gowned in lace built over pink charmeuse. She carried pink carnations.

Miss Lorine Garner, a sister of the bride, then entered and was attractive in a gown of pink brocade satin with lace trimmings. She carried an armful of pink carnations.

Mrs. Maurice Wing, of Birmingham, a sister of the groom, was matron of honor, herself a recent bride wearing her wedding gown, an exquisite creation of which duchess satin fashioned en court train and handsomely embroidered in pearls. She carried an armful of pink roses.

The bride entered alone and was attractive in a suite of taupe with hat and other accessories to match. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley and was met at the altar by the groom and his best man, Mr. Maurice Wing, of Birmingham.

Mr. and Mrs. Hobbs left immediately after the reception which followed their marriage on a bridal journey which will cover points of interest in the north, returning to Gainesville October 1, where they will be at home with the groom's mother, Mrs. J. W. Wherry, at the Princeton hotel, of which Mr. Hobbs is the popular manager.

Liliputian Wedding

An interesting event of Saturday evening was the liliputian wedding given under the auspices of Eufaula council, No. 7, D. of P., Imp. O. R. M.

Music and recitations were a feature of the evening, and the wedding was a great success.

The bride was little Miss Mattie Belle Drake and the groom was Harold Willis.

The ringbearer was little Miss Louise Spinks and the bridesmaid was Miss Annie Scogin.

The groomsman was Clarence Drake.

The flower girls were Miss Jennie Maud Scogin and Miss Irene Waldrip, the pages were Adthur Waldrip and Earl Waldrip, and the candle bearers were I. N. Willis, Jr., and Helen Drake.

The children were all under two years of age.

Jones-Thomas

The marriage is announced of Miss Alice Viola Jones to Mr. David Oscar Thomas, which took place Wednesday evening October 24, at the home of Rev. J. C. Strickland, pastor of Bonnie Brae Methodist church.

The ceremony was quiet, being witnessed only by Miss Kittie McHerron, Mr. Verner Raines, Miss Rachel Thomas and Mr. Doyle Jones.

The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. N. Jones, of Capitol View, wore a suit of blue with white beaver hat trimmed in French plumes.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Thomas, formerly of Dalton, Ga.

After the ceremony the bridal party were entertained at an informal reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Thomas, 16 Pearce street, where the young couple will be until October 15, when they will take possession of their new home, 11 Pierce street.

Van Buren-Hardeman

A home wedding of unusual interest was that of Miss Nell Rundell Van Buren and Mr. Wallis Brumby Hardeman, which took place Tuesday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. James R. Van Buren, parents of the bride, at Griswoldville, Rev. J. G. Harrison, of Pinehurst, officiating.

In the parlor, where the ceremony took place, the bridal party stood beneath a bower of smilax and white roses, and before an improvised altar of growing ferns. In the midst of this stood a tall brass candelabra holding seven burning tapers. On either side of the altar huge brass floor vases held Easter lilies. The mantel was draped with smilax, and on it were vases of bride roses and unshaded tapers.

The wedding music was rendered by Miss Gussie Finney, of Haddock, Ga., and just before the wedding march Miss Helen Maxwell, of Milledgeville, sang "Because."

The only attendants were the bride's sister, Mrs. Louis LeRoy Fernald, of Tarpon Springs, Fla., and Mr. Ben T. Malone, of Monticello, Ga., best man.

Mrs. Fernald wore a green brocaded satin, with overdrapery of lace. Her bouquet was of white carnations showered with fern.

The bride entered with her father, Mr. Van Buren, who met the groom and best man at the altar. The bride was lovely and made a charming picture in her wedding gown of brocaded crepe de chine with lace and pearl trimmings. She wore a veil of tulle, which was caught with valley lilies, and her bouquet was of bride roses showered with valley lilies.

Mr. and Mrs. Hardeman left during the evening in an automobile for Macon, where they took the train for a wedding trip. On their return they will begin housekeeping, and will be at home to their friends at 182 English avenue, Macon, Ga.

Among the out-of-town guests were Mrs. R. V. Hardeman, mother of the groom; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Hardeman, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Hardeman, Holmes Hardeman, Terry Adams, Mr. and Mrs. Roland Mahone, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Kinney, Mr. and Mrs. J. Morgan Massey, Oscar Kinney, Jr., Mr. Charles E. Campbell, Miss Campbell, Miss Redding, Miss Ellen Hardeman, Mr. George H. Plant and Mr. W. K. Young, from Macon; Misses Jean Reid and Roberta Sparks, Eatonton; Miss Helen Maxwell, Milledgeville; Miss Gussie Finney, Haddock; Mr. G. T. Barksdale, Washington; Mr. Ben H. Malone, Monticello; Mrs. I. B. Massey and Miss Irma Massey, Jeffersonville, and Mrs. Louis LeRoy Fernald, Tarpon Springs, Fla.

The Hat Distinctive

It is so easy for a mode to become commonplace, trite, overdone.

It is because we give the touch of distinction that really smart dressers come to us to be hatted.

"Somehow or other," they will say, "we know that you succeed in imparting tone, chic, verve, whatever it is that makes a hat a joy to its wearer."

Do YOU care for this sort of thing in the hat you buy? Come here, then!

Atlanta Chapter, D. A. R., To Give Bridge Party

In order to further the educational work of the D. A. R. the members of the Atlanta Chapter are arranging a series of delightful entertainments. The first of these will occur on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the new Ansley Hotel, and will be in the nature of a bridge party to which is invited the friends of the members and visiting D. A. R. A small admission fee of 50 cents will be charged and delicious refreshments will be served.

As this will be before the real fall season commences, it will afford those being present a delightful afternoon in meeting their friends after the summer months. As it will not be a progressive party, tables of four are being arranged by many. Any one desiring to reserve a place can do so by telephoning Mrs. J. Osgood Wynn, regent, Peachtree Circle, or Mrs. E. D. Kennedy, Ponce de Leon avenue.

The following ladies are asked to make the party an assured success: Mrs. Grant Wilkins, Mrs. W. T. Healy, Mrs. T. H. McCrea, Miss Dagma Sams, Mrs. Murdock Walker, Mrs. Charles Rice, Mrs. J. D. Cloudman, and Mrs W. E. Foster.

Do You Want a Perfect Figure?

The Komfort Brace will straighten the back, reduce the stomach, develop the chest, giving you a full, rounded bust, and will give you the poise and independence the Divine Plan intended.

You can't be attractive with "stooped" or round shoulders, and no matter if you have a perfect figure you must stand, sit and walk erect to attract admiration.

The Wonderful NEW COMFORT BRACE which weighs only 3 ounces, and which IS comfortable, will correct stoop errors at once.

It will fill out the vacuum in hollow chests, distend and enlarge the bust, put buoyancy and elasticity in the steps and give you the GRACE and POISE which is every woman's rightful inheritance.

This Brace is simplicity itself; can be worn under the garments without showing, and it is ADJUSTABLE, following every movement of the body. It can be washed like a handkerchief, and is the only sanitary Brace made.

Send us your order at once, giving waist measurement and approximate weight. Sent postpaid on receipt of price—$1.50. Satisfaction guaranteed or your money refunded. FREE literature on request.

The school of opera has started the preparatory work, and has planned the performances of three operas during the winter. Madam Sara Jane Ainslee is an enthusiastic artiste, who is perhaps one of the most competent teachers in this line of work in the whole country. Her repertory covers about 150 operas of different styles.

To fill a demand for musical kindergarten work, the management has engaged the services of Miss Pearl Rivers, a graduate of the Fletcher-Copp music method.

Cox College Notes

The attendancse at Cox college is unusually large this year. The first days of organization and classification are now over and work has begun in real earnest. The academy, college and conservatory departments are all thoroughly organized and running smoothly. The conservatory is especially emphasizing the chorus feature this year and under the management of Prof. C. Frederick Bonavitz, the new director who has just arrived from New York, many beautiful selections will be rendered at the various entertainments given by the college.

Another feature of the college that is arousing much interest and enthusiasm is the domestic science department. Under the skillful management of Miss Kesterson this is becoming a most popular course.

Lively games of tennis and basket ball are being enjoyed by the students. Miss Lucile McWhorter and Miss Julia Harris, the directors of the physical culture department, are making these features quite interesting.

Miss Norwood Ky, who has been touring Europe in company with Madam Skibinsky, has returned to her work.

The young ladies are enjoying attending services at the various churches of the city. Next Sunday they will attend in a body the College Park Methodist church. Sunday afternoon they will attend the great sacred concert given at the auditorium, where the gifted director of Cox college, Mr. Charles A. Sheldon, will preside at the great organ.

On Monday afternoon the young ladies will accept the kind invitation of Mr. Harry Schlesinger to visit his great candy factory. This annual trip always appeals to the girls and they are looking forward with much pleasure.

On Monday 14, 15 and 16, the Atlanta Baptist association will be entertained by Cox college and the College Park Baptist church. Special music will be rendered by the faculty and the students of the college.

Jubilee Mission Workers

The annual all-day meeting of the Jubilee Union of Mission Workers will be held Tuesday, September 30, at 10 o'clock at St. Marks Methodist church, corner Peachtree and Fifth streets.

The exercises promise to be very intresting and instructive.

The morning will be devoted to our local work and the afternoon to the mission study class and our interests in China.

The principal speaker for the afternoon will be Mrs. Alice Bonnell, who made her home in China for some time and has seen and studied conditions there from all sides. Her address will be interesting to young and old.

All the women of Atlanta are cordially invited to attend.

Please bring box lunches.

LOVELY BRIDE-ELECT

MISS SADYE ANDREWS.

Miss Andrews is the lovely daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Hunt Andrews, her engagement to Mr. Harry H. Johnson having been announced during the week.

Miss Andrews is one of the prettiest members of the younger set, and her marriage in October will be of cordial interest throughout the state.

THE WEEK IN RETROSPECT

PARTIES to brides-elect and a number of interesting marriages with a few afternoon teas and card parties have made up the sum total of the social events of the week with the usual dinner dances at the Piedmont and East Lake clubs, the dance which has been a weekly event at the Country club having been discontinued.

Instead the members of the hunt club had their first run to hounds Saturday afternoon with Mr. Samuel Slicer as M. F. H. and a merry group of Atlanta horsemen following over field and stream in their wake.

From 12 to 2 o'clock for the convenience of the lovers of golf luncheons will be served on Saturday at the club throughout the fall.

At the dinner dance at the Driving club the ball room with its recent improvements was filled with club members and their friends, a number of whom returned during the past week.

INTERESTING to all thinkers on the woman question—a world-wide topic of today—was the meeting of the Woman's Suffrage league at Carnegie library Wednesday afternoon.

A feature of the meeting was an address made by Miss Elizabeth High on "Municipal Civics," an address which showed the young woman's thought and study of the matter and the clear-sighted view she entertains as to civic affairs.

The daily acquisitions to the ranks of suffrage show the inevitable dawn of woman's liberty and the talk of the new woman will be a thing of the past, for the world will have found out that the new woman is as old as the world itself.

Olive Schreiner writes: "We who lead in this movement today are of that old, old Teutonic womanhood, which twenty centuries ago plowed its march through European forests and morasses beside its male companion; which marched with the Cimbri to Italy, and with the Franks across the Rhine, with the Varagians into Russia, and the Alamani into Switzerland; which peopled Scandinavia and penetrated to Britain; whose priestesses had their shrine in German forests and gave out the oracle for peace or war. We have in us the blood of a womanhood that was never bought and never sold; that wore no veil, and had no foot bound; whose realized ideal of marriage was sexual companionship and an equality in duty and labor; who stood side by side with the males they loved in peace or war, and whose children, when they had borne them, sucked manhood from their breasts, and even through their fetal existence heard a brave heart beat above them."

It is said that the southern man is opposed to suffrage for his woman folk, that men of other sections have thrown open the door to a wider liberty for their womankind, but if this be so it is only because the southern man has not yet realized that the women of the south want to enter those broader fields in which other women have made a path and because the southern woman in general has not realized it for herself.

AN interesting visitor in the city and one who has voted since the right to vote was first won by the women of the Pacific slope, is G. Alice Fisk, as she figures on programs and in affairs of state.

Mrs. Fisk is one's idea of a typical westerner, bright, breezy, filled with an overflow of energy, clever with the cleverness that belongs to the true politician, which she is, a politician who is one for sheer love of the game, and with all a very delightful and winning personality which is altogether woman.

Mrs. Fisk acknowledges herself to be "a joiner" and says she belongs to every organization under the sun—almost."

She is past national officer of the ladies of the G. A. R. and was one of those attending the recent encampment at Chattanooga. Mrs. Fisk was also present at the reunion at Gettysburg and later at the meeting in Washington of the National Council of Women Voters of which she is a prominent member.

In politics, not only in Seattle, her home, but on the entire Pacific slope, Mrs. Fisk has an influence that counts for a great deal in election times and she has won more than one measure by her quiet but efficient work at the national capital.

THE executive board of the State Federation of Women's clubs met Thursday morning at the Atlanta Woman's club. Mrs. Z. I. Fitzpatrick, of Thomasville, president of the federation, presided over the meeting, and reports were made by chairmen of standing committees, several district presidents, and by Mrs. M. A. Lipscomb, chairman of the board of trustees of the Tallulah Falls school.

As the session was an executive one to discuss the business of the federation there was no news for publication.

Mrs. Fitzpatrick stated that there were now two hundred organizations in the federation, and that all would have representation at the forthcoming state convention in Cuthbert, Ga.

Among the out-of-town members of the board in the city were Mrs. Nicholas Patterson, of Tifton, Ga.; Mrs. Robert Daniel, of Griffin; Mrs. Moore, of Montezuma; Mrs. Shippen, of Ellijay; Mrs. Irby, of Kingston; Mrs. Wester, of Elberton; Mrs. Lipscomb, of Athens; Mrs. Logan Pitts, of Montezuma. Others present were Mrs. Howard McCall, Mrs. Bolling Jones, Mrs. Lott Warren, Mrs. H. B. Wey, Miss Celeste Parrish, Mrs. W. B. Price Smith, Mrs. Charles Haden, Mrs. A. P. AN EVENT of Friday afternoon was the tea at which Miss Adgate Ellis was hostess at her home on Fifteenth street, in compliment to Mrs. Richard Johnson and Mrs. W. W. Thomas, and invited to meet the guests of honor were the members of the colony at Toxaway, of which Miss Ellis was a charming member during the past summer.

During the afternoon the young hostess, who is the possessor of a very beautiful voice, rendered some delightful selections.

Assisting Miss Ellis and her guests of honor in receiving were Mrs. M. A. Lipscomb, of Athens, and Mrs. W. D. Ellis, Jr.

MISS LOUISE COLLIER, whose wedding to Mr. Henry Stanton, of Cincinnati, will be an event of Wednesday, has been the guest of honor at a series of parties which have been given during the past week, the initial entertainment being the informal bridge party at which Mrs. Scott Hudson was hostess Tuesday afternoon at her home, "Pastime," at East Lake.

Wednesday Mrs. Julian Harris, of New York, was hostess at a beautiful luncheon in compliment to her sister, the luncheon being given at the home of Miss Martha Boynton, where Mrs. Harris is a guest.

Two parties were given to the young bride-elect on Thursday, Mrs. John A. Miller entertaining at a bridge luncheon in the morning and Mrs. Thomas Phillip Hinman at a bridge tea in the afternoon.

Friday afternoon Mrs. John Raine was hostess at a bridge tea at which were entertained a number of young girls and a few friends among the young married contingent, and a beautiful event of Saturday morning was the "golden-rod" luncheon given by Miss Laura Cole at her home on West Peachtree street, the guests including the wedding party and several out-of-town guests.

Miss Ellen Cothran, of Maysville, Ky., who came to attend the wedding, has been a charming out-of-town guest present at the series of parties. Several entertainments will be given for Miss Collier on Monday and Tuesday, the buffet luncheon at which Mrs. Linton Hopkins will entertain will be an event of Monday, and in the evening Mr. and Mrs. Charles Collier will entertained at a buffet supper.

Tuesday Miss Martha Boynton will be hostess at luncheon, and Tuesday evening Mr. Stanton and his groomsmen will be the guests of Mr. Rawson Collier, the wedding to take place at high noon on Wednesday at the home of the bride's brother and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Davis, on West Peachtree street.

FLORIDA MATRON

MRS. HENRY BARTLETT, OF ORLANDA, FLA.

Mrs. Bartlett has returned to her home after spending two months with her sister, Mrs. Baldwin Davis on Boulevard terrace. While here she was the guest of honor at many delightful social affairs. Mrs. Bartlett was formerly Miss Lois Hudson, of Griffin, Ga., where she was a social favorite.

HAPPENINGS IN LONDONTOWN

(By the Countess of Blankshire.)

LONDON, Sept. 27.—A slight gloom was thrown over the king and queen's holiday at Balmoral, by the death of the younger son of one of their valued and trusted servants, the head stalker on their Highland estate. He was a promising young fellow, and well known to their majesties, who felt, and expressed, much sympathy with his bereaved parents. King George stopped all the shooting on the Balmoral estates, when he heard of it, for a few days. The deceased, Mr. Arthur Grant, was laid to rest in Craithie churchyard.

Save for this, things have gone on happily and merrily at the sovereign's castle on Dee-side; and both king and queen have enjoyed the free, open air life there, and its reposeful tranquility. Their chief guest for the latter part of the week was his majesty's old tutor, Canon Dalton, who is treated by both king and queen with unfailing kindness and respect, for the sake of "auld lang syne."

Sir Charles Cust, King George's equerry and valued friend, is really recovering at last from his long illness, and able to leave the nursing home at Aberdeen, where he has been so dangerously ill this summer. He underwent an operation for appendicitis some months ago, and some weeks ago had a serious relapse—indeed, it was feared he would not get over it. The king and queen were greatly grieved at his suffering and peril, and hailed the news of his improvement with heartfelt rejoicing; and before he left Aberdeen their majesties motored thither, accompanied by Princess Mary, and attended by Sir Derek Keppel. The royal visitors remained an hour at the Nursing home. King George had a long, quiet chat with the invalid, to whom Queen Mary and her daughter also paid their respects, before inspecting the institution and conversing with the other patients, doctors and nurses, for Queen Mary loves to look into all the details of arrangement when she visits a home of this kind.

The Duke and Duchess of Connaught and their daughter have come home from their Swedish trip looking wonderfully better for the change of scene and the pleasant days spent with their relatives at Stockholm. They made their home aboard the royal yacht Alexandra, but passed many a golden holiday hour with the crown prince and princess of Sweden and their children at home, besides frequently entertaining their royal highnesses on the yacht. Sofiero, the crown prince's summer residence, is a very charming spot, and it was there that they frequently entertained the duke and duchess during their stay.

Prince Arthur of Connaught arrived in London a few days before his parents, and is up to his eyes in preparations for the "happy day," which is now at hand. Wedding presents are pouring in, for not only are the young couple great favorites with the very large clan of royal relatives, but they have both made many friends in less august quarters, and are genuinely popular in less exalted circles. The bridegroom-elect is receiving his full share of the gifts that arrive daily. The king and queen have given him personal mementoes (besides the fine diamond ornaments they have already presented to the bride), and so have Queen Amelie and King Manuel of Portugal. Queen Alexandra has sent to her beloved nephew, in whose career King Edward took such a deep interest, a beautiful silver equestrian statuette of the Duke of Wellington, his father's godfather and namesake.

Meantime, the bonnie bride-elect is equally busy in the Highlands; and her mother, the princess royal, has been most happily roused from the deep depression which has hung over her ever since her widowhood, to take a lively interest in the preparation of her eldest daughter's trousseau. Her royal highness has been overhauling her own remarkably valuable collection of lace, and some of the choicest of these stores will be utilized to drape the young duchess' wedding gown, which will be made of plain white satin. Every article in the trousseau will be of British manufacture, and, of course, Scotland has benefited by large orders, Harris and other Scotch tweeds being extensively used for serviceable dresses. But the sister isle has not been forgotten, either, and Irish poplins and friezes will also figure in the outfit. The marriage robe is being made in London, and Queen Alexandra is lending her granddaughter the superb lace veil which covered her own lovely head at the altar in March, 1863.

The queen has stood sponsor to the small son of Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Gordon, a grandchild of Lord and Lady Aberdeen. This adds another to the lengthening list of her majesty's godchildren. Among them are Lady Mary Fox-Strangeways, only daughter of Lord and Lady Ilchester; Miss Victoria Cadogen, youngest of the five daughters of Lady Meux and a grandchild of Lord Cadogen; Miss, Mary Diana Duncombe only daughter of Lord and Lady Helmsley, and a grandchild of Lord and Lady Feversham and Lord and Lady Warwick, one of the twin daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Cyril Ward, and a niece of Lord Dudley, and Miss Victoria Mary Somerset, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Somerset, and a nice of Lord Raglan. The queen usually presents a piece of silver or an ornament. Her majesty bestows much kindly notice on her godchildren, often sends them birthday presents, and asks them to the young folks' parties given at Buckingham Palace.

Major Henry Cecil Lowther has resigned the military secretaryship to the Duke of Connaught, which post he had held since 1911, to revert to duty with his regiment, the Scots Guards, as he will shortly become head of a battalion, consequent upon Colonel G. J. Cuthbert giving up, on October 9, the command of the Scots Guards regiment and regimental district. Major Lowther was, some years ago, military attache at Paris. He is a brother of the speaker, a clever, versatile man of varied experience, and the author of that very readable book of wander memories, "From Pillar to Post." Colonel Cuthbert has served over thirty-one years in the Scots Guards, was in the Nile campaign of 1885, and fought throughout the South African war. He will be remembered as the officer who, some years ago, was relieved of the command of the First Scots Guards, after a "ragging" scandal.

Their majesties are, early next year, making another industrial tour, this time in a part of Cheshire, where their itinerary will include a visit to the great soap works at Port Sunlight, near Birkenhead. I wonder whether Sir William Lever will thus get the peerage which people say he bid for boldly with Stafford House. And what title will he take?

It is unlikely that any of the private correspondence of the late King Edward will see the light of day. His memoirs would undoubtedly have proved more interesting than any published within recent years, as his correspondents included all the most famous personages in the royal, soial, political and artistic circles of Europe.

In well-informed circles the opinion is freely expressed that Lord Gladstone's retention of the governor-generalship of South Africa will not be prolonged beyond 1913.

The American gentleman at one of the leading London restaurants the other evening was criticising the kaiser and the German royal family was blissfully unaware of the fact that at the next table was one of the kaiser's sons and his wife. The young couple, although they must have heard every word, only smiled.

A well-known weekly which long ago gained a reputation for spicy paragraphs about people has recently been taken over by an able writer who has occupied several editorial chairs in the course of his career.

It seems to have escaped the notice of everyone, Lord Haldane and American Pressman included, that one of his greatest predecessors in the office of lord chancellor—namely, Lord Lyndhurst—was born at Boston in the United States. But they were not the United States then, although Lord Lyndhurst was born there only three years before the outbreak of the revolution.

Y. W. C. A. to Institute Membership Campaign

The members of the Young Woman's Christian association, only a little over four hundred strong, will institute a membership campaign which should result in a membership consistent with the population of Atlanta.

Tampa, with an association only recently organized, has a membership of 1,000 and other cities smaller than Atlanta have recognized the vital importance of a work which should interest every girl and woman.

Y. W. C. A. work is in a sense a charity, it is a business proposition of value not only to the young women who profit by it, but to the city and community as well.

The officers and board of the association include the most prominent of women of the city, women who are determined to see the work succeed and take its proper place in the interest and helpfulness of a broader citizenship.

Annis-Vance

Mr. and Mrs. John C. Vance, of Chattanooga, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth, and Mr. Burleigh Annis, the ceremony to be an interesting event of the early fall, quietly performed at the country home of Mr. and Mrs. Vance, on Lookout mountain.

WESLEY MEMORIAL HOSPITAL TO RAISE BUILDING FUND

The ways and means committee of Wesley Memorial hospital met last Monday to devise a way for raising $50,000 to begin the building of a hospital. Mrs. Henry H. Tucker was appointed chairman, and with such a leader it will not be long until there is a magnificent, up-to-date hospital in the place of the old one, which, with all its drawbacks, has done so much good in saving lives and relieving suffering. In the seven years this hospital has been running over $50,000 has been given away in charity work, and over 6,000 patients have been healed. But this building can accommodate only forty-two patients at a time, and hundreds are turned away each month. Georgia Methodists need and must have a new and better building in order to do its work and meet the constantly increasing demands of a great and growing city. All our people are not poor or stingy, and we believe the purse strings of Georgia Methodists alone will open wide and soon give the full amount. We can easily do it without approaching self-denial. For every dollar that we put in the bank Mr. A. G. Candler, Sr., will put in three, and on the first day of October Mrs. George Winship will deposit $100 and Mr. Candler will deposit $300, so we will then have a nest egg of $400 drawing interest. We want the name of every Methodist in Georgia on that list, which will be published in the Wesleyan. If you can not give all you would like at one time, give monthly. Send your name and amount you can give to Mrs. John Miller, care Third National bank, Atlanta, Ga. Some may say, why does not Mr. Candler build it himself We do not want him to do so. We want a share in that hospital ourselves, and he has made us as liberal an offer as we want. One thousand four hundred dollars and ninety cents has already been subscrubed by a few women. The ways and means officers are, Mrs. Henry H. Tucker, chairman; Mrs. W. R. Prescott, secretary; Mrs. John A. Miller, treasurer; Mrs. R. P. Milam, Mrs. George C. Thompson, Mrs. W. A. Candler, assistants. The ladies will ask for the Sunday during conference to present this cause to the Methodists of north and south Georgia. No one will be pressed to give, but many will give cheerfully if they are made to see the great need. Another handsome hospital will soon give dignity and honor to our fast growing and proud city.

If you want to know how badly it is needed just sit for one day in the little office there and hear how often this message is sent over the phone: "No, I'm sory, but we have no room." The superintendent of nurses has often given up her own bed in order to press in just one more and a nobler band of nurses can not be found. This institution has cared for the sick and suffering of nearly every country on the earth. We have treated 225 Baptists, 108 Presbyterians, 28 Christian, 47 of no denomination, 51 Episcopalians, 18 Jews, 17 Catholics, 10 Congregationalists and many others of various creeds. Now have we been selfish? I think not. So, our fellow-countrymen, don't be selfish in your gifts to this most noble work. We can not make this hospital a place for incurables. If we do we will have no place for the multitude of curable cases. Our great city has a hospital for the incurable and we should not neglect it. Several incurable patients have been sent to the hospital and excluded many who were curable. These incurable ones cost the hospital thousands of dollars, but once in it would seem inhuman to turn them away. There is a baby girl there now who is terribly burned and one of our best physicians is trying to get her so she can walk, but it seems almost hopeless and yet we can not turn this wee baby out. Does it not appeal to your heart? We want a contribution from every man, woman and child. Send to Mrs. John C. Miller, care Third National bank, and contributions will be published in the Wesleyan Christian Advocate.

Aunt Sally's Advice to Beauty Seekers

C. M. P.: The neck should receive similar attention to that given the complexion, so color and texture of skin will be the same. A yellow neck and a white face give a discordant effect. I advise using for both neck and complexion, the treatment recommended to "Monica."

F. M.: First, stop scowling, if you would get rid of the lines between the eyes. The best application for such lines, and all wrinkles, is a solution of powdered saxolite, 1 oz., dissolved in witch hazel, 1-2 pint. Bathe the face in this daily until entirely relieved.

Monica: You hardly need such a list of cosmetics as you mention. Ordinary mercolized wax will help you more than any or all of them. It will gradually absorb the withered, discolored complexion and you will soon have a new, youthful and healthy-looking skin. You needn't get more than an ounce of the wax, which will cost you little at any druggist's. Apply nightly, like cold cream, washing it off mornings.—Woman's Realm.—(Advt.)

FAMOUS ACTRESS LOSES 70 POUNDS OF FAT

Texas Guinan, Star of the "Passing Show" and N. Y. Winter Garden Co. Offers Her Own Marvelous New Treatment to Fat Folks

NEW TREATMENT GIVES ELEGANCE OF FIGURE AND STARTLING RESULTS QUICKLY

Eat All You Want and Grow Thin---Reduce Rapidly as Much as Desired---The World's Youngest and Most Beautiful Star Shows all Woman-kind the Way to Slim Grace and Beauty

"Texas" Guinan, once a plain, stout girl who suddenly and mysteriously reduced herself to fawn-like, fascinating, fairy proportions, now idolized by the thrilled and dazzled audiences before whom she appeared in "The Passing Show of 1912," "The Kiss Waltz" and "The Kissing Girl," a peerless artist whose immaculate melody of voice and bewitching beauty of face and figure have taken American theatergoers by storm. It is said she was pronounced by New York's foremost theatrical manager as "The most perfectly formed woman alive."

Miss Texas Guinan Star of "The Passing Show of 1912," "The Kiss Waltz" and "The Kissing Girl

Copyright, 1913.

"The Girl All America Has Raved Over!" —Press.

MISS TEXAS GUINAN, who, it is said, King Edward declared was "God's Masterpiece and the World's most fascinating actress."

As Texas Guinan had to perform at the matinee it seemed the easiest thing in the world to arrange an interview without consulting her. The vigilant stage doorkeeper was easily passed. The dressing-room was hospitably turned open by a maid, and then—well, Miss Guinan, that is, what is left of her, appeared.

"So you have come to learn the story of my weight reduction, have you?" said Texas in her breezy style, with her glorious countenance beaming in smiles at her supreme gladness, realizing how appreciative the world was in bestowing admiration and applause upon her, all on account of the new glory of her form, which she transformed almost as if by magic with her own marvelous new treatment.

"While you are not going to get away with my secret," said Texas, "it is true that my seventy pounds of weight reduction was brought about with my own delightful treatment, but it cost me a pretty sum of money to learn of it, and I am not giving my secret of how I lost my weight free to reporters, but I have written a book telling all about this wondrous new treatment which rescued me from the thralldom of fat. This book has just come off the press and is offered free to fat burdened men and women, as I early learned in life that the only way to know happiness was to give it to others, and if by letting the world know of this harmless, quick method of reducing weight I can do a great good, then I will feel that I have not lived in vain."

"But won't you give me an iakling of its component parts? Just a suggestion as to what it is, or will I have to be content to read your free book telling me all about it?"

"That is exactly it," said Texas, "but I don't mind telling you what the treatment is not. It does not consist of internal drugs or medicine; there is nothing to take internally. Neither is there any pink colored camphor water, or worthless, harmful stuff to rub on the body. There is no sweating, no bandages, no Turkish baths. The treatment does not consist of a single exercise or physical culture of any description. There is no diet. One may absolutely eat all the food they desire of any kind, and go right on reducing without depriving themselves in any way.

"There are no enemas or flushing of the colon, no harmful massaging, no sweating garments to wear, no immerging yourself in hot baths with the tub filled with obesity water or epsom salts, nor does it include any medical concoction of any doctor, and it has nothing to do with any drug store prescription to have filled. There is no formula to carry out, no soaps to rub on the skin; neither is it a religious faith cure or Christian Science stunt. It is not a vibratory electric massage treatment, mental suggestion—no, and it is not a belt or mechanical device of any kind.

"I have tried many such fakes. I tried drugs, pills, capsules, harmful concoctions to rub on the body. I have tried sweating and taking Turkish baths, exercising, physical culture and everything known to science without result, and without losing weight. As I was about to despair and give up in disgust all further efforts to reduce my enormous weight, which was two hundred and four pounds, I, by lucky accident, learned of the most simple, harmless, rapid, safest fat reducing treatment on earth. I tried it on myself with astonishing results. My friends stood aghast in amazement, marveling at the wondrous change in my appearance. My fat just rolled away. After the first three days I noticed it beginning to leave me. My reduction grew greater and greater until finally, I was almost appalled with delight when I realized the stupendous success of my efforts and when I awoke to the fact that I had reduced 70 pounds of my fat without leaving a wrinkle, and the glory of my new figure and the grace and beauty of my curves gave me the admiration of the world. I enjoyed the triumph of my life and the success of my whole career when my manager, Mr. Shubert, on account of my glorious new figure, made me the star of the 'Passing Show,' and, mind you, this very same manager had said I was doomed to oblivion just a short time before when I tipped the scales at two hnudred and four pounds. I was crushed and bewildered when he told me he could not give me a part in the 'Passing Show' unless I could reduce my enormous weight, and my heart hangs heavy with the memory of the fat days that are gone when my fat, ungainly figure made me realize that I was doomed to despair and failure.

"My success in reducing my own fat proves that there is no such word as 'fail.' I simply would not be resigned to my fate, and although everyone said 'Texas, there is no way out of your dilemma,' and told me that no fat reducing specialist could reduce my weight, I determined not to give up in despair, with the result that I absolutely conquered my fat. My new, great book on obesity, which gives full particulars of my simple, safe, quick, harmless fat reducing treatment, is now ready and will be sent free to all who wish to reduce their weight any number of pounds."

It is simply astonishing the furore this new treatment is causing among the intimate friends of Miss Guinan to whom she has given it. A letter from the world's most famous dancer, La Petite Adelaide, says: "Dear Miss Guinan: Let me congratulate you upon the high excellence of your remarkable new obesity treatment, which I find reduces me as rapidly as I desire. Sincerely, Adelaide." Other letters of praise and gratitude are pouring in to Miss Guinan from all parts of the country from those who have reduced with her successful treatment. Louise Brunelle, the Quaker maid, one of the earth's greatest beauties, states she lost ten pounds the first week with this astonishing new treatment. It is said this remarkable treatment is not unlike the treatment used by the court ladies and famous actresses of the Old World, who have been using a similar remedy throughout Europe, and the remarkable thing is that Texas Guinan is the first to introduce it in America. Her free book, which is now ready for distribution, should be requested by all who desire quick reduction. It is written in a fascinating style. It explains how, by her treatment, Texas Guinan, who is acknowledged America's most successful star, reduced her own weight seventy pounds, and conquered the monster FAT.

This glorious little woman is doing her utmost to benefit fat men and women who are in need of a perfect home treatment. Everything will be sent to you in a perfectly plain package so that in your own room, away from all prying eyes, you may plan to reduce your weight at once. Miss Guinan wants to help all who are burdened with superfluous fat, and thereby make her life really worth while.

Write her at once, and learn the anguish she felt when her girlish beauty started to develop to abnormal proportions. Read of the tears she wept when that monster "fat" made her realize that she must give up her profession and fade into oblivion. Learn how she experimented, how she tried everything and, finally, with patient effort and determination she conquered her fat. Learn of these things so you may improve your own form and destroy your own fat so it will not be longer necessary for you to suffer the jibes and sneers of others. Remember there is no exercising or physical culture of any description in her treatment, no harmful massage or worthless poison body lotions. You may eat as many meals daily as you desire and go right on rapidly reducing. A most astonishing part of this fat reducing treatment is that it does not produce wrinkles or leave the skin flabby. All who have been dieting and starving themselves, trying to reduce their weight, and who have been taking exercises and internal baths and who have been taking internal and external remedies, should write for a copy of her great FREE book entitled "RAPID WEIGHT REDUCTION WITHOUT EXERCISE, DIET OR INTERNAL REMEDIES," so that you may start to reduce your burdensome fat as rapidly as you desire. Simply write a brief letter or a postcard and ask for her new book. Everything will be sent absolutely free. Do not send any money, because it is absolutely free.

NEWS OF Women and Society

Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. James A. Massey entertained Thursday evening at their home on Hill street in celebration of their twelfth wedding anniversary.

The home was attractively decorated with growing plants, and early fall flowers, and in the dining room a French basket filled with yellow roses formed the centerpiece of the beautifully appointed table, the minor details of which continued a color scheme of white and gold.

Mrs. Massey wore a gown of white satin charmeuse veiled with princess lace, and was assisted in the entertainment of her guests by Mrs. J. C. Harrison, Mrs. J. B. Grant, Mrs. J. H. Owen, Mrs. Anne Bunch, Mrs. O. H. Mathews, Mrs. Hattie Sanders, Mrs. A. L. Moss, Miss Geneva Moore and Miss Sallie Massey.

Punch was served on the porch by Miss Minnie Skinner and Miss Alice Pause.

Many presents were received, among them being a cluny lace cloth presented by the members of the Domino club of which Mrs. Massey is a member.

Club Entertained.

Mrs. Ida Glen Little delightfully entertained her club, the "Forty-two Special," and a few other guests at her home on Argard avenue Thursday afternoon.

The color scheme was beautifully carried out in autumn shades. The floral decorations in the living room and dining room were golden glow, golden-rod and fernery.

Mrs. Little was assisted in enter- [illegible] ne Morton.

At the close of the game refreshments were served, after which followed the election of officers for the new series.

Mrs. W. M. Nichols was elected president, Mrs. W. M. Burgess, treasurer, and Mrs. A. G. Nickles, secretary.

The club will hold its next meeting at the home of Mrs. W. B. Calhoun, in West End.

The invited guest swere Mrs. L. A. Bailer, Miss Katherine Morton. The club members present were Mrs. W. M. Nichols, Mrs. E. A. Dobbs, Mrs. E. D. Little, Mrs. N. C. McPherson, Mrs. T. G. Hucks, Mrs. W. B. Calhoun, Mrs. W. H. Burgess, Mrs. A. G. Nickles and Miss Cora Brandon.

Musical Tea

The Woman's auxiliary of the West End Baptist church will entertain at a tea Monday afternoon, September 29, at the church, the occasion to celebrate the closing of the work of this fiscal year.

An interesting program has been arranged by Mrs. E. H. Worrell and Mrs. M. B. Curtis and follows:

Mrs. A. C. McHan, presiding.

Vocal Duet—Misses Julia and Allie Purser.

Reading—Miss Sadie Chambers.

Piano Solo—Miss Edna Meigs.

Reading—Miss Nina Wilson.

Violin Solo—Miss Nellie Turner, accompanist, Mr. William Worrell.

The reception committee is composed of the members of the executive boards of the closing year and of the new year.

The hour is 4 o'clock and every member of the auxiliary is given a special invitation to come.

Mrs. A. C. McHan is president and Mrs. Rush Irwin corresponding secretary of the auxiliary.

Modern Priscilla Club

Mrs. O. P. Hodo entertained the Modern Priscilla Sewing club Thursday afternoon at her home on Park avenue.

An interesting contest was a feature of the afternoon.

Mrs. C. W. Arnold won the prize which was a hand-embroidered centerpiecce.

The house was decorated with goldenrod and punch was served throughout the afternoon.

Mrs. Hodo was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. Spier.

Besides the club members present the guests were Mrs. Berry, Mrs. Spier and Miss Pearl Simmons.

To Embroidery Club

Mrs. J. Farmer entertained her embroidery club Friday afternoon at her home on McLendon street. Punch was served by little Miss Rachael Farmer. At the close of the meeting ices were served.

The hostess was presented with the club plate. The members and guests included: Mrs. Frank McCormack, Mrs. Harllee Branch, Mrs. Walter Mathews, Mrs. Antilotti, Mrs. J. C. Cook, Mrs. Thurman, Mrs. Robert McCollough, Mrs. Hope, Mrs. Starling, Mrs. Hugh Thrash, Mrs. Gault, Mrs. Smoot and Mrs. Stephens.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. Harllee Branch at her home on McLendon street.

To Bride-Elect

Mrs. A. J. Young entertained Friday afternoon at her apartment in the Oglethorpe in compliment to Miss Katherine Deihl, whose marriage to Mr. P. A. Brady will take place Tuesday.

The rooms where the guests were received were decorated with quantities of goldenrod and yellow daisies, and in the dining room was an artistic arrangement of palms and growing plants.

Mrs. Young wore lavender crepe de chine, and Miss Deihl's gown was of gray crepe de chine with hat to match.

Tea was served during the afternoon by Mrs. W. F. Lee and Mrs. M. Brady.

Invited to meet the guest of honor were Mrs. Michael Brady, Mrs. P. G. Keeney, Mrs. J. M. Hewitt, Mrs. Hattie Sanders, Mrs. Frank Turner, Mrs. J. D. Brady, Mrs. L. A. Heptinstall, Mrs. W. F. Lee, Miss Annie Deihl, Miss Elizabeth Burke, Miss Susie Park, Miss Marie Brady, Mrs. Earnest Goodroe, Miss Florence Deihl, Miss Mary Brady, Miss Rose McElhinny, Miss Lucile LaHatte, Miss Laura Burckel, Miss Regina Lynch, Miss Katherine Brady, Mrs. A. L. Deihl and Miss Annie Lee.

Golden Wedding Celebration

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Smith celebrated their golden wedding at the residence of their son, Mr. W. E. Smith, at Austell.

They were assisted in entertaining by their children, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Smith and Mrs. M. E. Cain, of Austell; Mr. and Mrs. R. B. Smith, Mrs. T. J. Spinks and Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Smith, of Atlanta, and Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Smith, of Dallas.

The house was decorated throughout with yellow autumn leaves, goldenrod and yellow chrysanthemums and the same golden color scheme was continued in the dining room, where ices were served by the three young granddaughters.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith were the recipients of congratulations and cordial wishes on the occasion of their fiftieth wedding anniversary.

Candy Pulling

The ladies of St. Anthony's guild of West End will hold a candy pulling and entertainment Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the parochial school on Ashby street. All are invited; tickets, 10 cents.

Afternoon Party

Mrs. Harry Poole entertained at a most beautiful party on Friday afternoon at her home on Cascade road.

Vases of pink and yellow roses were in profusion.

Punch was served in the dining room by Mrs. Ansley and Miss Marie Norrsi.

About thirty ladies enjoyed the game, after which a luncheon was served.

Mrs. Frank Parks gave selections from Uncle Remus, which were beautifully rendered, and very much enjoyed by the ladies present.

Mr. William S. Eakin Weds Miss Bean, of Louisville

The wedding of Miss Riely O. Bean, of Louisville, Ky., and Mr. William Swift Eakin, of this city, was an event of this evening at 5 o'clock at the Highland Presbyterian church in Louisville.

A beautiful musical program was rendered before the ceremony, consisting of the following numbers:

"Romanza"—William Y. Webbe.

"Chanson De Joie"—Hailing.

Palms and bride's roses were used in the decoration of the church.

The wedding cermony was performed by Rev. T. M. Hawes.

Among the out-of-town guests in attendance at the wedding were: Mrs. M. C. Bean, of Toronto, Canada; Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Hood, Atlanta, Ga.; Mrs. James Anderson, Richmond, Ky.; Mrs. T. S. Todd, Richmond, Ky.; Mr. A. C. Bean, Indianapolis, Ind.

Mr. and Mrs. Eakin left immediately after the ceremony for an extended trip to the Pacific coast, after which they will be at home at 349 Myrtle street.

Birthday Party

Miss Mary Lois Wheeler entertained a number of friends Wednesday afternoon at the home of her parents on Central avenue, the occasion being her birthday.

Beautiful musical selections were rendered by Miss McClair and Miss Erd.

Punch was served by Mrs. Flo Wheeler Johnson and Miss McClair, and ices, cakes and mints of pink and white were served at a late hour.

Miss Wheeler was assisted in receiving her guests by her sister, Mrs. Flo Wheeler Johnson, a recent bride, and her mother, Mrs. W. T. Wheeler.

Those invited were Miss Annie Downing, Miss Elsie Erd, Miss Allie Hazel McClair, Mrs. A. M. Balding, Mrs. Benton George, Mrs. L. M. Bostwick, Mrs. J. T. Anderson, Mrs. L. E. Wheeler, Mrs. Bryce, Mrs. Biggers, Mrs. C. A. Hardy, Mrs. W. T. Wheeler, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Johnson and Mr. Percy Charlie Cuttle, of Norfolk, Va.

Joy-Seekers' Club

The guests present were Miss Gladys Smith, Miss Gabrielle Lowenthal, Miss Ruth Everhart, Miss Marie La Fitte, Miss Leah Young, Mr. Hal Montgomery, Mr. Robert Steele, Mr. Robert Everhart, Mr. Ernest Lowenthal, Mr. Richard Hodnett, Mr. Massenburg, Mr. Rich-Edwards and others.

Third Ward Club

The Third Ward Junior Civic club met last Friday afternoon with Miss Edith Couch at her home on Cherokee avenue.

The girls are making aprons for two orphans whom they are supporting. The club is going to have a rummage sale the first Saturday in October, and all are invited to send their rummage to the home of Mrs. Justis, 616 Woodward avenue.

Young Musicians Entertained

Master Harold Hollingsworth entertained recently the members of the Shaw Orchestra, of which he is a member, at the home of his aunt, Mrs. Wade Grant, Ormewood Park.

Several selections were rendered by the orchestra, after which refreshments were served in the dining room.

Heart-Dice Party

Those invited were Misses Fannye and Irene Bond, Miss Mae Foot, Miss Mattie Roane, Misses Mary and Pearl Kemp, Miss Dorsey Durdin, Miss Annie Laurie Herring, Miss Bessie Herring, Mr. Sm[illegible], Mr. Joe Ivey, Mr. Albert Kemp, Mr. Hoover, Mr. Will Kemp and Mr. Jim Ivey.

To Mrs. Gunter

One of the delightful affairs of the week was Mrs. Virginia Gable's "at home" which was complimentary to Mrs. Bohn Dan Gunter.

Golden-rod and ferns were arranged artistically in vases and jardinieres throughout the house, the color motif of green, white and yellow prevailing in decorations and in the ice course served during the afternoon.

Heart-dice was played, Mrs. Laura Kilgore making top score. Miss Nell Strauss was given the consolation. The guest of honor was presented a half dozen silver oyster forks.

Mrs. Gunter was given a shower of china, linen and miscellaneous articles after the game.

Miss Helen Lumpkin served punch and Mrs. Gash was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. W. M. Strauss, Miss Nell Strauss and Miss Bess Bumstead.

Among the guests were Misses Nell and Lena Strauss, Misses Gertrude and Annie May Jenkins, Misses Mamie and Lona Headin, Misses Mildred and Lucile Parr, Misses Grace and Willie Bell Mauck, Miss Johnnie Jones, Miss Mildred Laird, Miss Helen Lumpkin, Miss Bess Bumstead, Mrs. Laura Kilgore, Mrs. John Sage, Mrs. W. Jacket Eleven Proves Winner Over Soldiers

Army Boys Put Up Stubborn Fight—Showing by the Tech Team, While Good, Was Not the Best—Score 19 to 0

Encountering most stubborn resistance from the football team of soldier boys from Fort McPherson, the Tech Yellowjackets were able to win the opening game of the season on Grant field Saturday afternoon by a meager 19 to 0. On the whole the showing by the college boys was a trifle disappointing, while the opposition displayed far more gridiron sense and ability than any one had looked for.

Scoring by the Jackets consisted of three touchdowns and one goal from touchdown, two of the touchdowns coming in the third quarter, and the third in the final ten minutes of play. In each instance the touchdown was made possible as the result of some spectacular end running by the Jackets, gaining consistently through the Army line being a near impossibility.

As an early season football game the Saturday battle was most excellent. The weather was of course a bit warm for the winter sport and the players worked at a disadvantage in ploughing through a new field in such hot weather, but despite this enough substitutions were made to keep the two teams in fair shape to keep up gruelling work throughout the forty minutes of actual play. This with the remarkably good showing of the Army team served to keep interest keen throughout.

SOLDIERS HELD WELL.

As a starter Coach Heisman sent his regulars into the line-up but they failed to show, none of the scoring being accomplished until a few substitutes had been made and the soldier boys began to tire. The varsity bunch seemed unable to get started properly, the end runs failing to show sufficient interference, while on line plunges the interference did not open up the proper holes and there was entirely too much fumbling. For a couple of quarters this kept up and in the third period a batch of fresh material was sent to the rescue and these boys managed to come out with a couple of touchdowns in very short order.

Soon after the start of the second half Captain Homer Cook intercepted a forward pass and get away for avery long run, placing the ball so near the Army goal line that McDonald had little trouble in taking it over for a score. Then Jim Peras booted it between the goal posts for an additional point and the score was 7 to 0.

Soon after the first touchdown Preas ploughed his way directly through the soldier line for some thirty yards and a touchdown. He did a bit of neat dodging and hard running. The long run by Preas followed a couple of neat end dashes by Alf McDonald and Fielder. It was in the fourth quarter that the third and last score was made. Fielder, Cook, Johnson, Montague and Preas worked the ball up the field to within striking distance of the soldier line and then a line smash put it across. A fumble near the goal line just before the end of play was all that prevented the Jackets from adding another score in this last quarter.

JACKET LINE WEAK.

While it was not expected that either team would show up in mid-season form, the work of the Jacket line proved a bit green. They did not appear to know just how to open holes for the line plungers back of them and on end runs failed to properly dump their men. In the line are four new players, Ed Means being the only veteran, and this doubtless accounts for the failure of the men to dump properly.

The backfield did exceptionally good work, considering the very short time it has been at work. Cook, Johnson, Preas, Montague, Fielder, McDonald and Reifsnider all showed good strength at advancing the ball and aiding the runner and it is quite evident that the Yellow and White is to be well equipped back of the line during the coming campaign. The big improvement for a winning club must be in the front line.

There were decidedly few spectacular plays, the Tech backfield working good gains from time to time, while the soldier boys played a remarkably strong defensive game during the first two quarters. On the offense the army men were weak, showing the lack of practice, yet it was apparent that Lieutenant Devore has a bunch he can mould into a real good football eleven, all the men being willing to work and knowing far more gridiron rules than any one dared expect.

Alf McDonald, Captain Cook, Jim Preas and Tally Johnson began the game as the Tech backfield and all did good work throughout. McDonald also punted unusually well. Tyler Montague and Fielder, two backfield men who received a trial late in the game, also showed up exceptionally well. Fielder proved especially strong at running back punts, while Montague more than once wiggled and squirmed his way for long gains. With just a little more weight this lad would be one grand football player and as it is he is going to worry some one for a regular berth with the squad.

Quarterback Swartz was the star for the army team. Very few of the army players did any especially strong work on the offense, being unable to consistently gain ground, yet on the defense there were any number who were always right in the thick of the fray and often after being dumped by the interference would grasp out and pull down the runner. Bradbury, Bingle, Mahoney, Knight and McGary all starred on the defense.

The new concrete stands at the field were used for the first time and the seating capacity of 2,500 was completely taken, the game being well attended for a practice affair. And all were rewarded with a bit of real football.

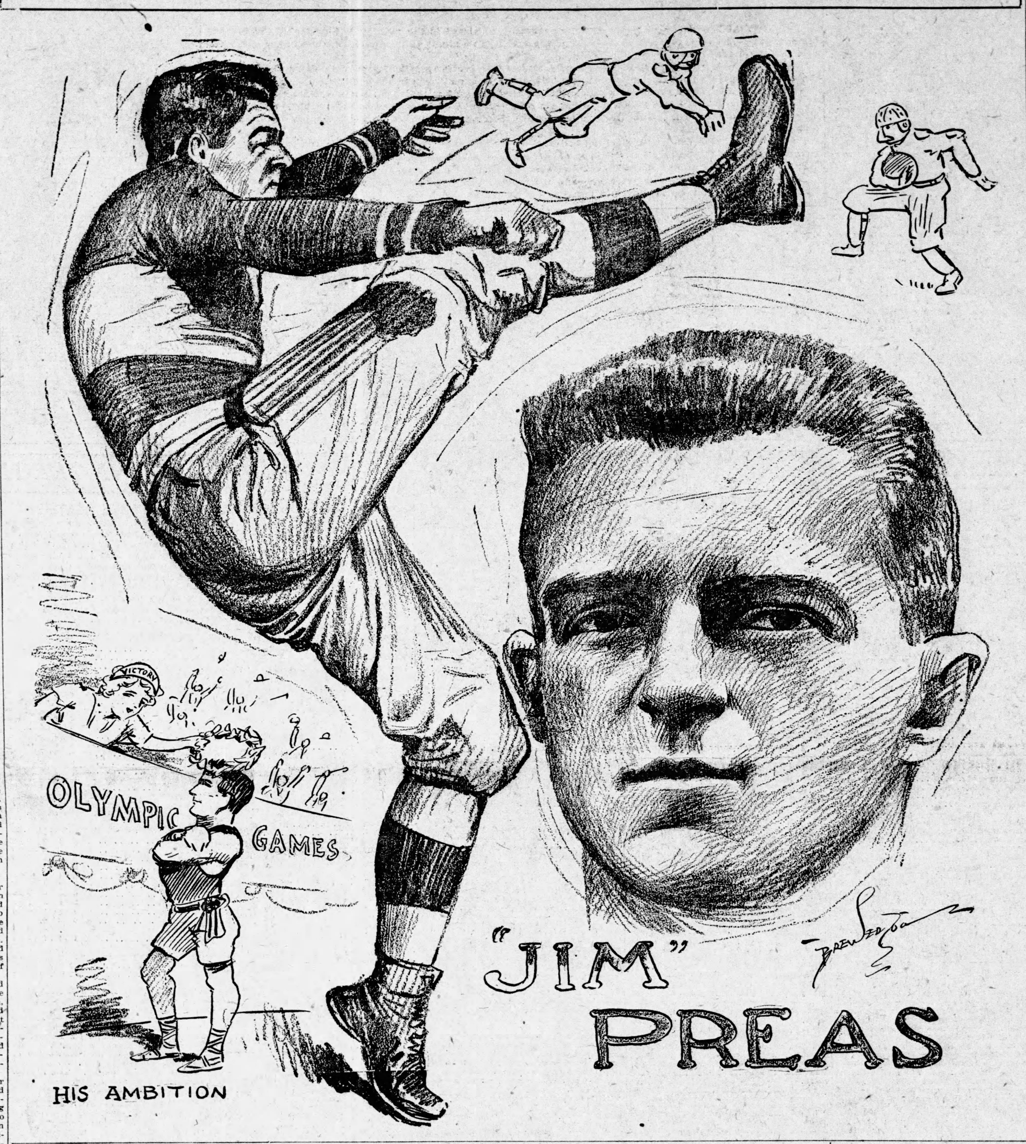
TECH STAR MAY BE ON AMERICAN OLYMPIC TEAM



TO BECOME AN OLYMPIC STAR JIM PREAS IS NOW WORKING

With an ambition to some day become a member of the American Olympic team and a most excellent chance of some day realizing this long-nursed desire, James Preas, of Johnson City, Tenn., is now a student at the Georgia School of Technology and is working daily to improve his powerful physique. And he is studying just as hard to improve his mind and from latest reports he is meeting with the greatest success in both branches of work.

Though a mere boy, being 19 years of age, Preas was long ago picked by athletic experts as one of that attracts the eye of anyone, being built along that attracts the eye of anyone, being build along the lines of a man who can put the shot, hurl the discus or do any number of other weight achievements while at the same time his muscles are supple enough to make him swift in the dashes or good enough for high jumping or hurdling.

In short Jim Preas is an athlete who is built for a star at any game. This is the very best of expressing it and until one has seen him on the track, gridiron or diamond you can't realize his all round ability. He does a bit of everything and does each in amazingly good fashion.

There have been numerous athletic authorities who have seen Preas in action and each has dubbed him "The Jim Thorpe of the South" and rightfully so. Raised outdoors Preas has not neglected to train his every muscle. He is not the kind who went in for one branch of athletics and let some few of his muscles grow stale from lack of work. He was always willing and anxious to devote time to every branch of any game and the result is that he is a star on track, gridiron and diamond.

Since entering Tech, where he is sure to be a football star this season, Preas has attracted the attention of Ben Adams, an American Olympic star of past years, who is now situated in Atlanta, and this athlete is going to devote much of his time to leveloping Preas, to an even greater extent. Adams has been through the mill at more than one Olympiad and can show the new Thorpe many of the finer points of the game.

Preas, who right now is devoting his time to football at Tech, is 19 years of age, weights 193 pounds and hails from Johnson City, Tenn. He has had experience at football, baseball and track and is a star at each. And before his course at Tech is completed Atlantians will doubtless have an opportunity of seeing in action one of the greatest athletes ever developed in the South.

New York Has National Rag

The Giants win. This was truly to be expected, but the actual cinching of the pennant beyond the shadow of a doubt did not take place until Saturday. Boston's defeat of Philadelphia turned the trick. Although the Giants themselves were defeated by Brooklyn they win the pennant for 1913.

If Philadelphia should win every other game and the Giants lose every other they would still be ahead by four points.

The Athletics cinched their rag some days ago, and it is now a settled fact that McGraw and Mack will again face each other in the big series.

SOUTHERNERS WHO STARRED

Nap Ruker held the Giants to four hits, getting away with his game in Zach Wheat faced the Giant hurlers ZZach Wheat faced the Giant hurlers three times and came off with a perfect record. One was a home run and one a double.

Al Demaree lost to Brooklyn. He allowed ten hits in seven innings.

Jake Daubert was up four times and got two hits.

Slim Love relieved Groom after Washington had the game with New York sewed up. He gave up two hits and a base on balls in two innings.

Al Bridwell could not connect in three trials.

CHAMP'S WORK

The Giants were considerably off in their hitting when they faced Nap Rucker Saturday. The four hits they got were gotten by Merkle, Myers, Shafer and Fletcher.

Demaree had the inevitable off day, allowing ten hits in seven innings. Al was hit frequently for extra bases also.

The Athletics only hit Collins six times during the game, scoring three runs. Baker got a double and a triple, while Oldring also got two hits out of four times up.

AUBURN IS TO BE CONTENDER

Without the least bit of hesitation, Mike admits that he is going to have a good eleven this season. Of course, he will miss four of the regulars who have been lost by graduation, but even with that, he will return many stars

COBB'S WORK

Cobb and Jackson faced one another in a double header on Saturday, and the pitchers' fur flew. In the first game both men were particularly busy. Cobb got two triples and Jackson one. In the first time Cobb got three out of four times up.

For the day Cobb got six out of seven. Jackson got two out of seven.

Final Matches For Golf Title

Only two more matches remain to be played, before the final golf tournament of the season of 1913 is finished. They are the matches between J. O. Smith and E. H. Barnett, for the championship of the T. A. Hammond tournament, which has been running at East Lake for the past week. The other one is to be played by W. J. Tilson and W. R. Tichenor for the cup offered to the winner of the second flight.

J. B. Pollard defeated E. T. Winston for the cup offered the winner in the third flight, and E. G. Beaudry, by winning from H. H. Albert at the nineteenth hole, won the cup in the fifth flight. The match between Albert and Beaudry was very spirited and sensational throughout, the players being tied up to the final green, and was finally won by Beaudry at the nineteenth hole.

FIRST FLIGHT.
(Semi-Finals.)

J. O. Smith defeated W. P. Hazelwood 3 up and 2 to play.

E. H. Barnett defeated W. H. Griffith 3 up and 2 to play.

SECOND FLIGHT.
(Semi-Finals.)

W. R. Tichenor defeated C. J. Hulditch by default.

W. J. Tilson defeated G. W. Adair 4 up and 2 to play.

THIRD FLIGHT.
(Semi-Finals.)

Perry Adair defeated D. E. Root 4 up and 3 to play.

Scott Hudson defeated W. P. Webster by default.

FOURTH FLIGHT.
(Finals.)

J. B. Pollard defeated E. T. Winston 4 up and 2 to play.

FIFTH FLIGHT.
(Finals.)

E. G. Beaudry defeated H. H. Albert 1 up at the nineteenth hole.

May Rule Out Grid Players Of Two Teams

S. I. A. A. Executive Committee Orders Investigation Into Eligibility at Georgia and at Tech

Insinuations that both the University of Georgia and Georgia School of Technology now have on their football squads players who are ineligible to participate in regular college games were made by the executive committee of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic association at its meeting here Saturday. No players from either school had been protested and yet the executive committee held a session and ordered that the presidents of the two schools make a thorough investigation of all players at their colleges and then report to the committee.

Members of the executive committee stated that the sole reason for the Saturday session was to trace down rumors regarding the eligibility of players who are now working for the football teams at the two colleges. The three committeemen in attendance at the session—Prof. W. M. Riggs, of Clemson, who is acting president; Prof. E. T. Holmes, of Gordon, who is secretary, and Prof. John Morris, of Georgia, who is president of this district—did all in their power to ascertain the truth or falsity of the rumors, and then referred the whole matter to the presidents of the two schools with instructions to report back to the committee their findings.

Just to a casual outsider it begins to look as if there is about to be another big wrangle in the S. I. A. A. The association has rocked along in an even manner for some seasons, and it is just about time that something out of the ordinary is started. Undeniably there have been many rumors oncerning the eligibility of certain athletes who are working for positions on teams in the association, but for the executive committee to call a meeting just on account of the rumors was a bit out of the ordinary and entirely unexpected.

It has long been a rule that the college officials attest to the eligibility of their athletes, and the request of the committee that these officials make a thorough investigation is but an order that the S. I. A. A. rules be carried out, which, supposedly, has been done in past years. Names of the players suspected of being ineligible were not hinted at by any member of the committee, all preferring to be quiet along this line. They had only to say that persistent rumors had come to them and to protect the good name of the association they met and decided to give the officials of the two colleges a chance to clear their own skirts before being called up for an official investigation by the S. I. A. A.

No idea as to the rumors was hinted at by the committee, yet from the fact that especial notice was called to the awarding of scholarships it is quite evident that this end of the game is to be investigated. The rules of the association provide that scholarships may be awarded but that they must be of a permanent nature. And a scholarship to be permanent must be from some well-founded source and have been passed up by officials of the institution. This prevents the awarding of scholarships for one year just to get some good athlete in school, and from the report o fthe executive committee it is evident that they suspect the scholarship idea is being infringed upon.

Under the instructions from the executive committee the presidents of the two schools will make the eligibility investigations immediately, and if they are not satisfactory the committee will itself meet in both Athens and Atlanta and investigate separately the two schools.

B. H. S. Eleven Loses Game

GAINESVILLE, Ga., Sept. 27.—In the first game of the season played here this afternoon at Riverside park, the Boys' High school of Atlanta was defeated by the Riverside Military academy by the score of 41 to 0.

The game was slow on account of the intense heat, but take it all in all, the game was an interesting one from a spectator's standpoint. There was very little difference in the weight of the two teams, and during the first quarter Riverside was able to score but once. Soon after the second period began, the superior speed of the Riverside team began to tell, and soon they were scoring at will.

Riverside's back field showed up wonderfully well for this early in the season and bids fair to give some trouble later to all comers in prep circles. For the Boys' Hi the playing of Knox was specially noticeable.

LEFT HANDERS WILL STAR IN CHAMPIONSHIP BATTLES

Plank is the best southpaw in the American league. Marquard is the ranking left-hander of the National organization. The fans, the best of both leagues, are sitting up nights in frantic anticipation of the day whenever the twain shall meet.

For that coming October afternoon appears a bit hazy in our imagination, hazy with flying fur as we see those valiant southern paws slashing 'round and 'round and back and forth in the sunlight.

It will be a battle of youngster against veteran, the long against the short, youth against experience.

On one side we see Eddie Plank, a "grand old man"—veteran of Gettysburg and some thirty-eight years of age—soon to be thirty-nine, with thirteen consecutive, successful seasons with the Athletics, toiling silently and seriously.

On the other side dazzles "Rube," the brilliant—some fourteen years younger in age and some eight years younger in experience, oftimes erratic, but alway brilliant, toiling determinedly, yet smilingly, as he unwraps that pliant arm from around his wry neck and abruptly shoots 'em across.

They met once before—two years ago—and the veteran won. But this time, well, we shall see, but it does look like a big day for we fans—and a bum day for ye left-handed batters.

DETROIT TAKES TWO

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 27.—Detroit captured a double-header from Cleveland here today, 7 to 6 and 4 to 3. The first game was a slugging match. The second contest, closely fought, was called on account of darkness after the first half of the seventh inning. The double defeat tumbled the Naps from second place and advanced Washington, which won from New York today, to that position.

Detroit used two pitchers and Cleveland called on three in the first game.

In the second game the Tigers scored their winning runs in the sixth inning. Until then the game had been a tight tussle between Willett and Cullop. Cobb's wonderful batting today practically made certain that he would lead the league again this season. In each game he secured three hits, while Jackson's total for the afternoon was two. Cobb pounded out two triples, a double and three singles. Scores:

SOX DOWN ST. LOUIS

CHICAGO, Sept. 27.—St. Louis was helpless before the pitching of Jim Scott today and lost here today, 2 to 6, to Chicago. Scott struck out fourteen of his opponents, one fewer than the season's record, held by him. Bisland was the only visitor who did not fan. Fournier's triple in the first inning with the bases filled gave Chicago enough to win. Score:

ATHLETICS LOSE

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 27.—Boston won today from Philadelphia, 9 to 3, the visitors knocking Chalmers off the rubber. Rudolph was very effective except in one inning.

After the game Shortstop Doolan, of Philadelphia, went into the bleachers after a spectator, who he claims called him insulting names. The man declared he was knocked down by Doolan. Policemen prevented serious trouble. Doolan said he only pushed the man.

OPENING DAY ON THE GRIDIRON

TENNESSEE WON

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 27.—Tennessee rushed Carson-Newman down the field for four touchdowns in the first quarter of the opening game of the season here today, and substitutes were switched into the Volunteer line-up during the remainder of the game, Tennessee winning, 28 to 0.

Tackle Kelly, Halfbacks Callahan, Dawson, Thomason, Jacob, Fullback Lindsay and Quarter Rainey were the stars. About half the game was devoted to experimenting, which kept down the score.

PENNSY GOES STRONG

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 27.—Pennsylvania showed better form in her opening football game of the season today than the Red and Blue has displayed in her first game in several years, defeating Gettysburg college by the score of 53 to 0. Pennsylvania defeated the same team last year 35 to 0.

The home eleven played with much snap and force. Gettysburg was weaker than expected, being unable to fathom Pennsylvania's play, and had difficulty in stopping the Red and Blue's dashing backs. The Pennsylvania eleven worked almost like clockwork. The plays were gotten off well and there was very little fumbling.

Minds and Marshall played exceptionally fine football. The former took Gettysburg's kick-off at the opening of the game down the field 75 yards for a touchdown. This completely upset the visitors, and the Quakers ran through them for 26 points in the first period. In the second period Minds caught a punt on his 10-yard line and by fast sprinting and wonderful dodging, carried the ball 90 yards for another touchdown. Marshall drop-kicked two goals from the field, one from the 20-yard line and the other from the 25-yard mark.

SENATORS TAKE ONE

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—Washington made it three straight from New York, winning today with ease, 8 to 3. Caldwell, the New York pitching star, was hit hard in the second and fourth innings. Pieh, who relieved him, pitched well except in the seventh inning. Groom pitched brilliantly for the visitors. Love, an Atlanta recruit, relieved Groom in the eighth inning, and the locals scored three runs on him in the ninth inning on two singles and four bases on balls. The victory sent Washington to second place: Score:

YALE WINNER

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Sept. 27.—Yale defeated the Holy Cross eleven this afternoon, 10 to 0. The Blue team scored in the first period on a field goal from the 20-yard line by Guernsey, captain of the freshman eleven last year. In the second period Holy Cross attempted a drop kick from the 30-yard line, but it was blocked.

Early in the final period Holy Cross was driven back steadily, until the ball was in Yale's possession on the visitors' 7 1-2-yard line. Then the latter held and Yale lost the ball on downs. A few minutes afterward Yale scored a touchdown, the tally being made possible by a bad punt against the wind by Donovan, of Holy Cross, which sent it outside his own 25-yard line.

A 5-yard gain around the end by Knowles and forward passes by Ainsworth and Guernsey carried the ball close to the Holy Cross line when a quick quarter-back play through center brought the score. Ketcham kicked the goal.

INDIANA IS WINNER

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Sept. 27.—Indiana university overwhelmed Depauw, 48 to 3, in the opening game of the football season on Jordan field this afternoon. Only in two or three instances did the visitors threaten the Crimson goal, once in the second period, when Rowan, by a place kick from the thirty-yard line, made Depauw's only score.

Indiana, beginning in the second period when the game was won, made changes in the line-up every few minutes, giving all the men a tryout. The Crimson players had much better luck with the forward pass than the visitors and made long gains that way.

CORNELL TEAM TIED

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 27.—Cornell and Colgate battled fiercely to a tie here today, neither team being able to score. The ball was see-sawed up and down the field during each quarter, with Cornell on the defensive most of the game. In the fourth period, Cornell held the ball on Colgate's 1-yard line, but lacked the necessary punch to shove it over, Colgate holding like a stone wall.

The elevens were evenly matched, with the lines comparatively equal in strength. Neither team was able to gain consistently through the line—Colgate's team contained nine veterans, who played on the team which defeated the Red and White last year by a score of 13 to 7.

The punting and running back of Barrett was a spectacular feature of Cornell's play. Colgate made gains mostly on a fake forward pass and other trick plays. O'Hearne and Swarthout were banished from the game in the third period for fighting.

Vandy Reserves Lose

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Sept. 27.—The Vanderbilt university reserves met defeat this afternoon by a 9 to 0 score at the hands of Castle Heights, a preparatory school at Lebanon, Tenn. The reserves failed to live up to expectations and the defeat was decisive, resulting from a touchdown and a drop kick. The goal from touchdown was missed.

On the reserves were many young stars who were expected to make strong bids for the varsity team.

MINNESOTA WINS.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., Sept. 27.—Displaying strength but apparent lack of teamwork, the University of Minnesota today defeated the South Dakota university football team 14 to 0, in a hard-fought game. Minnesota last year lost to South Dakota.

Motor Events For Tuesday

Manager Noon Hudson is back in the city again to reopen the Motordrome on Tuesday night. He hopes it will not rain.

He reports quite a successful season at Chattanooga, and some fast going. Some of the boys who were with him there have returned, and he now has some new riders to introduce to the Atlanta public.

Flickenstein, who beat Tex Richards in Chattanooga, will be featured in a special match with Graves and Richards on Tuesday.

Manager Hudson states that after Tuesday he will begin running a race program on Saturday afternoons.

Bender of the ex-world's champion Athletics is 30 years of age, while Mathewson of the New York Giants who is expected to oppose him in the first game of the 1913 world's championship baseball series is 33 years old.

VIRGINIA WINNER

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 27.—Virginia got away with her first game of the season, defating Randolph Macon 40 to 0. The team as a whole showed up well and the coaches were pleased with the result. The offensive game as put up by Virginia backs and line was near to mid-season form, but the defense was a bit weak, despite the fact that Randolph failed to score.

Bobby Good furnished the feature of the game with an 80-yard open field run of a punt for a touchdown. Landes at full and Word, a new man, at one of the halves, showed up well and made consistent gains. The line played well, but did not seem to head as fast as was expected by the coaches. Many substitutes were used in an effort to rate the new material.

PRINCETON BIT WEAK

PRINCETON, N. J., Sept. 27.—Princeton defeated Rutgers college in the opening football game of the season here today, 14 to 3, after a hard tussel. The good showing of the New Brunswick team was due in a measure to the weight of the men, but the Tigers offset this with a series of formations not anticipated by the visitors.

Rutgers threatened several times to cross the Princeton goal line, but in each instance the home eleven showed a defensive power which did not characterize their play throughout the game. The Tigers used the forward pass often, but it worked successfully only once, when Brown threw the ball to H. Baker for a touchdown. Frank Glick got away for the first touchdown for Princeton, running sixty yards through a broken field. A punting and the drop kick for a field goal by Talman was the feature play of the visitors.

HARVARD TEAM WINS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Sept. 27.—Harvard's varsity football eleven presented a powerful attack and an impervious defense today in its first game of the season, winning from the University of Maine, 34 to 0. A complete team of substitutes was called into play for the Crimson in the closing periods.

The feature play of the game developed by the first kickoff, when Logan received Maine's kick on Harvard's 23-yard line and ran 87 yards for a touchdown. A few minutes later Mahan took the ball and carried it 70 yards for another Crimson score.

Straight football put Brickley and Mahan each in positions to cross Maine's line for the third and fourth Crimson scores in the second period. Captain Storer kicked goals from each of these four touchdowns. Harvard's last touchdown was made in the last period by McKinlock. Hitchcock failed to kick goal.

Twice Captain Cobb, of Maine, failed in attempts to drop-kick from Harvard's 25-yard and 30-yard line respectively.

Ouimet Loses; Too Much Golf

BROOKLINE, Mass., Sept. 27.—Defeat overtook Francis Ouimet, the open golf champion of just a week, in the singles for the Lesley cup today. His conqueror by a score of 1 up for the 18 holes was R. S. Worthington, of Shawnee, Pa., leader of the Philadelphia team. The Massachusetts players, however, recaptured the trophy by a total score of 12 to 3.

Ouimet showed unmistakable signs of being overgolfed, for his drives and second shots found traps continually, while his putting was unusually weak. His score of 87 for the 18 holes was the poorest he has made in weeks on the Country club course.

Worthington was not much better with an 84 and many holes were captured in a couple of strokes worse than bogsy. Worthington is champion of home club and has won the invitation tournaments there for the last three years. He has never played on any Philadelphia team before today nor has he ever contested in a sectional or national event.

BROOKLYN, Sept. 27.—Brooklyn closed its home season today with a shut out victory over New York, 4 to 0. Rucker pitched one of his star games and received errorless support. Only one Giant runner reached third. Wheat replaced Stengel, banished for arguing, and on his first time up he drove the ball over the right field fence for a home run. The score:

BRAVES DOWN PHILLIES

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 27.—Collins' pitching was a stumbling block to Philadelphia, the new American league champions, this afternoon, Boston winning 5 to 3. The world's champions hit Houck's delivery at timely intervals, while errors by Baker and Orr accounted for three runs.

O'TOOLE BEATS ST. LOUIS

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 27.—Pittsburg started its final series of the season in St. Louis today, defeating the locals by combining hits and errors. The score was 4 to 3. After one run had been scored and with the bases full and one out in the sixth inning, O'Toole relieved Duffy for the visitors and retired the side in order. Score:

Women's Tennis Title

BOSTON, Sept. 27.—Mrs. G. W. Wightman, of Brokline, who, as Miss Hazel Hotchkiss, of Philadelphia, was the national tennis champion, defeated Miss Evelyn Sears, of Boston, also a former title holder, in the finals today for the Longwood woman's cup. The score was 6-4, 6-2. Mrs. Wightman will play Miss Mary Browne, of Los Angeles, the present champion, and holder of the trophy in the challenge match on Monday.

Daubert Holds National Lead With the Bat

Probable That Ex-Southern Star and Now Brooklyn First Baseman Will Win Batting Honors

Jake Daubert and Earl Yingling still hold their lead of the National league, Yingling, nominally, and Daubert really. Jake's average is .359. He is closely pushed by Hyatt, of Pittsburg, who has an average of .357.

Cravath, in third place place, holds the lead for slugging, with a total of 265 bases.

Pinch Hitters Don't Do Well

LYNCHBURG, Va., Sept. 27.—That the pinch hitter does not avail much in the minor leagues is shown by the numerous fizzles during the season just past in the Virginia league, in which the teams played an average of about 135 games. In these games the "at bat for" hitter was resorted to just 160 times, these resulting in ten free trips to first and thirty-five hits, all of which turned into fourteen runs. The batting average of the at bat for hitters during the season, according to the unofficial records, is just .231. The champion Petersburg team was the only aggregation to pull this stunt off with any degree of success. Manager Busch sent thirty-five men up in the pinches and fourteen times they came across with the goods for bingle, which netted the team just half that number of runs. The other teams fell down generally on the proposition, their substitute hitters batting .179, while Petersburg worked the stunt up to the charmed class, the result being a hitting average of .390.

The fine showing made by Petersburg lies in the fact that Manager Busch had a staff of hard hitting pitchers. Once he pulled the necessary timely bingle, but Hedgepeth did it three times; Brooks, twice; Cooper, four times, and Bregnegan, three. For Roanoke Efird was successful twice and Jardin, once each. For Norfolk Manager Ryan hit once and fourteen other times the pinch hitter failed. In Richmond Manager Griffin resorted to the pinch hitter twenty-two times, from which resulted two runs and four hits.

In one game three such hitters were used, but all of them failed. Petersburg tried it fifteen times, but it remained for Manager Garvin to connect twice and the others failed. Newport News, the trailers had pinch hitters thirty-five times, from which they got one run and five hits, Matthews, Early and Carter each getting one, and Haddow, two.

A study of this record shows ten pinch hitters were walked, Richmond leading with three, Norfolk and Portsmouth with two each, and Roanoke, Newport News and Petersburg, one each.

Demaree Best At Box Game

Ex-Southern League Star Has Good Percentage for First Season

There are only two pitchers in the National league with averages over .800. Demaree, of New York, and Vaughn, of Chicago. Demaree leads with 15 won and 3 lost, giving him a percentage of .833. Mathewson and Marquard are in seventh and eighth places respectively, with averages of .714 and .677.

Selecting a Six Day Team

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—P. T. Powers is selecting his six-day teams rather early this year. In previous years he always allowed the boys to do a lot of worrying before even getting them a contract to ride in the race, let alone select their partners. Now it is different. Yet it is Powers who is making it different. He is playing the game a new way. The riders scheme and declare and blow and bluster about what they are going to do when it comes to signing for the big New York grind, yet when it gets right down to the issue they drop on their knees, as it were, and beg to be let in under any old conditions and at any old price. In making early contracts with the riders Powers knows where he is at. All he wants is a few of the leaders, and the "second cabin" boys will fall all over themselves to get in line. No sooner had "P. T." signed Reggie McNamara and Eddie Root as the first team than the elevator in the Flatiron building began to do a land-office business. Tracks from the Velodrome lead directly into Powers' office, and "Old P. T." sits and grins to himself, but puts on a severe face and a poor mouth when the riders enter. As the wise boys say, "Powers has us on the run." In other words, "P. T." has them coming, which is about the same thing as making his own terms.

The best move so far made by Powers was in securing the signature of Jackie Clark to a contract. This was so easy that even "P. T." hated to do it. Clark had been touted to hold out for big money for the six-day race, but "Little Jackie" went over to the Flatiron building and signed a contract to ride in the New York grind before Powers had a chance to give him more money than he received last year. In fact, Jackie will get the same bonus he received in the 1912 race, and he seems to be well pleased with his bargain. Clark has also selected his partner for the grind. He will be none other than the redoubtable P. O'Sullivan Hehir, who is a truly great rider, but who, somehow or other, never gets anywhere near the amount of publicity given to less able men of the wheel. In selecting Hehir, Clark has made an excellent choice.

Three Players Tied

RYE, N. Y., Sept. 27—At the Apawamis Golf club Thursday over 200 competitors whose ages ranged from fifty-five to eighty-one years, continued play in the annual seniors tournament. A majority of them completed the ful thirty-six holes which constituted two days' play. For the best gross scores for thirty-six holes three players were tied, Herman Wendell, S. T. Davids, of Philadelphia, 81-85-166, and Walter Fairbanks, Denver, Col., 82-84-166.

Marquard and Bender Most Likely to Pitch in the Opening Game, Thinks Detroit Star—Advantage Each Team Has Over the Other Is Explained—Looks As If Series This Season Will Be Close and Extremely Hard-Fought, as Both Teams Are Primed for the Fray

BY TY COBB.

(World's Greatest Baseball Player.)

Copyright, 1913, The Philadelphia Press.

With the baseball season of 1913 nearing an end, it is definitely settled that the Philadelphia Athletics, of the American league, and the New York Giants, of the National league, will meet in the world's series. Every fan in this great country of ours is puzzling his brains trying to choose the winner; the sporting editors are resorting to figures to compare the relative strength of the teams, individually and collectively; pages of "'dope" will be filled and presented to the public before the umpire starts the first game of the coming series.

Before delving into this great problem let me predict that this will be one of the greatest series ever played and that the attendance will probably be greater than ever before. The battles will be staged in two of the largest cities and situated close together in two of the largest and finest ball parks in the world. But the big attraction will be that the two teams appear so evenly matched that I believe it will be a toss-up which will win.

As a matter of fact, I believe the relative strength of the Athletics and Giants, when they face each other for the first game, will be more nearly equal than that of any contenders for this great honor who have crossed bats since the beginning of these baseball classics.

FIGURES DON'T TELL MUCH.

Figures don't tell us very much about the contesting clubs this year. At least, I believe that for the most part figures will have to be eliminated from our attempt to analyze the possibilities of the coming struggles.

At this time, the contenders have pretty near the same average in their respective leagues, the Giants having the best of it b yabout twenty points. That means both clubs have found the opposition from the other seven in their organization about equally strong. The result is that neither team has run away with the pennant.

It has been the usual case for one of the pennant-winners to capture the flag rather easily, coming down the home stretch at such a neat pace that they showed more strength than the champions in the rival league. But this year, as all the fans will see, things are more equal, though the Giants have been traveling at a better pace than the Athletics in the last month.

The Giants' pitchers are performing like pennant winning hurlers should and look dangerous for this year's series. On the other hand, the Athletics have been stumbling along, not showing the strength that they did in the campaigns of 1910 and 1911.

Manager Mack will have a great problem in picking the probable pitching winners for the big games next week.

Manager McGraw's task may be far easier, for he will have Mathewson, Marquard, Tesreau and Demaree to select from.

ATHLETICS' PITCHERS NOT CERTAIN.

The Athletics' general will call upon Chief Bender, Plank, Shawkey and Bush, Brown or Houck. To my way of thinking, Brown would be a mighty good bet in this important series if his control was good, as I think he is a very effective pitcher. Shawkey, can be relied on to twirl a jam-up game. Bush has shown decided improvement and I believe, from experience, might make trouble for New York if started.

Of course, the Athletics have switched pitchers frequently in games played this year and the judgment showed in the managerial moves has been good. In the world's series, however, it seems unlikely that either manager will depend upon such tactics. He will start the man he thinks best fitted to go through to the finish and win.

Young Pennock, I imagine, would be Mack's best relief twirler, though of course, Bush, Houck and Brown will be available for those roles if they do not start games. McGraw has Fromme, Crandall and Wiltse, but he has such a wealth of good material in his first big four—Matty, Marquard, Tesreau and Demaree—that I don't believe he will resort to his second-string pitchers, using instead as relief flingers, in case of necessity, the best he has.

The pitching situation has been sized up in a general way only to lead us to the critical part of this article. You all know how important good flinging is in a short series or games when so much is at stake. Considering the strength of both staffs, McGraw has the better looking proposition, with better relief men. Don't misunderstand that statement to mean that the victory is conceded to the Giants. I'll explain:

BENDER VS. MARQUARD.

I make the prediction that Bender, for the Athletics, and Marquard, for the Giants, will be on the mound in the opening game. And if Marquard is New York's pitcher, I believ Ira Thomas will be Mack's catcher. Meyers will receive behind the plate for McGraw.

Much depends on that first game—more than many would think.

All reports are that Bender is in great shape. If he is in his old-time form, and has the strength to go through, he ought to be a mighty hard man to beat. But, if the Chief pitches this first game and loses, I think it will decide the series in favor of New York. If he should win, the Athletics have a good chance to be returned the winners.

If New York should win the opening engagement, all Manager Mack's defensive plans would go up in the smoke of the battle. In 1911, when the Chief twirled the first game and lost to Mathewson, 2-1, Mack had Plank and Coombs in wonderful shape to back up that loss, both of them being able to come back the second time in the series. In the 1913 series, Plank can probably be relied on for only one jam-up game, as he has been complaining of rheumatism the later part of this season. Eddie, however, may be used as a finisher and do well. Coombs' illness prevents him from figuring in the approaching contests.

Unless something happens before the opening game to change my opinion, or unless the managers employ tactics which surprise me, I will watch the start of the 1913 world's series with more interest than I have displayed in the last three years.

The catching is always an asset in the baseball classic, but outside of general headwork, the men of the mask will undoubtedly not figure to any great extent in a short series like this. The base runners won't be sprinting wild on the paths until their team has the game already won. When there are only seven games to be played, a man on base is a valuable asset and he will not take any chances trying to snare an extra sack by stealing—that is, it has not been done much in world's series of the past where just straight baseball has been played for the most part.

Of course we may have a lot of base running, more than was ever known before in any one series, for with the teams apparently so equally matched, the managers may resort to desperate tactics to try to win. But it will likely be done after the game has been decided one way or the other by other offensive plays.

The Giants have the advantage in the catching department. They have a more formidable array of backstops in Meyers, McLean and Wilson. While Thomas will no doubt be in good condition for the coming series, I don't believe the Athletics' backstops will perform up to the standard of the Giants' maskmen. Schang, if he were more seasoned, would probably display some good work, he being a good hitter and a fast man on the bases.

MACK INFIELD IS BEST.

Comparison of the two infields shows that the Athletics have it on the Giants so far that it is useless to waste much time discussing that phase of the series. In hittting and fielding ability, Mack's quartet is superior. I think from what I saw of McInnis, Collins, Barry and Baker in our recent series with the Athletics that they are fielding far better and snappier than at any time during the years they have been playing together. If they play the article of ball against the New Yorkers that they did against the Detroit club when we were last in Philadelphia, you will see some startling all-round work.

The Giants' infield has changed a lot this summer, they having suffered from many accidents. They play fairly well together, but not near up to the standard of the Athletics. Doyle, their real hitter, has slumped and is not even batting .300. So if the Mack pitchers come near being in form I don't think the New York infield will do much damage.

McGraw's outfield, on the other hand, will need strict attention, for that young man Burns seems to be a big improvement over Devore, and if he lives up to his record for all season, he will do surprising things to the Athletics. Murray, it is safe to predict, will not be humiliated as he was in 1911, when he did not make a safe hit in the entire series, and I look for jam-up work from this scrappy right fielder. Snodgrass, if he has luck, may atone for his misfortune of the 1912 series.

Therefore, in comparing the outfields, if Oldring and Strunk begin the battle in good condition, which I hear they will, there is not much to choose between Philadelphia and New York in that respect. Mack would seem to be better fortified with substitutes, for he has Oldring, Danny Murphy and Walsh, all right-handed batsmen, and Strunk, Eddie Murphy and Daley, who bat from the left side, giving him material to inject into the games according to McGraw's pitching starts or shift.

ATHELETICS WHANG THE BALL.

That brings us down to the hitting strength of the two teams. In that respect, the Athletics have their one great asset, and that is to whang the ball—whang will not be found in the dictionary, I imagine, but it is an expressive word, and thoroughly covers that slamming that has won so many games for the Mackmen.

The Athletics, by the figures in unofficial averages at the time I am writing this, are batting as a team at a .281 pace. The combined average of the Giants is .268. That is a difference of thirteen joints, which means a lot in a team average.

Manager Mack has five men who can be termed regulars, hitting over .300 with Eddie Murphy as high as .292 in the averages which I have before me. When you can count on five players batting .300, you have an asset on the offense that has got to be reckoned with.

New York has only one man hitting over the .300 mark, Meyers, the catcher. Fletcher, though, can practically be called a .300 batsman. It looks to me as if this last-mentioned player has corrected a batting fault, and I suspect he will be a much feared man when at the plate in the big games.

Now the Giants, with only two men around the .300 division, appear very weak on the attack. If their pitchers should happen to fall down and not deliver as they did during the season, or if that season's stride would not be good enough to withstand the five or six .300 hitters of the Philadelphians, then the Athletics would have an easy time slugging their way to the world's championship. It is just such points that make important series interesting and baffle the man who tries to select the winner.

It is not hard to see that the Mack pitchers, weak as they have appeared at times, may have an easier time holding the weak appearing hitters of the Giants than the New York crack flingers will have against the slugging Mackmen.

GIANTS SCORE FEW RUNS.

During the last two or three weeks, Mathewson, Marquard and Tesreau have lost games because the Giants could not score for them. One or two runs in a number of instances was the margin which gave opponents of McGraw's club the victory. The pitchers have held the opposition down all that could be expected, but the New Yorkers could not register at the plate.

New York has shown more even strength than the Athletics in the trend of the race. The Giants, up until September 21, had lost as few as four games to one team and as many as eight to another, their average against each team being very strong. They have won as few as ten games from one of their rivals and as many as sixteen. This makes a very strong showing and shows conclusively that New York has been playing ball every day the whole year and that weakness hasn't cropped up for any length of time for this season of 1913.

On the other hand, the Athletics have trounced New York sixteen times and their lowest average was against Boston, having beaten them only ten times up to last Wednesday. Chicago, a fifth place club, triumphed over the Athletics on eleven occasions and the margin of losses by the Athletics was wide as the minimum and maximum is three and eleven, showing quite a range of form.

The Athletics have one great thing in their favor and that is that they can put seven men who have played regularly and can be termed regular players, including the pitcher and catcher, that bat right-handed against any left-handed pitcher that New York puts in. The two left-handed hitters are Baker and Collins and neither is weak against off-side pitching.

On the other hand, when a right-hander faces the Athletics they can send in seven left-handed batsmen, having only Barry and McInnis hitting from the right side of the plate. By this plan, Manager Mack will not detract from the strength of his team to any extent within only two exceptions—Danny Murphy may not be quite as fast a fielder in right as the left-handed hitter, Eddie Murphy, and Daley may not be as good a batsman as Oldring.

CLUBS APPEAR WELL MATCHED.

Summing it all up, I want to reiterate the statement that the contending clubs appear well matched. I believe, though, that if the Giants win the first game, they will win the series much easier than will the Athletics if they capture the opening engagement.

I believe that Marquard and Demaree will be the most effective pitchers in the series. Of course, Mathewson has always given the lie to those who predicted his downfall and I will not predict it in this series. But I believe the style of Marquard and Demaree will be more successful than Matty's. Tesreau is liable to run into trouble against the Athletics.

This whole series will not be a question of base running and tactics so much, excepting, of course, the selection of the pitchers. It will be just a case of pitching and batting. If the Mack twirlers can hold New York down just fairly well, I believe the Athletics' batsmen will bang out enough runs to win for them. On the other hand, if the Giants show a reversal of batting form and their pitchers hold the Mackmen down at all, New York will win easily.

Scientific tactics will not have much to do with this series, but the game will be competently handled and there will not be as many mistakes as in the series of 1912, when in every game mistakes which were vital to the best interests of the teams were made.

The batting and fielding records of each club show very interesting figures and these give the Athletics the advantage over the Giants. The Athletics in the averages published last Sunday had accepted a total of 5,669 chances with only 197 errors, the Giants having accepted 5,768 chances with a total of 224 errors. This gives the Athletics a comfortable margin.

As mentioned before, the Athletics lead the Giants in batting. In this respect, as in fielding, the Athletics led their league, while the Giants were third in batting and fifth in fielding. In long hits by clubs, the Athletics lead their league with an average of .397. The Giants rank fifth in their league with .356. The Giants do not lead in any one department of team averages, while the Athletics lead the American league in every department.

On the other hand, the pitchers of the Giants collectively are far and away ahead of the Athletics' pitchers.

NEW YORK HAS GOOD RESERVES.

The Giants are better fortified with utility players, having Hersog, Grant and McCormick, the latter the dependable pinch hitter. The only infield reserves the Athletics have are Lavah and Orr. Neither can hit very well.

One thing in the Athletics' favor is that they clinched the pennant two weeks before the time for the series to begin and will be able to work and study in order to prepare for the big battles. I thought they showed decided improvement in the last few games against our club and they have the men who should brace and get the machine running smoothly. However, as I have said, I think that pitching and batting will decide the issue—that is, the club which combines those two qualities best will win and there will be no other factors in the conflict worth mentioning.

It is impossible to say at this time who will be the actual winner of the 1913 world's series, and I wouldn't feel like hazarding a guess for the Athletics and Giants are about equally strong. Therefore, I have not picked the winner exactly, but I have tried to show how the series hinges upon several things and the team which best follows out that campaign will be returned the victor.

Johnson Easy Box Winner

Washington Crack Out in Front of American League Flingers

Johnson is still head and shoulders above all other American league hurlers. His average of .829 boosts him high above Houck, in second place with .765.

Here are the averages of all who were pitching over .500 through the games of Wednesday last:

Many Heats Run; Time Proved Slow

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Sept. 27.—All three of the class races which, with the finish of the 2:09 trot that was started on Thursday, comprised the program for the fifth day of Columbus' Grand Circuit racing, were split up so that fourteen heats were raced during the afternoon. Fields were large and the time average comparatively slow.

Grand Marshal took the one heat needed to settle the 2:09 trot. Bismya, of the Proctor stable, Readville, Mass., was favorite in the 2:19 trot, and won after the first heat had been taken by Marta Bellini, the second choice. Judges hesitated about declaring the 2:11 pace completed after the fifth heat, done in 2:18 1-4 with a sprint through the last quarter in 28 3-4 seconds, had been won by Colonel Franklin, but after a delay did so decide.

Great Scott, except in the second heat when a path along the rail was blocked had no trouble in leading the 2:18 pacers home.

Each Team Wins

LONDON, Sept. 27.—The international aviation contest between America, England and France, which began at Hendon today was about evenly divided. The American team, G. W. Beatty and W. L. Brock, took first place in the alighting competition, second place in the quick starting and third in the team race. England won the team race and France the quick starting event.

Cobb Leading At Last Lap Hitting Race

Now but Little Chance for Speaker or Jackson to Oust the Detroit Star, Who Will Again Be the Best

Ty Cobb is now on the home stretch of his race for the American league batting honors. Jackson is twelve points behind Henricksen. Cobb is holding behind Henriksen. Cobb's is holding well above .380.

Jackson is batting .373, while Speaker has fallen to .364.

Here are the averages of all who were batting over .250 through last Wednesday's games:

Players Ask New Rulings

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 27.—Members of the Detroit American league baseball club here confirmed a report that the Baseball Players' fraternity has drafted a series of demands which are to be presented to the owners of major league baseball clubs during the winter for their approval, after which they will be submitted to the national commission with the request that they be made part of the laws governing organized baseball. It was said that already 65 per cent of the members of the Players' fraternity have indorsed the proposition.

Four important demands are under consideration, it is understood. They are:

No player who has been a member of a major league club for ten years shall be given other than his unconditional release.

No player who has been a member of a major and minor league club, inclusive for twelve years, shall be given other than his unconditional release.

No player who has been carried on a major league club's pay roll until July shall be released to the minors unless waivers are secured from the sixteen clubs of the American and National leagues.

A major league club owner shall be prohibited from carrying a player who has an opportunity to play on another major league club until the late months of the season, thus taking advantage of the time when the teams are carrying many recruits to send the player in question to the minors.

Many major league ball players are reported to be willing to agree to refuse to sign future contracts unless the demands of the fraternity are accepted.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—The Cobbs, Wagners, Mattys and Johnsons don't make all the baseball history. Figures for both leagues show that many other players are establishing records, and doing it so quietly that the general public doesn't even know about it.

How many fans can name the leading base stealer in the National league? Not many, eh? Well, he's Max Carey, of the Pirates, who tops the list with 53 stolen bases, and yet Maxey preaches in the winter; Doyle comes in fourth with 35 and Burns is next with 34. Murray and Merkle squeeze in the first ten with 33 bases each, yet this time last season the Giants had a better showing with five men among the leaders.

Then there's another surprise when Old Man Tommy Leach is discovered the best run-getter in the National. The little fellow was too old for Pittsburg, but since joining the Cubs Leach has scored 85 runs in 114 games. The Giants haven't produced a man in the first ten run-getters so far, ample proof that New York runs have been hard to manufacture lately.

Premier batting honors in the National go to Cravath of the Phillies. This slugger has walloped out hits for a total of 260 bases. Cravath has eighteen home runs, thirteen triples and thirty doubles to his credit, all good for an average of .607 per cent, 200 points better than his nearest rival. Again the Giants fail to place a man in the ten leading sluggers.

The Dodgers head the list in club batting, and the Giants are in a three-handed tie with Philadelphia and Pittsbuag for second place.

Three triple plays have been pulled off in the National this season, Pittsburg, St. Louis and Boston each turning the trick.

The batting duel, considering only the hits and extra bases, in the American league, between Jackson and Cobb shows Jackson at the top with an average of .557; Cobb in third place with .528 and Tris Speaker as a buffer is between them with an average of .540. Baker is still the home run king with eleven circuit clouts.

The Athletics show four players among the first ten leading sluggers, not a very nourishing thing for Giant supporters to digest. Mack's team leads in club batting and in making long hits. Not satisfied with this showing, the Athletics also lead in club fielding, and still many say the Philadelphia machine has become rusty.

The fleetfooted Milan, of Washington, is the American's best base stealer, with sixty-six larcenies. Cobb is second and the Athletics enter two men in the first ten.

For getting runs the Rthletics have a monopoly. Eddie Collins alone has tallied 111, Murphy 94, and our old friend, "Home Run" Baker, has come across the plate 98 times. Not far behind these there comes Rube Oldring with 87. These four players alone scored 390 runs for the Athletics.

Scrimmages for Auburn Eleven

AUBURN, Ala., Sept. 27.—Friday afternoon Auburn student body witnessed a battle royal between varsity and the reserves. The game was divided into four ten-minute quarters, and every minute of the time was full of spectacular playing on both sides. Major kicked off for the scrubs and Sparkman returned the ball to the center of the field. Then by series of brilliant line plunges by Pendergast and Bidez, varsity carried the ball over for the first touchdown, without losing it once. Then the scrubs braced up and no more scoring was done until the third quarter. The final count was 18 to 0, in favor of the eleven.

For the reserves Cleveland Carey, Robinson, and Dupreg played great ball. Arnold and Newell worked well for varsity in returning punts.

Arnold is playing quarter this year, and he is both heady and fast. Captain Newell is playing one half and Hart, Harris, and Pendergast will do the work on the other side. Taylor and Bidez will probably do the bulk of the work at at full back. The coaches are working hard to develop a man for this position. Another problem for the coaches is the development of a good punter. Youirell and Pendergast, a new man, will probably do this work this year.

In the early part of the season it was feared that the team would be greatly lacking in weight. The most sanguine of its supporters admit that it is not up to the form it has shown at this time in former seasons.

The return of the two veteran linesman Pitts and Yockwood, however, has greatly bolstered up the team. Pitts, weight and experience makes him a man to be feared at center, and Yockwood is a great guard.

On the side lines Friday afternoon the hospital corps loomed up in discouraging numbers. Hart and Kearley have injured shoulders, Taylor a sprained ankle and Lousell is injured. During the game Arnold was added to the list. All of these men will be out of practice for some time and some of them for the rest of the season.

On the coaching department, Coach Donahue has two able assistants, George Pinton, the great fullback of '07, '08 and '09, is the first assistant. Ed. Bragg, one of the alumnae coaches, is also on the field every day. These men can be depended upon to do all that is possible with the material at hand.

Newnan to Go Higher in the Next Race

NEWNAN, Ga., Sept. 27.—The local baseball association received a telegram today from Manager George Rohe, saying that he has completed plans for Newnan to buy a franchise in a higher class league and that particulars would be given later.

Newnan led the Georgia-Alabama league last year in attendance and the finances showed at the end of the year that the attendance would permit a larger salary limit, thus allowing Newnan to play higher class ball.

RIVALS IN GREAT WORLD'S SERIES

The Star Third-Sackers of Giants and Athletics—"Home Run" Baker and Herzog Will Meet Again

It was "Home Run" Frank Baker, the Athletics' third baseman, whose bludgeon made possible the winning of two games in the world's series of 1911, between the same teams which will struggle for the supremacy this fall.

In the second game, with Plank and Marquard pitching, Baker poled the ball over the right field fence and scored Collins ahead of him. In the third game he caught one of Mathewson's curves on the inside of the plate and dropped it into the Giants' pavilion for another trip around, tying the score in the ninth. The Athletics won in the eleventh on errors by Herzog and Fletcher.

Both Herzog and Baker are improved players now. Both have been through the fire, Baker in one and Herzog in two world's series. Both are hitting the ball better and the struggle between them promises to be keenly contested. Herzog hit .400 against Boston last fall.

ALMOST PICK LINEUP OF THE GEORGIA TEAM

ATHENS, Ga., Sept. 27.—The Red and Black squad is certainly being given a stiff work-out on Sanford field every day now. The huskies report for practice every afternoon at 4 o'clock and don't leave the field until 8. During this time the coaches put the men to hard practice, as much as any ordinary football prospect can stand up under. Every afternoon this last week has been very warm, and frequently the men get too hot, but every man is putting his shoulder to the wheel and hopes in his meager way to help build a good team. There is one thing that you can never get the best of, and that is that old Georgia spirit. Whenever the band plays "Glory to Old Georgia" the blood runs cold in your veins, and that same spirit is behind the football squad this year.

At the first of the season things looked like they had gone to the bow-wows, and now things are brighter because every man seems to have that old grit and determination in him that is sure to win out in the long run. At every practice there is a big crowd of spectators and it is real interesting to see the activities on Sanford field. On one end Cunningham has about twenty or twenty-five men, returning puts ad doing open field tackling, going from one end of the field to the other "Bob" McWhorter can be seen giving hard practice to the new men who aspire to be his running mates.

Assistant Coaches Ketron and Peacock occupy a big part of the field with their big husky linesmen, making them charge, charge, charge, until they can hardly stand up. Over on the side of the field you see Charlie Thompson, Don McKinnon, "Billy" Powell and John Henderson doing some fine punting. Each one of these men (while neither is a toe artist) show good form at this job, and now it seems like a toss-up to see which one will land the job. Ed Broyles, an Atlanta boy, has a good look-in for this punter's place, for that boy can naturally transfer the pigskin from one place to another with apparent ease.

Thursday and Friday were the hardest work-outs that the Georgia squad has yet had. Both afternoons the boys left the field almost exhausted. Friday afternoon Coach Cunningham cut loose his store of plays and had the teams running up and down and across the fields like men in mid-season form. Friday's practice was the first real signal work that has been done here so far. But now since it has started it will be a regular thing every afternoon.

As is always the case in the beginning of the season a large number come out for practice, but as the work got harder and harder they dropped off one by one, so it is at Sanford field.

About thirty or thirty-five reported for practice Friday afternoon, but these look like they have got that stickability in them and very few more if any will drop away from now on.

Johnson on Diet Hurls Star Ball

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 27.—Walter "Smokeball" Johnson, monarch of the mound, is pitching himself to glory on a diet of pudding, sherbet, cake and iced tea. Perhaps no other pitcher in the history of the game ever performed so valiantly on so weak a diet, yet Johnson never indulges in more food at noon than pudding, sherbet, cake and iced tea.

"I don't believe in eating much," says Walter, "before going out to the ball park. Overloading the stomach is bad for a player. I like pudding and cake. The sherbet or ice cream is soothing to the stomach, and so is the iced tea. Then when I come back to the hotel I eat my heartiest meal of the day.

"Does so much iced stuff hurt me? I think not. I used to have a lot of ice cream sodas during a day. Milan and I were known as the ice cream soda boys a year or so ago, you know, but we've cut all that out. I like ice cream and sherbet just as much as ever, but I keep myself down to one order at noon and another at night."

Turn Verin Club Will Have Boxing

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 27.—An amateur boxing tournament, under the auspices of the National Turn Verein will be held at its club house, in Bruce street, on the evenings of October 4 and 6. Preliminary bouts will be staged on the first named date, while the semi-finals and finals will be contested on the latter. A gold diamond mounted ring will be awarded the winner of each class, while ruby mounted gold rings will be offered the second man.

A handsome trophy, valued at $50, will be awarded the club scoring the most points in the series of tournaments which will be conducted at the National Turn Verein during October, November and December. F. W. Baumbusch, secretary, is receiving the entries, which will close on October 2.

Hurlers Hurt By Catchers

Often a Catcher Will Make Pitcher Change Delivery and Ruin Him

PITTSBURG, Pa., Sept. 27.—Many a young spitball pitcher has been ruined, or nearly ruined, because a catcher tries to make him change his delivery.

Some catchers are either too lazy to back up a spitball or are afraid of the fast-breaking shoots, so they keep signaling for curves or straight balls until the twirler loses control of what he already possesses.

Of course this refers to recruit twirlers. Older heads wouldn't take that kind of stuff from the incompetent backstop.

The hardship can easily be seen when the same catcher works with the pitcher practically every game he works. After throwing curve after curve and not using the spitball it isn't long before his arm begins to go back on him, especially so when he isn't a regular curve ball worker.

In addition to this, if the pitcher makes any complaint, the catcher spreads the report that the kid's hitter isn't worth a hang and doesn't break enough to baffle the batter, so he says he has to keep calling for the curve. This is why he meets the objections of the recruit. It is generally a catcher who is afraid of his own job and hasn't enough principle to get out and hustle.

It must be discouraging to the youngster who believes in his own ability to throw the spitter and realize he is a goner if he tries anything else.

Victory to American

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Sept. 27.—M. E. Pomeroy, of this city, won the world's championship at checkers, from Alfred E. Jordan, of England, who has held undisputed possession of the title. The competitors were tied up to the fiftieth game at one victory each, forty-eight games having resulted in draws. Pomeroy learned to play the game in a backwoods grocery store at Sidney Center, N. Y., his home, many years ago.

PATTON'S RUPTURED KNEE IS OLD FOOTBALL INJURY

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 27.—The injury which is now keeping Jean Patton, the local gridiron star upon the hospital list at Tech, much to the dismay and sorrow of the Jacket rooters, is not a new one. The Baylor "war horse" received the injury in a prep school fray here two years ago. His mishap consisted of a ruptured artery in his leg and must be given careful treatment and attention. When Patton first bursted the blood vessel, his physician advised him to go to the hospital for treatment, but Jean refused as the member grew better. It gave him trouble at various intervals, however, for practically a year afterward.

When he entered Tech Patton, as well others, thought that he had completely recovered from the injury but a sudden strain undoubtedly caused the weakened vessel to open again.

Local gridiron followers are in great hopes that Patton will be in excellent condition on October 11, as Tech plays the University of Chattanooga here upon that date. Patton is a great favorite in this burg.

Rival Teams Claiming Ryan

LYNCHBURG, Va., Sept. 27.—Announcement has been made of the signing of Ray Ryan as manager of the 1914 Richmond team, the statement being given to the press Tuesday by Secretary Bradley, of the Richmond club. Ryan is spending a few days in Roanoke, where he played several seasons and from which team he was sold to one of the Chicago teams, to be turned over to Birmingham, of the Southern league. He will spend several weeks looking over semi-professional material in Ohio and then go to his home in Cincinnati for the winter.

Coupled with the statement from Richmond that Ryan had been signed there, comes a statement from Dr. McCrary, president of the Norfolk Tars to effect that Ryan was under contract as player to the Tars and he did not know whether he would be released or not. Reference to the reserve list of the Tars, however, fails to disclose the name of Ryan in the list.

This leaves Roanoke and Norfolk without managers, for Busch has signed again at Petersburg; Mathews at Newport News and Garvin at Portsmouth.

Sewanee-Tennessee Clash at Andrews

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 27.—The Sewanee-Tennessee game here this year will be played at Andrews field, the ball park being secured from the local diamond moguls for the first time for football purposes. Last season President Andrews refused to permit football to be staged on the lot, fearing that the cleated shoes would prove injurious to the young grass on the diamond, but he considers the vegetation hardy enough to withstand the inroads this year.

Arrangements for the game are already being made by the committee having the fracas in charge. Alumni of both schools are also actively at work preparing a reception for their respective representatives. There are several hundred alumni of the two schools in this city. Lee Tolley, the Tigers' rack quarter, is a product of the McCallie school here, being an old rival of Patton.

Pressly seems determined to quit and this puts Roanoke in the field for a pilot, with Norfolk also looking out for a new man.

Overland

With Cray & Davis electric starter and generator

50,000 cars—Not enough!

FOR from every indication and from orders on hand we could double our 1914 production—make 100,000 cars and still be behind in orders. We have on file immediate shipping orders for over 10,000 cars. The new Overland has been on the market for less than one month—yet in that short time—in 30 days—we have received orders for one-fifth of our entire 1914 production.

For example: Away up in a very small town in a remote corner of the great northwest, a dealer had contracted for 40 Overlands to be taken during the next twelve months. This is a big order for that section of the country. The publication of our announcement (last month) brought him such an overwhelming batch of cash orders that he came straight to Toledo to literally beg for more cars. He stated that he would take the entire shipment of 40 cars in one month instead of twelve months as originally contracted for.

On the other hand our dealers in the large centers would take 500 cars apiece right now if we could supply them. But 150 a day is the very best we can do at this time. And these 150 per day we are carefully and equally distributing all over the country.

Such selling records have but one meaning. Such a demand must prove to you beyond all doubt that the Overland is the most economical and practical buy on the market.

It is magnificently finished in dark Brewster green, trimmed in polished nickel and aluminum, running boards and wheels to match—but the price is lower.

Never before such value for such a price!

It is conservative to estimate that on the average the new Overland costs you 30% less than any other similar car made. And a production of 50,000 cars is the reason.

Get in touch with our dealer. Arrange for an immediate demonstration. September and October are the finest motoring months in the year. If you are thinking of getting a car negotiate today. Make your appointment now.

Player Crop Proves Large This Season

Majors Spend a Bunch of Money for Youngsters to Replace the Worn-Out Stars of the Past Battles

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—One crop failure not included in the latest report of the government is the crop of ball players harvested in the minor leagues and distributed among the big league clubs at various times through the season. Although most people don't know it, this crop has registered a greater deficit than the corn crop so much lamented, due, however, to an overproduction of bone rather than a lack of rain.

This has been a rather remarkable year for the number of players recruited from the minors and particularly for the amount of money expended in the search for talent. Several of the clubs in the two big leagues found themselves in great need of new material shortly after this season began and as a consequence scouts combed the bushes and picked up everything that looked like a possible ball player. Along with the increased demand the price of talent went up and the result was that more high priced players came under the big tent in a few months than had come into the leagues in several years before. But the high prices do not seem to have increased the quality, for from statistics not furnished by the government experts it appears that from 150 recruits only eighteen have made good, or 12 per cent. There are, of course, more than this number still remaining in the big leagues, but they have not made good yet. The Yankees, for instance, have in Maisel, the boy secured from Baltimore, a player who will likely stay with the club next season, and one or two others may help swell the number of successful bidders; but at that, the crop is a failure as far as figures are concerned.

Schalk, Schang and possibly McKee are the only recruit catchers who have made good. Five pitchers, Russell, Demaree, Bauss, Boehling and possibly Shawkey, can be considered as big league hurlers. Myers, Moranville, Chapman and Viox have been the only real finds among the infielders, unless Maisel comes through with the promise made for him, and Eddie Murphy, Stengel, Veach and Connolly are probably the pick of the recruit outfielders.

It is one of the peculiar fates in connection with the recruits that clubs most in need of good players got fewest of them. The Yankees and Cardinals, two clubs that were in bad need of material to bolster up a succession of weak places got very little from the minor leagues. Frank Chance has two or three players now who show promise, but none that can be classed as a star or who can be said to have shown real class. He, however, may develop good players from these recruits and at least he lost nothing in those he let go to make room for the new men.

Demaree, of the Giants, and Boehling, of the Senators, have been the best pitching finds of the year. Demaree has been a consistent winner and has a fine chance to lead all of the pitchers in his league this year. He should also be a prominent factor in the next world series. He came from the Southern league without any big price on his head and began winning games from the first. Boehling supplied Clark Griffith with the southpaw he so much wanted. He became quite a sensation when he rang up a string of straight wins during the middle of the season. He made a good running mate for Walter Johnson.

Schang, of the Athletics, and Schalk, of the White Sox, are considered two of the best young catchers that have broken into the big leagues in many years. The Boston Nationals picked up two of the best infielders the minors turned out in Myers, the tall first baseman, and Moranvile, the diminutive shortstop. Stengel, of the Dodgers, has been the find of the season among the outfielders. His hitting had a good deal to do with the good showing Brooklyn made in the early part of the race. George Burns, of the Giants, is probably one of the best outfielders to find regular work this season, but he can hardly be considered a recruit of this season inasmuch as he had been with the club for two years before he became a regular for McGraw.

Which goes to show that many are called, but only a few respond with the goods.

Smith Seeks Moran Fight

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—If "Gunboat" Smith and Frank Moran do not meet in this city before the latter sails for Europe early next month it will be through no fault of Jim Buckley, who guides the pugilistic destinies of the former. Since Moran whipped Al Palzer so decisively on September 3 his friends have proclaimed him the white champion, and it has been rumored that he will meet Jack Johnson for the heavyweight title in Paris. Some talk there has been of Smith and Moran meeting in a ten-round contest in this city. It has amounted to little more than mere words, however, for Dan McKetrick, the suave manager of Moran, has shown little real desire for sending his man into the ring against the hard-hitting Californian.

The rival managers met a few days ago, and Buckley, with his usual directness, at once challenged McKetrick to allow his man to meet Smith in a ten-round contest. Buckley explained that the two big clubs would willingly make offers which could not be refused, but McKetrick declined to make an answer. Buckley argued as he alone can, but his argument failed to bring the desired result.

"If you will let Moran meet Smith in a ten-round contest, I will agree to let the bout go through on a winner-take-all basis and we can decide upon a corps of reputable newspaper men to select the winner," he said. "If you don't want to box winner-take-all, Smith will agree to split the purse, 60 per cent to the winner and 40 per cent to the loser, the decision to be made by the newspaper men. We will bring Jack McGuigan over from Philadelphia as referee, so that both sides will be certain to get a square deal." McKetrick, however, refused to talk. He hid behind the law preventing decisions and laughed at the irate Irishman and his challenge.

Smith and Moran, it will be remembered, met in a twenty-round match out on the coast, in which Moran was outpointed. He has always contended that it was a lucky punch that started him on his way to defeat—a wild ring swing, which kept him dazed for several rounds. After he recovered from the effects, he explained, he went ahead and was winning at the end. His numerous admirers are willing to believe his statement, and point with pride to the way he outboxed Palzer. The fact remains, however, that any heavyweight in the world might have whipped Palzer quite as easily, and that today Moran is not falling over himself to risk an easily earned reputation with a real fighter.

Cannot Spend Olympic Fund To Help Stars

Looks as If the British Committee Intends to Spend Talent Fund to Pay Athletes for Their Work

LONDON, Sept. 27.—The Fencing association, the Swimming association, and the Gymnastic association have all now published their schemes of training for the Olympic games at Berlin in 1916 under the Talent fund appeal for $500,000 made by the Duke of Westminster and other notable men. It is the German wish that gymnastics should form a very considerable part of the games of 1916, and our gymnasts, who are improving and multiplying rapidly, surprised everybody by their excellence at the Stockholm games. More gymnasia, apparatus and instructors, and an organization for getting together full teams for Berlin, are what the association seek. In regard to fencing, it is only proposed to take special steps three months at most before the games. If funds are sufficient the association would wish to provide "probable and possible representatives" with adequate instruction in the foil, epee and sabre at suitable grounds in London. The Swimming association has a more elaborate scheme. It is already getting a return of the best swimmers in each of the five districts of the association, and the giving of badges for those who reach certain standard times, already fixed, and of perpetual challenge cups and gold medals for time trials at eight separate Olympic distances is among its proposals. It would appoint for twenty-five weeks during the summer months seven instructors for the various strokes, two for distance, and one each for breast and back. Finally, there is a general recommendation for the provision of winter training for picked men and women, and for the encouragement of high and fancy diving. The branch of athletics in which Great Britain is most backward is field sports—javelin, discus, and weight throwing, pole jumping, jumping, running, etc.—and to cultivate this branch to the utmost is one of the great objects of the Talent fund.

Mr. J. E. Sullivan, secretary of the American Olympic committee and secretary and treasurer of the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States, is much exercised in his mind as to the way in which the Talent fund will be spent. To an interviewer he said:

"If the funds now being collected are to be attributed to the taking of men systematically from their employment and making it worth their while to train hard at athletics in order to keep the British colors well to the fore at Berlin in 1916, it is nothing but flagrant professionalism, and I heartily indorse everything Mr. Harrison had to say on this score in his letter to the Times. America will not tolerate this kind of thing, and you may take it from me, wil promptly withdraw from the games.

"But if, on the other hand, England intends to employ the sum subscribed to improving its athletic equipment and indiscriminately to give opportunities to the youths of the country to go ahead and train for the events on their own initiative, well and good. I believe we have in the United States amateur athletics in its purest form. We do not spend a half-penny on our competitors for the games beyond paying their fare. The moment any other country does otherwise it is good-by to the Olympic games and good-by to sport. I think it should be clearly stated how the money is to be used by England, as every true amateur sportsman is waiting to know this." However anxious Mr. Sullivan may be with regard to the way in which England will spend the talent fund, there is no doubt in his mind as to the part the United States is going to play. He has just been on a visit to the Olympic college of France, at Rheims, which is subsidized by the government, and he is much impressed by it. "France," he says, "has a great future in athletics. I even believe she will prove to be the runner-up to the United States in the games of 1916."

It need hardly be pointed out that no word in any of the published schemes suggests that young men are to be taken from their employment and supported and trained in idleness, and in saying how little was done for the American athletes at Stockholm by contributed money Mr. Sullivan forgets the professional coach and the admirable application of many thousand pounds in training and sending over the team together as a team.

This is the history of the inception of the talent fund, as given by Mr. J. E. K. Studd, one of the special committee of the Olympic council, and a member of one of the most famous athletic families in England: "The dissatisfaction expressed at the Stockholm arrangements and results was so widespread that negotiations were entered into with the British Olympic council for the formation of a special committee. The committee found, among other things, that with the exception of rowing and football no association possessed funds for Olympic affairs, though each was officially represented on the British Olympic council, and that the 'ideal schemes' submitted to them called for a sum of over $195,000, apart from any fund required for central training ground and quarters, or for the transport of British representatives to and from Berlin and for their accommodation while there. The committee reported accordingly, and the appeal for $500,000 was issued. The appeal having been issued over the signatures of those whom the nation honors and trusts the decision rests with the people of Great Britain."

No Music at Games

MINNEAPOLIS, Sept. 27.—There will be no music at the University of Minnesota football games this year—at least not by the university band, if the members stand by their threat made yesterday. The band has mutinied. The trouble arose over a conference rule limiting the number of members to accompany the football team on any of its trips to thirty. The band members declare that the entire organization of about sixty must go or there will be no music either at home or abroad.

HOLIDAY IS DECLARED AS CLUB WINS FLAG

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 27.—Because the Newark baseball team won the championship of the International league this year, Mayor Haussling has declared a holiday for next Saturday afternoon. In a message to the people of Newark today he calls on the citizens to decorate their homes and business houses that day in honor of the team's triumph.

FRANCIS OUIMET, THE HERO OF GOLF LOVERS

It might have been impossible for slower thinking Britain to have produced such a golf player as Francis Ouimet, who has faced the two greatest professional players in the world and beaten them. But such things are done in the United States. The London correspondents sent to write the match have commented on the fact that many if not most of the gerat golf players in the United States are youngsters. So it was natural if an American was to win from Edward Ray and Harry Vardon, a boy of twenty was the one to do it.

New Defender

BRISTOL, R. I., Sept. 27.—A contract has been placed for a Herreshoff sloop by George M. Pinchon, of New York, and E. Walker Clarke, of Philadelphia, to compete for the honor of meeting Sir Thomas Lipton's challenger for the America cup next year, it was announced here today. The boat is to be delivered in May. Both Mr. Pinchon and Mr. Clark are members of the New York Yacht club.

Cut Distance Of High Dive

Matter Now Before Association and May Be Cut to Twenty Feet

NEW YORK, Sept. 27.—The many efforts made in the past few years to have the regulation height for outdoor fancy diving reduced from thirty to twenty feet have at last resulted in having the matter taken up officially by the swimming committee of the Amateur Athletic union. There is every prospect of seeing the change made at the next meeting of the delegates, although it is probable that a twenty-five foot platform will be prescribed instead of the twenty-foot one advocated.

The recent occurrence at Travers Island, when the candidates for the national championship refused in a body to perform off the lofty tower, because it was unsteady and they pronounced it unsafe, was undoubtedly responsible for the movement now on foot. The unexpected stand taken by the contestants obliged the referee to call off the event, so that no title will be competed for this year.

This, and the fact that several men have been injured, some seriously, either practicing or performing from the thirty-foot structure, have urged upon the authoities the wisdom of considering the question of a lower board.

Otto Wahle, chairman of the committee in charge, said on the subject:

"Although there has been talk on and off of the danger of the thirty-foot platform, no one has ever taken the trouble to suggest a change. In regard to the Travers Island episode, I have no comment to make; opinions are divided as to whether the tower was safe or not, and I am not a diver. I know, however, that it is very difficult to build a structure strong enough to remain firm under the weight of a moving man, and that with clubs on one side unwilling to go to the expense of erecting a stand satisfactory to the competitors and the latter on the other side demanding that they be protected, it is almost impossible to find sponsors for the national event. Under the circumstances I am in favor of reducing the height of the take-off, as it will simplify matters for all concerned, and I will bring up the point at the first opportunity."

With such a champion as Wahle the cause will be well taken care of.

Deciding Plays Of Sox-Giants Series of 1912

The first game went to Boston, 4 to 3, Wood opposing Tesreau and Crandall. With one run needed to tie in the ninth and Herzog on third, Fletcher and Crandall fanned.

The second game went 11 innings, a 6-to-6 tie. Mathewson pitched against Collins, Hall and Bedient. With the score 5 to 2 in the eighth, the Giants scored three runs on Lewis' muff of Snodgrass' fly, Doyle's single, Murray-Herzog's doubles.

The Giants won the third game, 2 to 1, Marquard outpitching O'Brien and Bedient.

Joe Wood won the fourth game, beating Tesreau, 3 to 1. Wood was hit hard, but kept the hits sparated.

The fifth went to Boston, Mathewson losing to Bedient, 2 to 1. In the third inning Larry Doyle fumbled Speaker's hard hit ground ball, and the winning run was scored.

New York won the sixth game, 5 to 2, Marquard beating O'Brien and Collins. O'Brien's balk in the first threw Boston into a panic and the Giants had the game in hand before they recovered.

The Giants won the seventh, 11 to 4, Tesreau beating Wood and Hall. New York outplayed Boston from the start.

The deciding game New York lost in the tenth. The score was a tie in the ninth. The Giants scored in the tenth on Murray's double and Merkle's single; Snodgrass dropped Engle's fly; Yerkes walked; Speaker's foul fell near Merkle, who stood guled to his base while Meyers tried to get it. Speaker followed this with a hit which scored Engle. Yerkes went to third and Speaker to second, the former scoring on Gardner's fly and the game was won. Mathewson and Bedient pitched.

Emory Players At Grid Work

Looks as If Many of the Classes Will Turn Out Corking Elevens

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

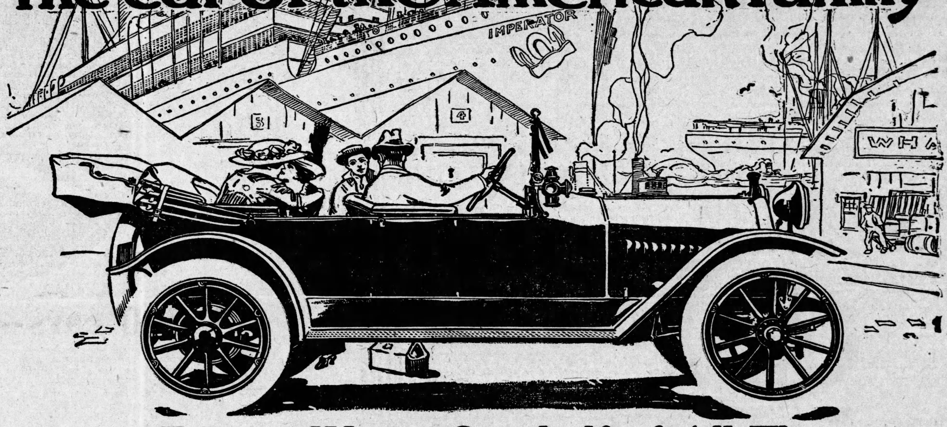
EMORY COLLEGE, Oxford, Ga., Sept. 27.—Emory's interclass football season will open on October 13, this date being selected by the athletic committee of the student body, which leaves only three full weeks to prepare for the session.

The juniors are the surprise of the season, they returning every member of the pennant-winning squad of 1912, and now have over ten new men out trying to oust out some of the regulars. Prof. G. P. Shingler, coach of this crew, had his arm broken this week by the back-firing of an engine when he attempted to crank an automobile, and has not been out to see his bunch work. The preliminary tactics are being cared for by Captain George Mathews.

The seniors have not settled down to work, but Coach Hanner is anticipating a successful season. His team will not present many new faces.

A mass of good prospects are found in the squads being worked out by Coach Peebles for the sophomore team. This eleven was torn to pieces by failure of men to return to college, but he will build a good machine from his new men.

The freshmen have not announced the name of their coach for this season, but it is very probable that it will be Prof. J. G. Stipe. He has taken an active interest in Emory athletics, being the referee for last season and the coach of the pennant-winning Junior team in baseball.



The car of the American Family

Europe Wants One-half of All These 1914 Hupmobiles

Can you conceive a higher tribute to this new Hupmobile than the fact that Europe puts in its claim for one-half the total 1914 output?

Such a signal endorsement has come to no other American car, for the Hupmobile has not won its laurels on the score of price.

Its loyal following in our own land is not as you know a price following—but a preference based on the conviction that it is the best car of its class in the world.

The new Hupmobile is polished, and refined, and strengthened and beautified to a point that surpasses every previous standard.

It has earned its conquest of the old and the new world—it has justified its right to be compared to the costliest large cars as "a perfect small diamond compares to a large one."

Why Europe Places the Hupmobile in a Special, Trusted Class

Foreign buyers of American cars are the most critical purchasers in the world. They have been taught to distrust American shop practice, which too often seeks quantity at the cost of quality. But European buyers of Hupmobiles attest, by their loyalty to this car, their absolute confidence in the methods we employ.

Hupmobile Standards Are Continental Standards as Well

Undoubtedly the first appeal of the Hupmobile to the shrewd Continental buyer, was based upon his prompt recognition of constructive features of the highest class. He noted with approval the long-stroke, small-bore motor with cylinders cast en bloc, and having enclosed valves—a type we introduced to the American market two years ago.

Features Never Before Shown at Anything Near Our Price

The use of a full-floating rear axle in the Hupmobile was a pleasurable surprise to the British buyer. He found in keeping with its quality our unit power plant with multiple disc clutch; three-bearing crank shaft, hollowed for circulation of oil; and chain drive for magneto and cam shaft.

Increased Value in Hupmobile Equipment

Neither in Europe or America is there a car at anything near the Hupmobile's price which is so thoroughly modern in its appointments. The 1914 Hupmobile at $1200 has over-size tires—33 x 4-inch with demountable rims, one extra rim and rear tire carrier; and electric horn beneath hood, actuated from steering wheel.

The 1914 Hupmobile Has Been Given More Headroom

A feature of more than minor comfort is the high, roomy top which distinguishes the 1914 Hupmobile. This has been attained without any straining of the Hupmobile's originally fine proportions, so that its passengers are given greater ease, without any detraction from the Hupmobile's individuality of form.

The Three-Unit Electrical System is Both Safe and Logical

The English buyer, who always puts safety first, will be quick to see the value of the Hupmobile's three-unit electrical system which individualizes the operations of starting, igniting and lighting. Possible trouble in one unit cannot cripple the other two vitally important functions of this system, whose logic is beyond argument.

Hupmobile Wiring Preserves Only the Real Essentials

Users of Hupmobiles abroad will be favorably impressed by the fact that their entire electrical installation has only seven wiring connections. These are all in flexible metal conduits, which afford complete protection against any sort of adverse conditions, and furnish a safeguard that is not duplicated even in cars of special class.

What Europe Demands in the Motor Cars It Buys

Foreign buyers have an x-ray fashion of looking right through the externals and to the heart of a car. They demand the painstaking craftsmanship of the highly skilled artisan. They see in the Hupmobile a marked individuality which is the natural outgrowth of the internal excellence of its construction.

Foreign Buyers Actually Pay a Premium for Hupmobiles

It costs a foreign buyer $200 to $400 more to own a Hupmobile than it does the more fortunate American owner. The only reason in the world why the European buyer will do this is because he firmly believes—as we do—that the Hupmobile is the best car of its class in the world.

The Buyer Abroad Compares the Hupmobile with Much Costlier Cars

The English buyer finds in the Hupmobile one specific instance after another of the type of construction that distinguishes the highest class of European-built cars. He knows good work and is delighted to find in the Hupmobile a quality that in an English car would demand a price which could be met only by the longest purse.

The Beauty of Hupmobile Lines Was Instantly Recognized Abroad

Much has been said of the beauty shown by streamline construction. Europe—as well as America—quickly saw in the Hupmobile's lines the very essence of that grace. Its pressed steel body—built by the producers of Pullman palace cars—has no sharp corners, but easy, graceful, sweeping lines, embracing the hood and radiator.

"The Car of the American Family" is Also the European Family Car

It is really remarkable that the automobile that is especially the car of the American family has been adopted in its entirety as the car of the European family. No greater tribute can be offered to the Hupmobile than this instant acceptance of its design, which proves beyond question the universality of its appeal.

SPECIFICATIONS

"Man Failure."

In its report on the causes of the recent New Haven railway wreck, the Interstate Commerce Commission fixes chief responsibility on men, high and low, who shirked or slurred their duty. Obsolete signals and flimsy wooden cars played a deadly part in the disaster; but behind these defects in equipment, the Commission declares, lay the far more insidious defects of operatives and officials. It was a case of "man failure," beginning among the directors and officers of the road and reaching, as a natural sequence, to those of lower rank.

The direct cause of the accident, states the report, was the failure of the flagman properly to protect his train, the failure of the engineman to observe speed regulations and the failure of the conductor to see that his train was duly safeguarded. But failure in duty did not end with these employes; it extended to the heads of authority and administration. Negligence among the trainmen was the inevitable legacy of a directorate that ignored the claims of safety and life. So ingrossed were they in adventures of high finance, that the controllers of the New Haven forgot their simplest duty to the public. Time and again they had been warned that the road's signal system was inadequate and that wooden cars were a menace. But they gave no heed either to State or federal admonitions. They would pass perfunctory resolutions and issue perfunctory orders, but they took no pains to see to it that the orders were executed.

> "Dereliction of duty by those who are charged with the making and the enforcement of safety regulations," says the Commission's report, "cannot fail to weaken respect for all rules and to render nugatory to a large extent all efforts to maintain effective discipline. Rules that are not intended to be enforced have no proper place in a railway company's code of regulations, and when the operating officers of a railroad permit rules which have been established to be violated with impunity, they cannot reasonably expect to escape responsibility for the consequences of such violations."

Back of the antiquated signal system, the flimsy cars and the outworn equipment, back of the carelessness of flagman, engineman and conductor, lay the crimial indifference of the financiers who shaped the New Haven's policy and whose reckless quest of monopoly and personal gain demoralized the system in all its workings. It was their failure to measure up to the obligations of a public service institution that made possible the circumstances of this appalling wreck; and it is upon their heads that the dread toll of suffering and death must morally rest.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has rendered a great national service in undertaking and carrying out its investigation of this wreck with such vigor and completeness; and especially seasonable in its action in centering responsibility upon men. Too long have the faults and wrongdoings of powerful corporations been treated as impersonal. Too often have mere things and systems been blamed while guilty individuals have been overlooked. The time has come when in all such cases the hand behind the deadly instrument must be called to account and punished. Men charged with directing the affairs of great organizations that touch the public's vital interests must be made to understand that they, as the soul of the organization, owe the public duties which they dare not neglect.

The Commission's report on this wreck is to be commended to the earnest reflection of railroads and railroad officials and employes throughout the United States. It pulses with a far-reaching message, it is eloquent with a profound practical truth, the truth that "man failure" underlies disasters like those which have blackened the New Haven's record; and, if its plain words are heeded, this country will enjoy greater safety in railway travel and greater prosperity in true railway interests.

Moral suasion doesn't seem to be very effective as far as the Balkans are concerned.

"To cut price of beef in half." Now and then one comes across a really optimistic headline.

The Perfected Tariff Bill.

The tariff bill is now a complete document except for the cotton-futures tax. On that one issue the conference committee is unable to agree, though it is a unit in believing that the Clarke amendment is ill-advised and unjust. The Senate conferees have offered to eliminate this question from tariff legislation, by far the wisest course that could be taken; but the House members of the committee insist upon a modified plan like that proposed in the Smith-Lever substitute. The matter will accordingly be referred to both branches of Congress with the probable result that the committee will be definitely instructed to adopt the Smith-Lever plan which would duly regulate trading in cotton futures without depriving legitimate business of its right to the "hedge" protection. It is practically certain that the original Senate proposition to impose a prohibitive tax of fifty cents a bale on all cotton sold for future delivery will be abandoned.

This prudent course will be welcomed the country over, but nowhere so heartily as in the South, whose agricultural as well as commercial interests were gravely menaced. The mischievous Clarke amendment would be a heavy blow to the cotton merchant, but its ultimate and most grievous effect would fall upon the cotton farmer. It would inevitably lead to a reduction of the price paid the producer, for, if buyers were deprived of the safeguard which the future contract provides against a continually fluctuating market, they would naturally shift the burden of their risks to the farmer himself and would discount the price he heretofore has received. It is noteworthy in this connection that last Friday cotton advanced thirty-eight points over the preceding day as a direct result of the announcement from Washington that the prohibitive tax would probably be discarded; had the announcement been otherwise, the effect would doubtless have been just the contrary.

A cotton-futures tax has no rightful place in the tariff bill; indeed the consequences of such a tax as the Clarke amendment proposes would be at variance with the entire purpose and spirit of tariff reform. The best thing that could be done, as we have indicated, would be to drop this matter forthwith; but if that is not acceptable to the majority in Congress, some reasonable compromise should displace the dangerous measure originally offered. It is assuring to know that this at least will be done.

With the cotton tax issue settled, the tariff bill will promptly be adopted by both Houses in its revised form and will go to the President not later, it is believed, than Thursday or Friday of this week. The bill has been in the conference committee something more than a fortnight and such changes as it has there undergone have been distinctly for the better.

The absurd tax imposed by the Senate on importation of foreign works of art has been removed in respect to most articles and materially reduced on others. That is a victory for public taste and intelligence. Of all importations those of painting and sculpture least call for a tariff tax. The committee's enlightened action in this regard bodes well for art interests and particularly for art education in America.

Bananas have been restored to the free list, a distinctly popular change and one that will foster our Central and South American trade. Furthermore, a number of improvements have been made in the details of the measure. The significant and gratifying fact is that the tariff bill has been steadily perfected from the day it was introduced in the House to the moment of its final consideration in the conference committee; its alterations have been made by its friends and have been invariably constructive; it is a tribute to the good sense and the good faith of Democracy; it will prove a blessing to the nation.

The Farmer's Opportunity In Raising Beef Cattle.

If every farmer would raise at least two beef steers a year, thinks the American Packers' Association, the scarcity and high prices of beef would soon be relieved. Certain it is that a wider and keener appreciation of the importance of live-stock production as a part of agricultural interests would go far toward solving this serious problem.

It is not necessary to abandon such crops as cotton or corn in order to raise cattle on a successful and profitable basis. On the contrary, due attention to live stock will round out and upbuild the interests of every farm. It will at least make the farmer more independent and it will add to the national store of food. The day of cattle raising on immense ranches such as once throve in the west seems fast vanishing. Needs that once were supplied from a few great centers must hereafter be supplied from a large number of individual sources.

The average farmer will thus have a keener incentive and a richer opportunity in this particular field. Unlike the ranchmen who were compelled to deal with powerful syndicates, he will deal directly with the buyers of his own territory. He will not be forced to accept trust-made prices. His profits will be subject to normal laws of trade and will accordingly be fair.

Packers say that despite higher prices for live stock of all kinds, the farmers have not only not increased their production of meat-food animals, but that "such production has decreased at an appalling rate." This condition of affairs vitally concerns the entire public but it particularly concerns the farmer. It shows that the full opportunities of agriculture are not being utilized. Every farm can and should produce its due quota of cattle; and when this done, we shall have better farms and a lower cost of living.

A Great Highway to Join The South, North and West.

The ideal of the good roads movement in the United States is to link all parts of the country in an unbroken chain of highways, well built and well kept. No achivement could mean more to the development and prosperity of the nation's every interests; it would quicken industry and enrich commerce beyond measure; it would be the greatest conceivable piece of good fortune for agriculture; its aid to educational and social progress would be unlimited; indeed, it would bring a beneficent revolution in America's common life. Such a task, to be sure, is the labor of years and decades, but it is a thoroughly practical task, well worth the interest and support of practical men everywhere; and there are cheering omens of its success already discernible.

The National Highway from New York to Jacksonville, promoted several years ago by The Journal and the New York Herald, was the forerunner of similar enterprises, either suggested or undertaken, in various parts of the country. That project demonstrated what could be done through vigorous, organized effort. It kindled new interest and faith in interstate highways. There followed other endeavors in the East and West as well as the South, and today all sections are alert to the possibilities of interstate roads.

Perhaps the most ambitious enterprise of the kind is that which contemplates the establishment of a transcontinental system of roads to be known as the Lincoln Highway, stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific. It is calculated that ten million dollars will be required to materialize this plan but more than four million dollars of the fund has already been subscribed by leading automobile interests and it is expected that in the near future the remainder will be forthcoming. The States and counties along the proposed route are showing a responsive spirit and will co-operate to press the movement to success.

The Manufacturers' Record in its current issue cordially commends this undertaking but adds that there is another interstate highway equally, if not more important, "that demands the energetic co-operation of the business interests of the North and West in connection with those of the South"—a highway to join the South more closely and more profitably to the West as well as to the East and the North.

> "A great highway, built of the best materials, open for travel at all seasons of the year, running from New York to Florida and thence along the Gulf coast to New Orleans, and another highway from the central west, connecting at some point on the Gulf coast with this North and South highway would make it possible to unite North, South and West in a closer relationship than has ever existed before. This highway would make possible material developments and an increase in business interests between the South and the North and the West, which would make it worth many times its cost. As the nation's greatest undeveloped asset, the development of which will enrich this country beyond the dreams of today, the South with a highway such as this would benefit to an almost limitless extent the whole nation."

This latter idea is worth the highest emphasis. The South, as the Manufacturers' Record declares, contains the richest natural treasure of the entire continent. Whatever works for its development and makes its wondrous opportunities more accessible will benefit the people of the entire country. It is peculiarly to the interest of the North and the West as well as the South that such a highway as the Manufacturers' Record suggests be constructed and maintained; and the far-sighted business men of those sections could not do better than to join with the progressive business men of the South in organizing and carrying forward such an enterprise.

The Journal heartily seconds this timely proposal and trusts that it will bestir definite and fruitful interest.

It is doubtful whether the New England boy has the usual juvenile ambition to be a locomotive engineer on the New Haven.

If the pace is so swift in an extra session, what will congress not do in the seasonable temperature of a regular one?

Bright Prospects For Prompt Currency Reform

Senator Hoke Smith's interesting comment on the banking and currency bill gives assurance that the progress and passage of this important measure in the upper House will not be unduly delayed. Its underlying principles, the Senator believes, "will receive the support of the majority of the members of the Senate committee;" and he adds, "I feel sure that without regard to party politics, Democratic and Republican senators will join in an earnest effort to aid those who prepared the bill in improving it as much as possible, and then in passing it."

So vital and voluminous a measure naturally requires the closest attention. In some respects it will probably be revised and improved just as was the tariff bill, which will be a much better measure as it finally passes than when it came from the House. But the fundamental ideas of the banking and currency bill, notably that of government instead of private control of monetary resources, will undoubtedly stand.

Senator Smith's belief that in the end thoughtful Republicans will join with the Democrats in putting such legislation through is well founded. All interests and all parties feel the urgent need of banking and currency reform. This issue is national rather than partisan, and in that spirit it should be settled.

Shakespeare's Daughters Were Not Illiterate

It is strange that almost all biographers of Shakespeare dismiss his daughters, Susannah and Judith, as being illiterate and incapable of writing their own names. It comes as a shock to the modern mind that neither Shakespeare's mother, Mary Arden, nor his wife, Ann Hathaway, was capable of writing her name to a legal document.

In the case of Ann Hathaway there might be some excuse, but that Mary Arden, daughter of a distinguished family, could not write her name is most surprising. However, Andrew Lang in his posthumous work, "Shakespeare, Bacon and the Great Unknown," points out that the daughters of several distinguished men of the time were equally incapable.

There is much doubt, however, that this can be said of Sakespeare's daughters, Susannah and Judith. While there is no doubt whatever as to Sasannah's ability to write, there is some as to Judith's. There are in the Birthplace museum of Stratford excellent signatures of Susannah, which prove that she would write with facility.

Were it a fact that these two daughters of the Bard of Avon were the illiterate girls that they are so often pictured, it is rather surprising that each should have married a man of learning and distinction.

When Susannah Shakespeare was twenty-four years old, in June, 1607, she married Dr. John Hall, a distinguished physician, then residing at Stratford. Dr. Hall was one of the most eminent men of the time in his profession. He was a writer on medical subjects and practiced as a physician in the noblemen's houses in the neighborhood. Dr. Hall not only built up an extensive practice, but was elected burgess of the town, and in 1633 became the vicar's church warden.

When Dr. Hall died in 1635 his skill as a physician was fittingly recognized at his burial. That he was a man of distinction and good family is proved by the coat-of-arms on his grave in the chancel of Trinity church. In his will he left his "study books" as well as his manuscripts to his son-in-law, Thomas Nash.

Now it seems incomprehensible that a man of Dr. Hall's distinction would have married the illiterate daughter of a strolling player, as some writers would have us believe. That Mrs. Hall was a woman of some standing in the community is proved by the fact that in 1642 Henrietta Marie, queen of Charles I, stayed three days with Mrs. Hall at New Place. When she died on July 11, 1649, she was buried in Stratford, and the following lines appear above her grave:

> Wise to Salvation was good Mistress Hall,
> Something of Shakespeare was in that, but this > Wholly of him with whom she's now in blisse,
> Then, passenger, ha'st ne'er a teare
> To weepe with her that wept with all?
> That swept, yet set herself to chere
> Them up with comforts cordiall.
> Her love shall live, her mercy spread,
> When thou hast ne'er a teare to shed.

Of what we know of Judith Shakespeare we have good reason to believe that she was equally capable and a brilliant woman. Judith, in 1616, when thirty-one years old, married Thomas Quiney, a vintner of Stratford. Thomas Quiney's father was an old friend of Shakespeare.

That Thomas Quiney was a man of some distinction in his town is proved by the fact that he acted as counselor from 1617 to 1623, and became chamberlain in the latter year. The Quineys lived in a house on Bridge street, called the Cage, which is still standing. The only letter to William Shakespeare extant was written by the father to his son-in-law. This letter can be seen in the library at New Place.

Judith lived to be seventy-six years old and survived her husband, her children and all near relations. She died in 1661 and was buried in Trinity church.

The last of Shakespeare's descendants was Elizabeth Hall, the only child of Susannah and Dr. Hall. She was born on February 21, 1608, and died in her sixty-fourth year, in 1672.

These facts prove conclusively that Shakespeare's daughters were far from being the illiterates that many have supposed.—Julia Marlowe in the New York Sun.

Summer Clouds

I.
Like castle dreams ye wander in and out
The sky's blue fields, as one demure, devout,
Aimlessly goes, he knows not how or where,
The chartless road of never-ending doubt.

II.
From out that vale where childhood's memories keep
The by-ways green, I often look and weep,
When I discern how many castles fair
Ye set for me, along youth's golden stair,
Now with my host of broken idols sleep!

III.
And yet ye go, like gods of liberty,
Fast as the fleet, unfettered, wild and free;
Ye bring the breezes to the scorching corn,
Ye cool the brow where life is weary-worn
And bind upon my soul your mystery.

IV.
Clouds of the Summer, speak to me and tell,
Are ye the castles where the lost souls dwell?
In all your moving, through the sky about,
Are ye impelled by Time's old monster, Doubt?
Alas! before I have one faint reply
The castle fades into the bluest sky.

H. E. HARMAN.

Our Beautiful Tongue

There is no language so beautiful as our own English tongue, when it is spoken beautifully. It is a wonderful possession, but like many other things which we have always had we underestimate it and abuse it until it is depreciated.

One of the chief ways in which we mistreat our language is in overaccenting our words. Foreigners are always quick to notice this. They find it hard to understand us because we bring out the one syllable that is accented and slur all the others. As they say, we "bang out" the accent, but care nothing about the rest of the word. By this fault, of which nearly all Americans are guilty, the language is robbed of its harmonious flow as well as of intelligibility.

It is always noticeable that persons most culture speak most distinctly, and this is a mark of breeding that every one can try for. To speak clearly, giving each word its correct value, indicates a certain amount of knowledge, while the opposite way of speech is often an index of slovenly habits of thought, if not illiteracy.—Ohio State Journal.

Sir Oliver Lodge "Self-Made"

Sir Oliver Lodge, whose British Association address has attracted so much attention, has attained his distinguished position in the face of adverse circumstances. From fourteen to twenty he was engaged in business, and all his early studies were accomplished in his leisure hours. Says the Westminster Gazette:

"Sir Oliver is at once one of the most practical and one of the most imaginative of latter-day men of science. On the one hand, he protests against the dogmas of materialism. * * * On the other, he had notions of wireless telegraphy before Marconi, has given his name to a sparking-plug for motor-cars and has suggested how even a 'London Particular' might be exorcised with the aid of electricity."—New York World.

Contests in Egg Production

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

Egg laying contests are the latest innovation in the poultry world. The first one, which has been in progress at the state agricultural experiment station at Mountain Grove, Mo., has recently closed its records and a second is to open in a few weeks. Hens from all parts of the country took part in this contest and one pen of fowls was shipped from England for the purpose. Some of the records seem incredible but they are vouched for by scientific records.

• • •

The champion hen of the nation for unremitting egg laying, is a buff Wyandotte who produced an egg a day for thirty consecutive days. A pen of buff Wyandottes, containing ten hens, produced 240 eggs a month, an average of twenty-four eggs to each hen. Three hundred and sixty hens, inspired by the contest into special activity, made a record of over twenty eggs each for a period of thirty days. One particular record was kept for five and a half months. The honors in this were won by an English white Leghorn hen who laid 141 eggs. A buff Wyandotte from Vermont laid 136. A Missouri hen of the same breed laid 135 eggs to her credit, while a black Leghorn of Missouri came next with 133 eggs. A white hen of purest Plymouth lineage established a record of 268 eggs throughout the entire year.

• • •

These records shows that Dame Partlet is a much more valuable and productive creature than men have recognized. They prove that the number of hens capable of a 200-egg annual average is much larger than had been supposed. Some comment was excited because the pen of English hens made better records for certain objects than the American birds. This is partially due to the fact that their owner had them in better condition to begin laying immediately after their admission to the contest than were most of the hens from this country. Those who were in charge of the contest do not admit any superiority to the English breed, although they acknowledge that most English poultry raisers know better how to care for their hens than do the Americans. The contest also indicated that no particular breed can be relied upon to excel in egg production. It is the individual hens and their condition which make the records.

• • •

The annual increase in egg production in the United States has been much fostered by the department of agriculture within the last decade and the results have justified the effort. Especial attention is continually being given to the care of laying hens, the handling of eggs and the methods of preserving them for the market. At present studies in feeding hens are in progress at the experiment farm of the department near Washington, D. C. The object of these studies is to find out what food will produce the greatest number of eggs, and also what food will produce the cheapest eggs. It has been indicated that some of the foods producing the highest number of eggs are so expensive that cheaper foods, producing fewer eggs, will be more economical.

• • •

The egg industry of the country now amounts to fully half a billion dollars of annual value. While for centuries past close study has been given to the breeding of catttle and horses, the breeding of hens has been notably neglected. Now the commercial value of the hen has been so demonstrated that the farmers are attempting to breed hens with reference to their laying qualities. The 200-egg hen has become the slogan for all breeders. It has been demonstrated lately that the 200-egg hen is not herself a good breeder. The average egg yield from pullets hatched from hens having a record exceeding 200 eggs annually has been found to be considerably less than from pullets hatched from eggs of hens whose records ranged from 150 to 175.

• • •

While the 200-egg hen is the one most popular for commercial purposes, egg raisers do not find that such heavy production is necessary to making poultry raising profitable. An average of 150 eggs, having a value of from $4 to $5, may, if properly distributed throughout the year, be made as profitable as an average of 200 eggs from some hens even if that yield can be depended upon.

• • •

The enormous value of the egg products of the country has recently created additional interest in conserving them. It is claimed by the department of agriculture that the loss to the farmer from bad methods of producing and handling eggs amounts to over $45,000,000 annually. Much of this loss could be avoided by a thorough system of conservation for this valuable food product. Egg conservation requires greater care of the hens while laying, of the nests in which the eggs are laid, of the temperature of the place in which the eggs are stored before taking them to market and also a proper system of handling them for the market.

• • •

The care of the hens includes proper feeding and shelter. The care of the nests requires that the eggs be preserved from dirt of every kind. While it is better to wash soiled eggs than to send them to market in a stained or disfigured condition, the application of water removes the natural bloom of the egg thereby destroying its fresh appearance. It also removes the gelatinous coating from the shell which keeps out air and helps preserve the contents. Nests should be built with special reference to the facilities for cleaning, and eggs should be gathered as soon as possible after they are laid. Fertile eggs are also inferior in their keeping qualities. Consequently, the removal of the male birds from the range of laying hens means better eggs and more money.

• • •

> "It's the rooster does the crowin',
> Wears the plumes and yellow legs,
> Wants to boss the whole creation;
> But the hen, she lays the eggs."

• • •

The temperature at which eggs are kept after being gathered has much to do with their keeping qualities. They should be kept where it is cool and dry. The pantry opening off a hot kitchen or a damp cellar will hasten egg deterioration. The farmers' wives of Kansas, for a number of years, have been keeping their eggs in the cyclone caves, of which there are thousands scattered over the state. These are lower in temperature than the house and have been pronounced next best to an ice plant for keeping eggs in good condition. Experiments conducted by the department of agriculture published a few weeks ago commend the cyclone cave for storing eggs.

• • •

Much of the egg loss sustained each year is due to cracking and breaking in handling. It is claimed that in New York City alone last year 137,804,768 eggs, over a million and a half dozen, were lost in this way. This enormous breakage naturally tends to keep the price of eggs higher than would otherwise be necessary. A number of organizations are now co-operating in experiments in shipping eggs with a view to securing some means of lessening the loss from breakage. The railroads claim that their damage losses are so heavy that the carrying of eggs is an unprofitable proposition.

• • •

The utilization of these cracked eggs is also receiving increased attention. A laboratory has been established by the department of agriculture at Sedalia, Mo., to study methods of such utilization. The method most in use at present consists of canning the contents of the eggs and preserving them by freezing. The excess supply of eggs of summer and spring, as well as of the eggs with soft or damaged shells can be conserved for food purposes by this means.

TIME NOW TO SELECT COTTON SEED TO PLANT

State Board of Entomology Gives Ten Suggestions

The time has come when the farmers of Georgia must select their cotton seed for next year's planting; and in view of the many pests and diseases to which the plant is now subject, this is no simple or easy task.

The state board of entomology lays down ten rules or suggestions relative to cotton seed selection. The seed should be selected from the strongest and hardiest plants, such as are free from diseases and have the greatest percentage of fruit properly located. More specifically, the selection should be made, says State Entomologist E. Lee Worsham, with reference to resistance to black root or wilt disease; resistance to root knot and anthracnose; fruitfulness and earliness; percentage of lint; type of plant and distribution of fruit on the plant.

In selecting for resistance to black root or wilt disease the plant should be chosen from that section of the field where the ordinary cotton suffered greatest damage. Here, however, the selection should be made of the hardiest and most resistant plants.

WATCH OUT FOR ROOT KNOT.

Care should also be taken to select those plants which are resistant to root knot or nematode worms.

Another thing to be avoided in the selection of the seed is anthracnose. At present the best way to control this disease is by rotation of crops and by the use of resistant varieties through careful seed selection.

Fruitfulness should be carefully considered in seed selection.

GET EARLY VARIETIES.

Earliness is another important point in selection, especially in southwest Georgia, where it will be necessary next year to meet the invasion of the cotton boll weevil.

The department advises that no stalk should be selected which yields less than 33 1-3 per cent of lint. The only satisfactory method of determining the quality of lint yielded by a stalk is to gin each stalk separately with a hand gin. The state board of entomology owns a small gin operated by electricity, and will take great pleasure in ginning, free of charge, small quantities of seed that has been carefully selected. The seed cotton can be sent by parcel post and the seed will be properly labeled and returned.

Care should be taken also as to the type of plant chosen. The best stalks to select are those having long fruiting limbs close to the ground, and with joints close together. Where a field is to be used particularly for the selection of seed, the diseased and stunted stalks should be cut out about July 1 or August 1, to prevent crossing with the producing plants.

CARE IN GINNING.

The cotton selected for seed should be ginned on a hand gin, if possible. This does away with danger of adulteration or mixture with diseased seed. If the cotton is ginned on a public gin, all of the seed should be removed from the breast of the gin and other parts before the cotton is run through, and the seed should be allowed to drop on the floor or on a sheet; it should never be allowed to run through the seed carrying auger.

The work on the wilt disease of cotton development of resistant strains and seed selection, has been in charge of Mr. A. C. Lewis, assistant state entomologist, since 1905. Under his direction there have been developed a number of resistant hybrids, and this special seed has been furnished to farmers in many sections of the state.

"FRENCH NIGHT" MONDAY AT THE PIEDMONT HOTEL

Another Celebration Similar to "After Theater" Night Will Be Staged

A unique and altogether new innovation will be launched Monday evening after the theater by the Piedmont hotel, in the shape of "French night," which will be celebrated in the main dining room facing Luckie and Forsyth streets. As was the case when the hotel ushered in the "after theater" season two weeks ago, cards for tables will be issued by application to Assistant Resident Manager R. Frank Taylor or Steward E. R. J. Fischel. Already a number of reservations have been made.

A feature of the event will be the distribution of attractive favors that will give the diners a perfect atmosphere of gay 'Paree." There will be dinky French goatees, mustaches and hats for the gentlemen, while ladies will be presented with long Parisian canes, hats and other favors.

The Piedmont's new orchestra will be in attendance and Miss Claire Garner, soprano, late of Hammerstein's, New York, will be heard in a number of her beautiful songs. She possesses a rich, highly cultivated voice and has become a genuine favorite with those who have heard her since she came here for her engagement the first of the week.

LAFOLLETTE TO OPEN THE ALKAHEST SEASON

President S. RussellB ridges, of the Alkahest Lyceum system, who has returned this week from the National Lyceum convention in Chicago, announces that the season in Atlanta will be opened on November 7, by United States Senator Robert M. LaFollette, who will disucss vital political issues of the day. All the entertainments will be held in the auditorium of the Baptist Tabernacle on Luckie street. The sale of season tickets will begin tomorrow, at the Cable Piano company, and will run through the week. Prices for season tickets will be $1.00, $1.50 and $2.00.

Wilmer L. Moore Outlines State-Wide Chamber Work

Clear and Comprehensive Digest of Purpose and Results of State Chamber of Commerce Told by President of Atlanta Chamber at Recent Macon Meeting

In an address delivered before the delegates at the convention of the Georgia chamber of commerce which was formally launched in Macon, September 16, Wilmer L. Moore, president of the Atlanta chamber and a member of the executive committee of the state organization, outlined the possibilities of the new-born movement and gave a striking word picture of the benefits that may be derived by Georgia in the future through the thorough co-operation of the business, commercial and professional interests of every section.

The address, which The Journal prints herewith in full, deals with the subject in a most thorough and comprehensive manner. Mr. Moore dealt, in the main, with cold facts and sent home the most potent and salient features, in a comprehensive manner. He impressed upon his hearers the true value of a state chamber and pledged his support to the new organization in any undertaking that it attempted.

The address follows:

"It is generally admitted that co-operation, through organized effort, in every channel is the twentieth century idea of success.

"Man was made for association and co-operation. 'Fellowship is heaven and lack of fellowship is hell,' said William Norris. The first factor in the evolution of humanity is mutual aid.

"It was a recognition of this fundamental principle that led the Atlanta chamber of commerce to conceive the idea of enlisting the mutual aid and interest of progressive, thinking men throughout Georgia in the organization of a state chamber of commerce.

"Right now, when all our heralds are proclaiming 'prosperity,' 'the south's the coming section,' etc., and when all the signs of the times bear out these prophesies, seems to me to be a time of all times when we Georgians, in the heart of this favored southern country, should be up and doing.

"The spirit of co-operation that has marked such wonderful success in the business world can be carried to a greater and broader field of usefulness, embracing within its scope every activity and endeavor in the area bounded by geographical lines and designated as the state of Georgia.

IS NO EXPERIMENT.

"This is no experiment. Many states are reaping rich rewards from the work of their state chambers of commerce.

"The fact is that the people of Georgia by working together with organized method, can accomplish untold good on behalf of our commercial, agricultural, industrial, financial, educational, civic and health interests—in short, for every interest that tends to the happiness and betterment of our people.

"The scope of a chamber of commerce goes beyond that of a board of trade. It includes within its activities every subject that looks to the upbuilding of the country, and the creating of a better class of citizenry. Such subjects as milk supply, pure water, sanitation, hygiene, prevention of diseases are as much within the province of a chamber of commerce as industrial and commercial development.

"Co-operation is the first step. We must get together first. Next comes the financing of the proposition. Then widespread and proper publicity. The organization, to succeed, shall be built upon a foundation of confidence. The public must know that the organization is to be fairly conducted, in the interests of no section or faction, that no selfish gain can prompt or inspire the motives of those who are guiding its affairs. It must be a work conducted along lines, free from criticism. Its affairs must be guided by men of the broadest sense of patriotsm, inspired by loyal interests in the upbuilding of every section of the state. Let this be your slogan; the interest of Georgia is the interest of every city, town and community in Georgia.

INTEREST THE RAILROADS.

"First, we must seek the friendly interest of the railroads. Let them feel that the organization will work with them in the development of the country through which they pass. The railroads operating in this section, are doing a good work in quiet way. Many of them have established industrial bureaus; they have educational trains.

"It stands to reason that through a thoroughly systematized, well organized state chamber of commerce we can obtain the active assistance and co-operation of the railroads. I am convinced that they will work in connection with us, and will give aid in advertising the opportunities and advantages of the sections through which they pass. It will be to their interest to attract a desirable class of settlers, especially from farms in the west and northwest, to their respective territories.

"However, we must not rely entirely upon the railroads to place the advantages of our state before the people of the world. The land owner, the manufacturer, the banker, the merchant, must work through organized commercial bodies. A large number of such bodies have already been established in the various cities and towns. Many of them are small, inactive organizations. With the co-operative influence of some centralized, organized, well systematized state organization, all of these can, in my opinion, become live, progressive trade bodies. With the assistance of those already in existence, working through the state chamber, many more local organizations can be brought into existence.

"The first bodies may be slow at getting to work—but their pride in showing still newer organizations what they can do will bear fruit in better records for themselves, till in due course the whole group will be operating like a series of cog wheels of diverse diamters—the rapid ones moving the slower and these in turn the yet slower ones, till the speeding up of any of the series quickens the revolutions of all.

THE COUNTY CHAMBER.

"Especially do I advocate the plan of the county chamber of commerce.

"One of the greatest advantages to the various local organizations would be the bringing into existence of the lyceum system of illustrated lectures and addresses, planned upon the circuit system. These would not only be educational, but they would serve to keep alive a civic consciousness.

"We should arouse the people, especially the youth of the land, to the possibilities offered them in this southern territory. We should encourage the study of the great advance of the south for the past thirty years, and of its unlimited possibilities.

"We should all become so imbued with the charm of this southland of ours that we would radiate that charm to every passerby. We should catch the spirit of Thomas Nelson Page's wonderful description of our southland, fresh with the beauty of youth, situated at the pleaasnt mean between the two extremes of heat and cold, possessing a climate, which, throughout the year, admits of the only proper life—life in the open—with the sunshine as sparkling and skies as blue as Italy's, it presents to those who wish them, political, commercial, scientific or social life; and soon it will offer artistic and literary life second to none in the world, and that may possibly in no long time be equal to that of any in the whole world.

"We should teach our people to know our own section, and to know ourselves. The encouragement of thrift, the teaching of scientific methods of farming, and all that this subject means; that is, the better cultivation of the soil, soil analysis, improved farming, seed selection, etc., will do much toward making our state the Empire State of the South. This can largely be encouraged by the banker, merchant, and the professional man residing in a community. I might also include the efforts of the preachers and the church. Let every town and every community have its own experimental farm. At a small cost, those who are alive to their civic obligations, in order that the farmers within a short radius of such a point can be taught the advantage to be gained by scientific methods of agriculture. Especially can the plan which has been adopted by those who are advocating the corn show clubs be used to advantage with the younger generation. This campaign of education will not only open up avenues of study, thought and investigation to the people, who will devote their time, energies and money to it, but it offers industrial possibilites of benefit to the communties and tends to the building of a better class of citizenry.

MAKE THE CITY BEAUTIFUL.

"There is also the suggestion of the city beautiful. We have arrived at that period where recreative possibilities must be placed before our people, as well as the possibilities of industrial and commercial gain. Pleasant surroundings are beng demanded for the more progressive towns and cities. I know of nothing that makes a more unfavorable impression than the average depot on our southern railroads. I need not draw the picture. We are all familiar with it. Compare this condition with the attractive stations which appear along the lines of some of the eastern and northern systems. If we expect to bring within our midst desirable, progressive people, we should make at least the gateway one which will attract rather than disgust. At very little effort and cost the chamber of commerce in any of the Georgai towns can have grass plats or flower beds round their railway stations, that will demonstate to tourists and the traveling public that there is in such a community a local vicic pride.

"While I do not believe that such an organization as we are discussing should undertake to enter politics, yet at the same time there are many legislative questions which should be handled to advantage, and with profit, not only to the individuals, but also to the interests of the state itself. For instance, there is the question of vital statistics, the Terrens land system; what this would mean possibly in the bringing of cheap money into our midst. The enactment of safe and sound laws, looking to the protection of our financial interests and the encouragement of foreign capital to seek investments within our borders; controlling the sale of firearms in order to present to the world evidence that we have more regard for human life than present conditions lead them to believe.

THE W. & A. ROAD IMPORTANT.

"The disposition of the Western and Atlantic railway should appeal to every taxpayer within the state. It is a subject of vital interest to him as an individual, as well as a citizen.

"The securing and proper compilation of statistical data, proper placing of this in printed form, for general distribution, especially, should be one of the movements which can be inaugurated.

"Every day some new possibility for Georgia looms up, and it only needs the leadership of some state-wide organization to make these possibilities realities. For instance, right now the discovery of a kaolin and feldspar in Georgia, which combine to make an excellent china, opens the way for a new and profitable industry for the cities between the kaolin and feldspar belts, such as Macon, Augusta, Americus, Atlanta, etc.

"A state chamber of commerce could investigate the industry, its possibilities, its difficulties and stimulate its development by publicity methods. Our splendid newspapers stand ever ready to co-operate in every possible way in any movement that looks to the welfare of Georgia.

"Then there is the possibility of a cattle industry in Georgia, which needs working out and realizing.

"Then the good roads question—a most vital one—which a state chamber could stimulate—especially one important phase of it, the co-operation of county with county in a state-wide system of roads.

"He who doubts that the time is ripe for a pull-together policy for all of Georgia need only glance at the headlines of any daily paper. For instance, in a recent issue of a daily paper these captions were noticed: 'Washington and Southern Prosperity.' 'Georgia looks good,' wires James D. Price. 'Hughes to request railroads to report cotton movement.' 'May invoke movies to benefit farmers.' 'Good roads and back to the land,' etc.

"I have simply touched in high places the many phases of work for a state chamber to do.

"But first we must perfect our organization. Bring the system into proper co-ordination and the machinery will largely run itself, leaving more time and energy to devote to other interests. Every city and every town can do its part, and have its place in this great movement, and every citizen can lend aid and encouragement which would mean much to its success. In our southland, now on the eve of an unprecedented wave of prosperity, Mr. Gladstone's advice of long years ago still holds good—'Young men, if you want things to turn up, you must turn them up.'

"Let no community stand aside, nor any individual remain idle for fear that he can be of no service. Friendly rivalry there must be. Without some such stimulus the game would lose half its fascination—but every chamber should feel itself part of a state-wide movement, and be willing to do its share according to its ability and opportunity."

Sacred Harp Singers At East Point Sunday

Another sacred harp singing is scheduled. The Atlanta Sacred Harp convention will hold its annual singing in Odd Fellows' hall, at East Point, tomorrow, commencing at 9 o'clock. This is one of the tributary conventions that combine to form the big yearly singing that recently was held for 1913 in the auditorium. J. A. Marshbanks, president of the local association, announces the event.

BOYS' HI "TATLER" MAKES GOOD BEGINNING THIS YEAR

School Paper Has Paid Debt. Boys Stand While "Georgia Cyclone" Lectures

BY WALTER P. BINNS.

At Boys' High school everybody is settling down for a year's hard work. The first examinations were held this week. The new Tatler staff is preparing to give the school the best paper it ever had. Last year the Tatler began the year with a debt of about $90, and so was handicapped during the entire season. However, by good business management, the editors cleared the debt and enabled the present staff to begin work without any debt. The editor-in-chief, Leconte, has had a good deal of experience in paper work and is well fitted for his place. Already about 300 boys have subscribed, making a record that has never been surpassed.

On Thursday, the "Georgia Cyclone" blew into the hall at B. H. S. and greatly refreshed the student body. The school always appreciates Mr. Upshaw's visits, because he brings a message of help and inspiration. Although the hall was note seated Thursday and the boys had to stand during the speech, they gave careful attention to the words of the speaker. Mr. Upshaw referred to his own experience and the difficulties that attended his school life, and made an appeal to the boys to "stick to it" until they had secured an education. He taught the boys to repeat his famous motto, "Let nothing discourage you; never give up!" He was greeted with tremendous applause when he declared that he was going to write an editorial in the Golden Age appealing for a new Boys' High school building. This dream of a school building suited to the needs of the city still lives in the heart of the boys. Indeed we are reminded every day by some new inconvenience that this great need should be met. All praise to Mr. Upshaw for his interest, and may his efforts meet with success!

G. M. A. Give Dance; Training Table Started

BY L. C. PARKER.

All G. M. A. is looking forward to Saturday evening, when the first social entertainment will be given. There will be a dance in the gymnasium for those boys who are devoted to the terpsichorian art. At the same time there will be a party in the Y. M. C. A. for the boys who do not dance.

The trailing tables have been established now for both scrubs and varsity. Scrimmages are a regular occurrence being held every afternoon. The squads have been given signals and are rapidly rounding into shape.

Three companies have been formed and most of the drill work is now along the line of school of the company. Rifles were issued to nearly every man and every one is being taught the art of putting a rifle into condition.

The school enjoyed a rare treat Wednesday morning in being able to hear Captain Jack Crawford. Captain Crawford told of some of his own personal experiences and his talk as a whole was most interesting and profitable.

Mrs. Drake, who was for four years secretary to our president, paid us a visit Thursday morning. She was indeed a welcome visitor.

What will probably prove one of the most profitable trips of the year was taken to the auditorium to hear Hon. R. P. Hobson deliver his address on the liquor question. His address was very greatly enjoyed by all.

BOYS' NIGHT SCHOOL.

The eighth grade has welcomed several new pupils this week, among them Raymond Hutchison, Fred Lyons and Albert Cunningham. This class is very much in earnest and expects to make a good record for the coming year.

The boys of the fourth grade are very much interesting in seeing how many correct spelling and arithmetic papers they can get during the month. A great many of the boys have not been absent and are trying to keep up the record.

Our foreign class is studying hard. They say they expect to make this the best year yet. This class is composed of men and boys who have been in America only a short time.

A great many who have never tried it have the idea that working during the day and going to school at night is very hard on the student. As a matter of fact, the mind magnifies the difficulty, and once a young man starts in earnest he is surprised to find how easy it is.

In proof of this of the forty-three students enrolled in the B. H. S. Commercial department twenty-nine were in the night school last year.

WALTER BOYCE M'DONALD.

EAST ATLANTA

We have organized five teams among the girls and boys of the sixth, seventh and eighth grades to play "captain ball."

There are three teams of girls, team Nos. 1, 2 and 3. Edith Olson is captain of team No. 1, whose color is purple. Ocial Hurndon is captain of team No. 2 and their color is blue. Team No. 3 is captained by Lois McMullan and their color is red.

The other two teams are boys and go by the colors red and blue. Marvin Rivers is captain of the reds, while James McDaniel is captain of the blues.

All of us have our own reasons for thinking that our team will win.

RAY OLSON.

HOME PARK SCHOOL

We are very sorry that we did not have a letter in the paper last week, but our principal was ill and could not appoint a correspondent.

We have a new second grade this year, and also three new teachers. We are very glad to have Mrs. Douglas, Mrs. Hyatt and Miss McFail, and hope they will enjoy teaching in our school.

Miss Harralson, of the musical department, visited us last week, and handed in a satisfactory report of us.

All the grades are doing well and we trust that they will continue to do so.

B. H. S. FOOTBALLTEAM THAT FOUGHT HARD AGAINST RIVERSIDE

This is a glimpse of the fast Hi school team, which averages 156 pounds. The two guards weigh 170 each, while the center tips the scales at 210. Captain Inman Knox is on the left. Knox is the fastest quarterback and best open field runner in the Prep league has had in many a day. Manager Le Conte, on the right, is a fast, heady player.

Gridiron Warriors of B. H. S. Coached By Star

BY FRANK KEMPTON.

At the beginning of the football season prospects for a great team were bright. But now with the addition of Coach Wood, I can't see anything in prep circles that can stop us.

Notre Dame, the great western college in Indiana, is Coach Wood's alma mater. He played on the football team during three years he was in college. His last year Notre Dame won the championship, and during the entire three years he was on the team they were not scored upon. Notre Dame plays such colleges as Penn State, Virginia and Vanderbilt. Coach Wood played end on the team and was one of the fastest players that ever wore the cleated shoe. The year after his graduation Wood was offered the position of head graduate coach, an honor aspired to by many and attained by few. Wood, when he played with Notre Dame, weighed 190 pounds and was a ten-second man, and today after being out of the game for some time, weighs only 200 pounds.

Coach Wood is indeed High school's friend. He has come out to Piedmont park every afternoon and given the team the benefit of his valuable coaching. He has instilled in the team the great requisite—football "pep." The coach is packed full of new plays, and when the Boys' Hi team gets in action there will be an exhibition of real football.

Coach Wood will accompany the team on all the road trips. Today we play Riverside at Gainesville. I'm not much of a prophet, but I will venture the prediction that Riverside will be given a rude shock. Victory for the Purple and White will not surprise those who have seen the boys scrimmage and run signals under the guidance of its coach.

FORREST AVE. SCHOOL.

The eighth grade organized a society which we think will be very helpful to us. We held a meeting on September 23 for the purpose of electing officers. Carroll Cook was elected president and Nora Smith secretary. The election of secretary was very close, Nora winning by only a small majority. We have planned for a very interesting debate, the subject of which is, "Resolved, That steam has done more for the civilization of the world than electricity." It will be held some time in October.

PEACOCK FOOTBALL TEAM ELECTS TWO MANAGERS

In a Practice Game, Peacock Defeats B. H. S. Sub-Scrubs 18 to 0

BY ARTHUR PEW, JR.

Now that the fall term is in full swing and every one has settled down into the daily routine of work, the only topic of conversation to be heard at Peacock's is footbal.

At a meeting of the team last week, Knox was elected captain with Conklin as manager. A funny incident occurred in connection with the managership. Conklin did not appear at school on Monday or Tuesday and the report was started that he had gone to Georgia with his borther Hugh. Etheridge was then chosen to fill his position and when Etheridge was about to assume control of the business end of the team, Conklin reappeared at school. The question now is, "Who is manager?"

A practice game was played Wednesday with some B. H. S. sub scrubs for about fifteen minutes and Peacock acquitted herself most creditably, for at the end of play the score was 18 to 0 in our favor, although we were outweighed by our opponents both in offense and defense. Jones also showed promise of making a very speedy half.

Our manager is now on duty and if any teams about the city desire games with us, they are requested to call up Manager Conklin as soon as possible.

Peeples St. Pupils Have Many Envious Privileges

The pupils of our school are more fortunate than the majority of public school children of this city, in having so many fresh air advantages. We have a large back yard that gives the lower grades ample room to play the games they like best; a beautiful front lawn, sown in grass and flowers; and a beautiful building, with artistic ivy climbing to its roof. Our school has access to Howell park, the most attractive recreation grounds in the city. The eighth grade boys and girls have the privilege of using the tennis court at recess, a privilege that is appreciated to the utmost. The long, curving walks of the park form an ideal place for skating. In fact, we have one of the most desirable schools in Atlanta.

The eighth grade boys and girls have started out in earnest, practicing athletics, so as to keep the flags that adorn our wall, which were won by the eighth grade preceding ours.

The eighth grade had a spelling match Friday on physiology words, in which the first three sections and the last three competed. The first three sections won by a majority of one. Nine children remained standing.

Class officers were elected Tuesday from the eighth grade. They are: Harry Owensby, president; Annabeth Smith, secretary; Frances Stokes, treasurer.

The little second grades are very proud of receiving 100 in attendance last week.

The seventh grade had an interesting game of captain ball last week, in which William Kemp and Abel Winburn were captains. The game, which was very close, resulted in a score of 5 to 6 in favor of William Kemp's side.

ATLANTA SELECT

The students of our school have made a vast improvement in their studies in the past week, especially the younger boys in the fifth to the seventh grades. Bidwell, Reynolds and Day have stood highest. The older boys, however, are doing well. Our society, the Gamma Alpha Rho, held it's first meeting on Friday, the 19th. Good selections were offered by Day, Zefalu, Willbanks, Foote, A. Peek, Bidwell, Peacock and Russ. The critic's report was also good. In our next meeting, which will be on Friday, the 26th, we expect to have our first debate. The subject is: "Resolved, That the Panama Canal Will Be a Benefit to the United States." The affirmative side will be represented by Day as leader, assisted by Russ, Zefalu, Bidwell, Peacock and Crowley. The negative side by A. Peek as leader, assisted by Foote, Willbanks, Mules, Starnes and Erwin. All of these boys are good speakers. Following the debate Mr. L. Peek, the critic, will make a few remarks on the speeches of the debaters.

GEORGE P. FOOTE.

HILL STREET SCHOOL

The eighth grade will have an entertainment Friday for the class in the lower grades that has the best line.

Some of the boys are going to plant flowers and hedges along the walk.

The girls are going to have a basketball court on the front yard. Miss Reeves will coach them. We hope some of them will be stars in the future.

The boys have a basketball diamond in the rear. Most of them are already stars.

The girls of the higher grades are allowed to dance at recess.

PREP LEAGUE CRIPPLED BY LOSS OF JOE BEAN

Marist Loses Famous Coach, Who Was a Power in Prep Circles

Coach Joe Bean is leaving our midst for new fields to conquer. He has severed his connection with Marist college, and while he is still connected with the Atlanta Athletics club, it is almost certain that he will not be associated with the Atlanta Prep league for the coming year.

For the past four years Coach Bean has been identified with Marist college as physical director and athletic coach. During that time he developed more young fellows than anybody else could ever dream of doing. The teams turned out by him vied with those of any college in the south.

Mr. Bean was familiarly known as Coach Joseph "Worry" Bean. His middle name showed his true inner self. He was always "worried" about the welfare of the boys under his charge and also those not directly under his surveillance. His mind is full of ideas for the betterment of boys.

In Atlanta "prepdom," while he was connected with Marist, he was king of sports, head and shoulders above all in aggressiveness.

The baseball league was brought to the highest standard by his work. Take basketball, this was introduced in Atlanta by him. So also in all sports in the Prep association—track meets, football, cross country running, etc., all were promoted by this versatile man.

The writer has sat on the bench with Mr. Bean for all his time at Marist and never once has "coach" ever stood for anything but "clean" playing in every sport. Mr. Bean's motto for a boy is: "Always go into a thing to win, win if you can, but only by clean and fair methods and take defeat like a man."

Although Joe Bean is leaving Marist, this does not mean that Marist college is out of the athletic world. The Marist students would not be living up to "coach's" teachings if they quit.

And now that he is going to larger fields, the prep schools are beginning to feel how much he will be missed. I know that all the schools will unite with the writer and Marist in making known their regrets that he is leaving Atlanta prepdom and in wishing words of success to the man who, when Atlanta prep sports are mentioned, is always thought of—the noted coach, Joseph "Worry" Bean.

Lee St. Wins Banner at Civic League Meeting

Three cheers for the Civic league!

Lee street has distinguished herself again, as she always does, and we are as proud of her as we can be. Our whole school turned out Saturday with the exception of the lower grades, and marched through town to the auditorium. The drummer boy and the green and purple banner that we all love so well headed our procession. Then came the girls and boys, shouldering brooms or garden tools, the emblem of work for civic beauty, and the dear old United States flag.

Each pupil wore the Lee street badge of purple and green with the words, "Lee, the leader," printed upon it. And as a symbol of work, hard work, each pupil had pinned on a miniature hoe, shovel, or rake.

Three photographers snapped us as we passed them and we were therefore a little delayed.

Most heartily do we extend our thanks to the hundred and twenty children who helped us win the beautiful banner, and doubly do we thank our beloved principal, Miss Zuber, who worked hardest of all. Had it not been for her, Lee street would never have gained victory. Our prize, a silk banner, lettered in gold, has not yet arrived, and we can hardly wait to see it.

The higher grades are going to organize a basketball team soon, and expect to challenge every other school in the city, and win in that, as Lee often does, in everything she undertakes.

G. W. ADAIR SCHOOL

Our school has begun with the prospects of a fine year's work. We are all anxious to make a better record than we did last year.

We lost one of our best teachers during the summer, but we have two new ones, Miss Carr and Miss Hooper, whom we are very glad to have with us.

The boys and girls of the eighth grade have organized a basketball team, for we wish to excel in athletics as well as in our studies.

We are glad to say that all the classes are interested in spelling, and we are having some interesting contests, but the third grade has done the best work so far.

WASHINGTON SEMINARY ENROLLS MANY NEW GIRLS

Musical Recital, Reception and Birthday Party Enjoyed by All

Mr. Scott is gratified with the attendance at Washington seminary this year—it is larger than any preceding year. Nearly 300 scholars are enrolled. There is an unusually large number of new girls. The old students are trying to make the new feel at home and quickly get in touch with the school life. The classes are so large that another teacher has been secured and added to the already large faculty.

Thursday morning, September 11, a delightful musical program was given. The Misses Bartholomew rendered a piano duet which was a great treat. Following this was a piano solo which every one enjoyed. This year we have a new piano teacher, Miss McGregor, who favored us with an instrumental piece. The last number on the program was a sweet vocal solo rendered by Miss Lovelace.

The devotional exercises were conducted by the pastor of Wesley Memorial church, Dr. Jenkins. Rev. Hughlett, of St. Mark's church, gave us a most helpful and interesting talk on "Character." We always enjoy hearing him as his talks are so bright and vivacious.

Tuesday morning Mr. Alexander Skibinskey favored us with a fine violin solo which every one enjoyed very much.

One of the most appreciated social events was the reception that Miss Emma B. Scott gave for the boarders. The new girls in this way became quickly acquainted with each other, and now feel a keen interest in everything connected with the school.

One of the sweetest places in Washington seminary is the kindergarten department. The little tots had a birthday party at which refreshments of ice cream and cake were served. It was in honor of little Margaret Moore, whose fifth birthday it was. Margaret's mother gave the party. Some of the mothers of the children assisted in making the occasion an enjoyable one.

We were all very much surprised at the unexpected marriage of Miss Lovelace to Dr. Hurt, but are delighted to know that she will continue with us the same as before.

Tenth Defeats North Avenue in Football

The eighth grade has a very interesting library this year, the books being loaned by the pupils. As much time as can be saved from lessons is devoted to reading these books.

The eighth grade won the "Best Line Banner" last week, and five grades had perfect attendance for several days. They were the second A, the second B, the third B, the fourth B and the fifth grades.

The fourth B grade seems to be having a stroke of hard luck. Two boys have been out of school a week on account of broken arms, and one girl in that grade has just broken one of her arms.

Last week the third B grade won the first spelling contest with the third A grade. However, the third B has a much smaller class than third A, and should win more often.

On Tuesday our football team played North Avenue school, and we are glad to say that they won, 19 to 6. The team challenges any other grammar school team in the city. Call Ivy 378.

Scholarships Awarded Girls' Night School

Mr. Slaton has said, "The Girl's Night school is a star in Atlanta's educational crown," and we are ready to prove his statement.

We have one hundred and four girls enrolled and four teachers for us all. It was hard to settle down to study at first, but we have at last begun our year's work.

Five dollars in gold have been offered in each of the four divisions to the girl bringing the most new pupils who stay until the end of the year. A gold medal, also is to be awarded the girl who has the most perfect spelling papers. Draughon's and the Southern Business colleges, have offered scholarships to the two girls in the fourth division who make the most advancement during the school term.

Mrs. White, our former principal and teacher was with us the first night of school. We miss her very much, and are eagerly looking forward to another visit from her.

Marist Is Confident She Can Win Pennants

The Marist cadets, now having gotten into shape for business, are ready for athletic work. The college basketball courts have recently been repaired and they are now in fine condition. The lockers have been issued for the year, and the "athletic dressing rooms" have been thrown open to the boys.

On Monday the athletic manager addressed the corps, calling for candidates for all teams. As usual, the response was rapid and most impressive, for on that day no less than twenty-five boys appeared on the campus for work.

Among the old men are Frank Harrison, Robert Hubert, Phillip Kennedy, James Lowry, Howard McCall, Eugene Wrigley and Henry Tull.

With this fine nucleus of experienced men added to the excellent new men, who are daily being discovered, there is no doubt that Marist will have a very successful athletic year.

On Monday night a meeting of the coaches of the various prep schools belonging to the association was held at Marist college.

In the military department the new cadets are learning fast the fundamental principles of drill regulations. They have been set off in squads under experienced non-commisioned officers, who instruct them in the "school of the soldier."

The cadets, under Cadet Captain McCall, of Company A, have for the past few days been reviewing the manual and brushing up on the company formation

Faithful Report From This Reliable School

There were 262 bright, happy faces gathered in line at Faith school on the opening day, all eager to get back in school after a very enjoyable vacation.

The boys in the fourth, fifth and sixth grades that average the highest attendance have the pleasure of playing basketball at recess. Miss Milledge visited our school Tuesday and gave the little first grade a gold star in music. Our principal, Mrs. Neil, asked one of the little girls how they won the star, and she answered, "'Cause we ting good."

We were very proud of our attendance last week. The schol average was 99.5, the first, second and fourth grades each averaged 100 per cent.

The sixth grade boys and girls formed a society which mets once a month. We are to have recitations, songs and dialogues and each one is to be marked in elocution. Harry Goldberg was elected president of the society by a large vote.

We hope that this year will be one of success for pupils as well as our dear teachers.

ATHLETICS AT TECH HI ON THE ANNUAL BOOM

Football Candidates Practice on a Lot Near the School, Fowler at Tech Hi

BY H. T. HAGAN.

School has started again and with it comes the football season. Although several of the fellows of last year's team did not return this year, we are not disheartened—far from it—we are joyously waiting to see Tech High romp over the other teams and have her first taste of the fruits of a championship.

John Laird is not back this year, we are sorry to say. It will be quite a long while before Tech High has another fellow that will play the class of ball that "Jonnie" did. But Bedell is back, so is Myers, the two Parks brothers, Weston, Colcord, Edmiston and Saunders. All of these boys have had experience and are all-round excellent football players, so I see no reason why a fast team should not be built from these eight men. There is also quite a number of new men this year, some of them having the appearance of real football stars. The most promising of the new men is Fowler. He is sure of winning one of the end positions on the team. As scrimmages haven't begun yet, a corect line can hardly be formed on the new men.

Practice is held every afternoon on the lot next to the school. This proves more successful than having the boys come out to Piedmont Park to practice. The boys turn out in large numbers every afternoon to practice. In fact, there is such a number trying for the team, that the squad is to be out soon.

Jim Parks was elected captain of this year's team and Bill Bedell manager. Parks knows football, both inside and out, and he also knows how to teach it to the other boys. Manager Bedell will help Parks coach the team. Bill has the build, the ability and the grit to play star football. He is now making arrangements for several out-of-town games in the near future.

Pins to be Given Best Spellers at Formwalt

Our school seems unsually attractive this year with its beautiful flowers, pictures and curtains, and last but not least, our four hundred and eighty-four children. This is the largest enrollment we have ever had—not a vacant seat in the school.

Although all our rooms are very pretty, the seventh and eighth are the most attractive. Mrs. Sams has helped a great deal in this respect by giving the school twenty-two pots of growing plants. I am sure they will be a pleasant reminder of her.

The seventh and fifth grades were the successful winners of the attendance and spelling banner for the first week, and feel very proud that they were so fortunate in the beginning.

Miss Graves and Miss Milledge visited the primary grades, and we trust that these little people will have as good work all the rest of the year as they did the first week.

The eighth grade is very enthusiastic over the beautiful pins that will be awarded them by our teacher, Miss Mobley, for the boy and girl receivin the highest average in written and oral spelling, at the end of the first term. We also wish to thank Miss Mobley for the two lovely pictures which she has given us.

Boys of the seventh grade have organized a class team of baseball, and played with the sixth grade, winning with a score of 11 to 3.

The little tots of the first grade A feel very proud of themselves. They can spell and write five words. They also enjoy two beautiful new pictures that adorn their walls.

Edgewood Out to Break All Former Records

Dr. Toepel made us a visit last Friday, which we enjoyed very much. Some of the grades received excellent reoprts, and we hope within the next few months to show what we can and will attain in athletics and physical training.

The seventh grade has two new pupils, Frances and Eugenia Moore, from Waynesboro, Ga.

The fifth grade A had an arithmetic examination in which ten children received 100.

This week the little first grade tots practiced the fire drill for the first time, and enjoyed it very much.

Last week the fourth grade had a geography examination, in which twenty-three hundreds were received. They also had a grammar examination, and seventeen pupils received 100.

On account of the overflow of children at our school, a little room has been screened off in the auditorium, and several benches placed for seats. Miss Moore, our supernumerary, has a second grade of twenty-four little ones. These children will remain with us until the Moreland Avenue school is ready.

On account of our good physical training, our teacher, Miss Holsenbeck, gave us a guessing contest. The prizes were a picture for the girls and a picture for the boys. The lucky winners were Leola Acre and Gibbs Fowler.

NOW IS THE TIME FOR ALL GOOD FARMERS TO DIVERSIFY CROPS

Present Fine Corn and Cotton Yields Will Enable Them to Devote More Attention to All Food Crops

"BEST OPPORTUNITY EVER TO QUIT ONE-CROP IDEA"

Atlanta Wholesalers Discuss Subject and Call on All Southern Retailers to Boost "Living at Home"

That the farmers of Georgia and the southeast have never been in a better condition nor had a better opportunity to branch out extensively into diversification of crops than will be the case with them next year is the opinion of Atlanta jobbers, who are always in intimate touch with the trend of agricultural development.

They point out the fact that the farmers of the southeast will harvest a good cotton crop this year which will sell for a splendid price and that they are already harvesting one of the largest yields of corn that has ever blessed this section. This, they declare, will enable the farmers to pay off all their indebtedness and begin the new crop year with money in the bank, and plenty of corn in their barns. They will thus be enabled to start the year under no stress whatever of devoting their energies so exclusively as heretofore to cotton, which now is and always will be the great money crop of the south.

Free then to do as they please, the farmers next year will be in a position to embark to a greater extent than ever before upon raising corn, hay, grain, truck, hogs, cattle, horses and mules. They will have the best opportunity they have ever had of raising all their food products at home. The money which they have been spending for such commodities will be kept here to the enrichment of the state and the south and the cotton crop which, of course, will never be neglected will occupy its rightful place as a surplus crop, representing the net profits of the farm.

CONDITIONS LAST YEAR.

Conditions last year forced the farmers this season to devote a larger acreage than ordinarily to corn and other feed crops. The results have paid handsomely. It has been an object lesson of the amazing good that crop diversification will yield, and it will be a stimulus for a repetition of the experience next year on a still larger scale.

The convention of southern merchants held here in August devoted one of its entire sessions to a consideration of greater crop diversity and how best the influence of landlords, bankers, and retailers might be exerted toward this end. The discussions proved most interesting and awakened a wide interest in the subject over the south.

In view of the present opportunity, Atlanta jobbers think this interest should now be revived and that southern merchants should begin talking crop diversity now and keep it until the next planting season. The opportunity is peculiarly favorable, they contend, and should be made of the most by all means.

They cite the fact that cattle raising promises a most fruitful field of endeavor in the south and call attention to the action of the American Meat Packers' asosciation, held in Chicago last week in setting aside a fund of $500,000 to be devoted $100,000 a year for the next five years, to a campaign of education to stimulate interest in cattle raising among the farmers of the nation. No section of the country was regarded with more favor by the packers for this purpose than the south.

"There never was a better time in the history of the south for farmers to break away from the one-crop system than now," declared Bolling H. Jones, secretary-treasurer of the Atlanta Stove Works, and president of the recent Southern Merchants' convention. "Three things especially make the time propitious. The great drouth throughout the west will cause the price of hay and corn to be high, the boll weevil will soon reach this section, and our farmers have for perhaps the first time in their lives raised enough corn for their use. The farmers must prepare for the coming of the boll weevil and if they are properly prepared, the presence of the weevil will prove no detriment to our agricultural prosperity. The salvation of the south lies in keeping the vast sum of money at home that now annually goes to other sections for food products and for horses and mules. I hope that every southern merchant will begin to interest himself now in greater crop diversification for next year and exert all the influence of which he is capable in this direction."

NOW IS THE TIME.

"Now is the best time ever for crop diversification," said W. A. Ward, of the Ward-Truitt company, "and I believe that the merchants of the south are already alive to this fact. I have heard no less than fifty southern retailers say within the last few months that beginning with January 1, they will refuse to carry the accounts of farmers who will not raise their own food supplies. This is indeed significant of the dawn of a new farming era in the south. I have never known a farmer who raised his own supplies who did not prosper greatly. I recall now an instance of a man who has made over $100,000 within the last twenty years by farming alone, and you may rest assured he didn't do it on the one crop idea."

"Now is a splendid time for southern farmers to resolve to raise their own feed products," said Lee Duncan, of the W. S. Duncan company. "Already a good beginning has been made in this direction. Within the last few years the demand for seed oats among the Georgia farmers has been increasing at a rapid rate, and this year a big crop of rye has been raised by the farmers of north Georgia."

"The demand which we note for improved farm machinery is a sure sign of greater crop diversity," said H. P. Bell, of the John Deere Plow company, "and the use of improved machinery saves labor and gives the farmer more time to devote to a variety of crops. Many farmers of the south are branching out into the raising of cowpeas which is indeed a profitable crop. I know of one farmer who declares his intention of devoting 200 acres to this crop next year."

MEANS PROSPERITY.

"Crop diversification means prosperity to the south in countless ways," said E. M. Hudson, of the McCord-Stewart company. "The farmers of the south have got a good start in this direction this year which they should by all means continue in enlarged degree next season. They will have the best chance they have ever had to do so."

"I have never known a more favorable time for the farmers of Georgia to set themselves to the task of raising all their meat, hay and corn at home," said G. C. Jones, of Jones Bros. & Co. "They can get along very well buying their flour, but it is necessary for them to raise these other products to be prosperous in any true sense of the word. The farmers at Ellenwood, Ga., raised a number of car loads of cucumbers for our plant this year, and notwithstanding untoward seasons, they found it a profitable venture. Next year we intend establishing three additional salting stations in southwest Georgia for cucumbers and tomatoes and we expect them to be equally as successful as the Ellenwood station."

"I have been talking crop diversity for twenty-five years," said C. J. Sullivan, of the M. C. Kiser company, "and in all this time I have never seen a better opportunity for it to be put into practice that now. Merchants now see the folly of insisting on cotton to the exclusion of other crops as a basis of credit. They have realized that the man who doesn't 'live at home' is a poor credit risk."

"Cotton, including the seed, is now bringing about $80 a bale," said J. R. Little, of the Dougherty-Little-Redwine company, "and the farmers of Georgia have raised probably the best corn crop they have ever had. Both crops have been made at small expense. This can mean nothing but prosperity and this prosperity can be continued indefinitely if the farmers will make cotton a surplus crop and raise all their feed supplies at home. They have a fine opportunity now to do this. I hope every merchant will talk crop diversity for all he is worth from this time on."

B., P. & G. COMPANY BUYS SILVEY-DOUGHERTY STOCK

Latter Firm Going Out of Business—Largest Hat Deal in City's History

One of the largest hat deals ever made in Atlanta was consummated last week when the Brown, Perryman & Greene Co. bought the entire stock of the Silvey-Dougherty Hat company, which is now in the process of dissolution following the recent death of Jerome Silvey, who was among its largest stockholders.

The stock purchased by the Brown, Perryman & Greene Co. filled the five floors of Silvey-Dougherty Co.'s building at 24 Central avenue, and consists of the newest wares in hats, caps, gloves, umbrellas and belts.

The acquisition of the Silvey-Dougherty goods will give the Brown, Perryman & Greene Co. perhaps the largest stock of its kind in the southern states. With the purchase of stock, the Brown company also secured the right to the use of the Silvey-Dougherty brands.

J. Oscar Chambers, C. D. Dickinson and J. F. Tate, travelers of the Brown, Perryman & Greene Co., were in the house several days last week assisting in the work of receiving the new stock. They will, however, be back on the road again this week.

PIANO PLAYER, PRODUCT OF RAPID DEVELOPMENT

Device Has Grown From Crude Beginning to Present State of Perfection

"The development of the player piano has been rapid and wonderful," said W. C. Willis, southern wholesale representative of the Baldwin Piano company, discussing this ingenious device of modern times.

"It first appeared in the form of a piano player, a contrivance that was placed in front of a regular piano and the connection made directly with the keys. This for a number of reasons was not satisfactory, and the next step was to place all the playing machinery inside the piano. The keys, therefore, are always free, as in the case of an ordinary piano.

'Like the first automobiles, the first players were an experiment and contained many defects. These, however, have been overcome through much study and many trials, until now the Manuelo, manufactured by the Baldwin Piano company, is a player that is all but human.

"The player piano while comparatively new, is gaining popularity every day, in fact so popular has it become that it is difficult to fill the orders. It is in great favor with professional men, who find in music relaxation and a recreation from the exacting duties of present-day pace. They can thus have brought to them the works of all the great composers, both ancient and modern. With the simple devices for loud, soft, slow or rapid playing, which the Mauuelo possesses, they can give their own interpretation to the composition which they desire to hear, and gives full sway to the personal feelings of the operator, eliminating anything that sounds like the mechanical."

Mr. Willis has been with the Baldwin company many years, having served them at St. Louis, Kansas City, Louisville and for the past two years as southern wholesale representative with headquarters at Atlanta. He is equally as well at home in the mechanical department of piano and player making as in the sales department.

CANNED GOODS SHOW VAST IMPROVEMENT

Dealer Tells of Development Industry Has Experienced in Recent Years

It looked like a picnic lunch at the H. L. Singer company last Thursday. Opened cans of fruits and vegetable lined the office in tempting array. Delicious, indeed were the products to the taste but it wasn't a picnic affair, however. The occasion was the arrival of three car loads of Gold Bar canned fruits and five cars of Sweet Violet canned vegetables, and the open packages were samples of the new goods.

So perfectly were the products that they moved H. L. Singer to a discussion of the vast improvement that has been wrought in the canned goods industry in the United States in the last five or six years.

"It was only a few years ago," said her "that it was impossible to obtain high quality canned vegetables of domestic pack. Take peas for instance. The canned variety on the market then was very inferior. The peas were of all sizes and hence in the cooking some came out tender and some tough. The only canned peas of really high quality that could then be had were imported from France. But now all this is changed and the pack of domestic manufacturers even surpassed the imported goods and is sold at a less price. In fact twice the quantity can be had for the same money. The American goods are now of more uniform size more tender and of fine flavor than the imported brands.

"Only a short time ago the canned vegetable line was confined chiefly to corn and tomatoes, here today almost every known fruit and vegetable are to be had in cans. You can get such unusual products as canned spinach, sweet potatoes, squash, pumpkins and beets.

"Packers have installed the most modern machinery for every step of the canning operation. Great care is used in selecting, assorting and growing the fruits and vegetables so that they will be of uniform size and will therefore cook even and smoothly. Practically all the packers now use the modern sanitary can which has no solder on the inside at all, the top being fastened on by compression and for such vegetables as require it, as for instance beets and spinachenameled cans are used. The old fear of getting poisoned from eating canned products has vanished because the precautions now taken renders poisoning impossible.

Another thing that distinguishes the evolution of the canning industry is the higher class of the fruits and vegetables used. Time was, and not so long ago, when truckers and orchardists furnished the canners only with the leftover products which they were unable to sell. Now they raise the highest quality goods especially for the canners.

"The packers take great pains to get out attractive labels and packages and they guard the quality of their brands like they would a good name, for good names the brands are, and are therefore, a valuable asset. Canners would never think of packing inferior stuff under their brands for it would be business suicide. You may open any can at random of a high class packer and you will find it the same as every other can.

"The consuming public is rapidly finding out the superior quality of the goods put up by modern canners. They scon find out what is good and what is

Committee Visits Washington and Interviews Congressmen on Remedy for Present Disfranchisement

PLAN SUGGESTED TO LET TRAVELERS VOTE BY MAIL

Requirement That Votes Must Be Cast in Person in Residence Precinct Disfranchises Salesmen on Road

At every election, state and national, thousands of traveling men are disfranchised. And this is not because the travelers do not meet the specified requirements of voters, nor is it because of any fault of theirs whatsoever; but through force of circumstances.

The travelers' occupation demands their absence from home for the greater part of their time, and hence when election day rolls round they are likely to be hundreds, even thousands, of miles from their own voting precinct, and hence according to the election laws now prevailing that the voter can only cast his vote in person in the precinct or district of which he is a resident, a vast number of travelers are constantly finding themselves cut off from participation in important elections, both state and national.

A movement has been on foot for some time among travelers everywhere to find a remedy for this situation. While there are a number of complications and obstacles in the way of the passage of such laws, there seems to be none that may not be finally overcome. In war time soldiers voted in state and municipal elections while they were in camp or on the battlefield in other states. Special provisions of this kind can now be made for traveling salesmen. The plan has been suggested of allowing travelers to cast their votes by mail from any point they might be at the time of the election.

That the commercial travelers should be thus disfranchised is a glaring injustice which should be speedily righted, for there is no class of voters more intelligent or more capable of using the franchise for the good of the country.

COMMITTEE VISITS WASHINGTON.

A committee of the Associated Traveling Men of New York City recently paid a visit to Washington to interview congressmen with a view of interesting them in "Votes for Travelers." They were cordially received and were given assurances of supoprt from Secretary of the Navy Josephus Daniels, Speaker Clark and various influential members of congress.

The report of the committee of New York salesmen has been furnished the Firing Line by W. Cloyd Pool, formerly of Georgia, but now a salesman of the Washington company of New York City. Mr. Pool writes as follows:

Editor Firing Line: As a Goergia man and an old reader of The Journal, I am taking the liberty of sending you a copy of the report of a recent visit of a committee sent to Washington by the Associated Traveling Men of New York in the interest of a cause that the Firing Line might be sufficiently interested in to use their valuabel influence to make it a success.

The traveling men who cover southern territory realize the great assistance your paper has rendered them in numerous ways and I feel confident that they will appreciate anything that you can do in this important matter.

Yours very truly,
W. CLOYD POOL.
New York City, Sept. 24, 1913.

THE COMMITTEE'S REPORT.

The report of the committee of New York travelers on their visit to Washington on September 5, 1913, is as follows:

Written words will hardly convey to you the enthusiasm and seriousness with which our committee was received by some of the greatest and ablest men in this country.

Our first visit was to Hon. Josephus Daniels, secretary of the navy. He gave up forty-five minutes of his valuable time, notwithstanding the fact that a score of people were waiting for an audience with him.

His heart and soul is with us in this important movement of getting votes for the disfranchised traveling men and others whose vocations force them to be away from home during election time. He, of course, is principally concerned in the votes for sailors, marines and soldiers, who liwe us, are deprived of their right to the ballot. He approves of the plan outlined by us which would enable us to cast our vote by mail from any point where we might be during election. However, he explained to us that in his present incumbrance of office, he could not take any initiative, but that he would use all his influence to bring the question to an early issue and that he would surely enlist the influence of the president and members of the cabinet.

Not being quite sure if it was a matter of the federal government or of state, he gave us a letter of introduction to Congressman Eugene Y. Wedd, the chairman of the judiciary of the house. This gentleman also received us with the greatest courtesy and gave us his legal opinion, which is, that the franchise is purely a matter of the constitution of the state and advised us to see our congressman.

We had a letter of introduction from Tammany hall to Hon. Mr. Patten, congressman of the Seventeenth district of New York City. To our regret he was absent from Washington, as we were informed by Hon. Mr. Scully, congressman from New Jersey.

We therefore called upon Hon. Eugene Kincaid, congressman of New Jersey, who had been informed of our visit by Mr. A. B. Devlin, national treasurer of the American Association of Masters, Mates and Pilots, which association is also very much interested in our movement. Hon. Kincaid being on the floor of the house in session, his secertary, Mr. Scully, called Mr. Kincaid from the senate chamber and the latter also promised his personal support of our measure. He then kindly offered to introduce us to the speaker of the house, Hon. Champ Clark. The latter presided at that moment in congress, but we were introduced to his secretary, Mr. Bassford. This gentleman graciously approached the speaker in his chair and brought us the answer that the speaker was unable to leave the chair immediately, a very important matter being under discussion, but that he would be pleased to see us between 2 and 2:30 o'clock.

EDWARDS TELLS OF DOINGS OF BUSY DAY WITH SHIPPING CLERK

Prosperity Now Floods the Land and Shipping Clerks Feel Full Effects of the Flow, His Order Song Resounds From Morning Till Night

ALLEN EDWARDS,
Shipping clerk of Fain & Stamp's for out-of-town trade.

"Mose, gimme three Daisy cheese, case sardines, bag imported monkey food, case thirty salt, barrel sweetening, sack o' spuds."

"Will, two cases ten-pound Velva, two tens Snowdrift, tub Flake White, sack o' onions, sack o' 'nips, case of sour fruit."

The words flow into a steady song. The porters wheel about their trucks, attack high piles of goods, and rumble back quickly to the shipping platform with their loads. Stencils are applied and waiting drays receive the contents of the trucks and are off to the freight depots. Shipments of groceries are thus leaving Atlanta to go to dealers in Georgia and other parts of the south.

And it is the shipping clerk who is in command of all this interesting activity. And just now this activity is at high tide, for isn't prosperity abroad in the land and aren't the grocer jobbers of Atlanta now in the midst of the greatest September business in years? If you doubt it, ask Allen Edwards.

He is the shipping clerk of Fain & Stamps for the out-of-town trade. Ask him if he knows anything about sweet idleness. Ask him to translate "dolce far niente." Ask him if he has a moment even to dream of a fair face (for take it from the office, Allen ordinarily is some dreamer).

Just ask him, and he will quickly but gently lead you aside a few paces and you will thank him for it, too, for you will perceive that he has saved you from being run over by one of those loaded trucks clucking its way from the interior of the building to the platform.

But never a word will he answer you. On the contrary, he will begin his sing-song jargon to Mose and Will about that sack o' spuds, bag o' 'nips, and imported monkey food. And a splendid song it is. Mr. Edwards only sings from notes, but he always has his notes with him. The traveling salesmen write them. Mr. Stamps reviews them, and Mr. Edwards collects them all in a big book the first thing in the morning and he has thus enough songs to keep him busy singing for the rest of the day. All his songs nowadays are sung in "prestissimo" and "staccato," year, even in "furioso" time.

But lunch hour comes to every man, and it was during this period that Mr. Edwards was persuaded to give some account of the crowded activities that go to make up a typical busy day with a shipping clerk, using his own experience as an illustration.

"At 6:30 a. m. I open the store," said Mr. Edwards. "The porters are already there when I arrive. The first thing I do is to call up the merchandise brokers on the phone and buy what's needed for the day in the way of produce. I buy more generously of produce on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Thursdays than on any other days, so that by Friday all the goods purchased may be cleaned out. While I am talking to the brokers the porters are sweeping out.

"At 7 o'clock the draymen show up and I send them off to the freight depots for incoming goods of less than carload lots. Carloads shipments are sent to the tracks under our building.

"Sport Ramsaur, the shipping clerk for the city trade, comes in also at 7 o'clock, usually with this greeting, "Good morning, how about Irish potatoes and cabbage." Sport already has his orders which have been turned in by the city salesmen the afternoon before and he begins at once the work of having the porters pile the goods on the platform for the city trade.

"At about 7:30 o'clock Mr. Stamps arrives, chewing his cigar and inquiring, 'Has the mail come?' He then retires with the mail to the office upstairs and o. k.'s the orders. From this time until 9:30 I am engaged in unloading the carload shipments on the tracks downstairs.

"Mr. Fain comes in about 8:30 with his usual morning greeting, 'Boys, order the dopes.' When the dopes have been satisfactorily disposed of Mr. Fain goes to the upstairs office to look over the collections.

"Mr. Stamps then brings down the o. k.'d orders and I see how much goods we happen to be out of and which will have to be purchased of other Atlanta jobbers. These I order and am ready to begin the shipping at 9:30. The porters are given a list of the light goods which are stored upstairs, such as peanuts, paper bags, pickles, etc. The porters are then instructed to get ready the stencils of the names of merchants to whom the goods are to be shipped. The goods are then placed in separate piles, properly marked and the drays take them to the depots.

"Shipping then continues with a rush until 12 o'clock, which is lunch hour. At 12:30 both Sport and myself are back at the office and telephones are ringing, drays are arriving and departing and the porters are keeping up a steady back and forth passage from the goods stored in the house to the platform, and shipping is again in full swing and lasts until 5 o'clock, when the depots close.

"From 5 o'clock until 6 I resume the work of unloading the cars downstairs and of checking up the orders for incoming goods that the drays have left during the day. At 6 o'clock the porters leave and from then until 6:30 and sometimes until 8, I am at work on the receiving books and o. k.ing orders. Then I am off, with nothing to do till tomorrow."

"LIQUID'S" CONTEST CLUB CLOSES FOR THE YEAR

The 100 point contest club of the Liquid Carbonic company has closed for the year. No salesman won the gold botton, which requires leadership for three successive quarters. The winners of the quarterly silver buttons were L. R. Grimes, R. D. Latta, H. D. Fullenweider, M. S. Dickson and D. D. Batcheller.

SAMPLES AND SHIPMENTS

L. L. McMullan, C. D. Farrill, W. B. Estes, travelers for the W. S. Duncan company, and J. L. Estes, city salesman, all report splendid business on Victory flour. They are also having a good run on shorts.

R. R. Bennett, merchant of Jacksonville, Fla., was a visitor and buyer of Montag Bros. last week. He was on his way back from a month's vacation in Memphis, Tenn.

H. L. Watts, Ed Montag and O. H. Muehler have charge of the holiday display for Montag Bros. at the Gayoss hotel at Memphis, Tenn. They had a big week's business.

"We are having an especially good demand now for ensilage cutters," said H. P. Bell, of the John Deer Plow Co. "They are proving more popular in the south now than ever before. The farmers are recognizing the value of utilizing in this manner feed products that heretofore have been going to waste. Our company has recently issued an interesting volume on soil culture by Dr. W. E. Dallor, of our soil culture department. Our company has also gotten out a book for farmers to keep their accounts in, in a systematic manner, and it will undoubtedly prove helpful to progressive farmers everywhere who recognize the value of keeping a strict business record of all their transactions."

L. E. Rogers, of the New South bakery, spent two days in Chattanooga last week, where he is looking after the opening of another Tip-Top bakery. The ovens are being installed and most of the machinery is on the ground. The opening will be held October 15.

Bartow Morgan, Jr., salesman of the Tip-Top bakery, has been transferred to the Birmingham territory for the next month, and later will go to Chattanooga. Burney Lloyd, city salesman, has been transferred to the Chattanooga plant.

Sam Hanes, Boykin Pennington and Morris Croft were the travelers at the Ragan-Malone company who were at headquarters Saturday. They all had a fine run of business.

W. C. Barnwell, of the Ragan-Malone company, reports that the notions department last week had the shipping force working at night to get out the business.

J. C. Owens was another one of the Fain & Stamps salesmen who pulled down an opening bill last week.

ORR WILL ADDRESS GIDEON MEETING TODAY

At the Gideon meeting this afternoon J. K. Orr will speak on the subject, "The Christian Drummer." The Moore orchestra will furnish music and Miss Annie B. Hood and Miss Louise Buchanan will sing. The pnblic is cordially invited to attend.

The officers of the Atlanta camp elected at its last meeting are C. H. Burge, president, re-elected; Edgar Oliver, first vice president; Charles K. Ziegler, secretary; W. L. Hardin, treasurer, and M. C. Morris, chaplain.

The trustees were named as follows: L. C. Satterfield, chairman; C. W. Hatcher, Cliff G. Childs, W. E. McCalla, Newton Phillips.

HOLMES, NEW TRAVELER FOR ROSENFELD CO.

B. Z. Holmes is the new Alabama traveler of the Rosenfeld company. He succeeds Herbert Block, who has been with the company for ten years, but who resigned to enter business with his brother in Meridian, Miss.

Mr. Holmes is a resident of Atlanta and is a well known salesman. He was formerly with the A. M. Robinson company, then with Marshall Field company and later with a New York importing house, traveling out of that city.

His friends here will be glad to know that he will be again identified with Atlanta business interests. Mr. Holmes will begin his first trip for his new company October 1.

not and they are more and more demanding the best. The demand for canned goods is constantly increasing.

The Atlanta market alone consumes every season 100,000 cases, of two dozen cans to the case, of tomatoes, 50,000 cases of peas, 60,000 to 75,000 cases of corn and 50,000 cases of peaches and other fruits and vegetables in proportion.

It is only within recent years that the government pure food law went into effect. This law is a guaranty that what the label says is true. It is also a guaranty of cleanliness and purity.

There are now also tasty brands of canned fish and shell fish on the market. It is possible now to get in addition to salmon, oysters and sardines, soft shell crabs in cans, fresh codfish in cans, fresh mackerel, shrimp, harring and lobsters. The tuna fish is a new canned delicacy which has the taste of chicken breast.

HIRSHBERG TRAVELERS AFTER SPENDING TWO WEEKS AT HOUSE PREPARE TO LEAVE WITH SAMPLE HOLIDAY LINE

Majority of Them Will Go Back to Their Territories This Week—Have Full Line and Are Especially Proud of Their Offerings of Ornamental Baskets

All the talk is of Santa Claus and Christmas at the Hishberg company now. All the travelers have been in for two weeks preparing their lines of holiday goods and most of them will take to the road this week as Santa Claus' partners.

The company's line includes all the requirements of the holiday trade, but last week the Firing Line representative found the travelers especially interestd in their showing of ornamental baskets. These articles are beautiful indeed to behold. Made of willow and reed, they consist of pleasing designs for fruit and lunch receptacles, music racks, sewing stands and a score of other uses.

The Hirshberg travelers who will return to the road this week are Mack Hishberg, for his Florida territory; W. C. Tennent, for south Georgia; Max Samuels, for Tennessee, and H. D. Thompson, for the nearby Georgia territory.

LOUNSBURY ANNOUNCES TRAVELERS' COMMITTEE

W. S. Lounsbury, chairman of the Traveling Men's committee of the chamber of commerce, has named the following as members of his committee: James H. Andrews, E. L. Adams, St. Elmo Massengale, E. H. Goodhart, E. M. Lunceford, W. P. Anderson, and George A. Gershon.

Mr. Lounsbury is expected to call a meeting of his committee in a few days for the purpose of discussing the opening of the traveling men's room in the new chamber of commerce building. The chamber has declared its intention of setting aside a room for this purpose.

H. B. WEY DISPLAYS FINE GEORGIA-GROWN APPLES

It was a splendid display of big, luscious red apples seen in the show windows of the Dobbs & Wey Co. on Pryor street Saturday. It was among the first yield of the great orchard of young apples trees of the Yonah Fruit company, of Cornelia, Ga. "Grown in the Hills of Habersham" was the legend on the placard above the display. H. B. Wey, of the Dobbs & Wey Co. is vice president of the Yonah Fruit company and is very proud of the first fruit of the young orchards, which will soon be on the Atlanta market.

The variety of apple shown is known at Kinnard's Choice and is a native of Georgia. The great orchards of Oregon and the northwest can produce no finer than that displayed from the Yonah orchards.

JOHN SILVEY CO. INCREASES FORCE

John Silvey & Co., who now have fourteen salesmen on the road, announce that they will add two more men to their staff November 1. The force has recently been increased in the office and shipping department to take care of the growing volume of business.

Business Has Opened Up With A Rush
The demand for HIGH GRADE FANCY CANNED FRUITS AND VEGETABLES is enormous. Many merchants are now taking advantage of the present opportunity to buy their season's supplies while prices are low and assortments are complete.
Never was there a more opportune time to save money than by buying now. Canned fruits of all kinds are becoming very scarce, and will be much higher. CANNED TOMATOES CORN, PEAS, ASPARAGUS and other popular vegetables are short on deliveries owing to the unfavorable spring season. Killing frost has already fallen in many northern states; this means a still shorter season and short packs.
Owing to favorable purchases, made very early this year, we can and will save you money. Don't wait until this golden opportuntiy has passed.

ON THE ROAD AND IN THE OFFICE WITH ATLANTA'S BUSY ARMY OF COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS

T. J. Landers, of Heflin, Ala., traveler for the Gramling, Spalding company, spent one day last week at headquarters, the first time he has visited Atlanta for a month. He declared that everything is prosperous.

W. F Spalding, of the Gramling-Spalding company, left last Friday for Boston on a buying trip for his firm. "It looks now like the biggest September that we have ever had," said H. S. Collingsworth, of this company. "Orders have been pouring in and collections have been exceptionally good."

BUSINESS BEFORE APPETITE
HAM AND ON A RAFT 10¢

A. L. Mitcham, of the Ward-Truitt company, is a somewhat busy man at all times, but last week put a bit of extra exertion on him. Well, rather. You see, Mr. Mitcham is right in the midst of the special sale being conducted by his company and customers came so fast the past six days that he forgot all about going to lunch; that is, he didn't exactly forget about it, but when hunger pangs pushed themselves into notice, he discovered he didn't really have time to eat. His usual good hot dinner at home was out of the question. It was zip around the corner to a restaurant and a bowl of soup. Only that and nothing more. "You see," said he, "business is keeping me from my meals, and it must, therefore, be mighty good, for I'm not given to deserting my provender for any light cause, I assure you."

"How is business?" was asked Colonel Rockwell Johnson, of the J. K. Orr Shoe company, last Friday. "Haven't time to tell you about it," said he. "I am busy waiting on a customer and you know that business must be rushing when I haven't time to tell how good it is."

"None of our traveelrs are in today," said J. K. Orr, Jr., of the J. K. Orr Shoe company, last Friday. "In fact, they are too busy to come home and we hear nothing of them except through the orders which they send in."

S. F. Hein, of Montag Bros., has opened up a holiday display line at the Hillsboro hotel at Tampa, Fla. He will be there for several weeks.

PUT IT IN YOUR PIPE AND SMOKE IT.

T. B. Lewis and Ellis Whitely, of the Capital City Tobacco company, were sojourning down the West Point road last week,; that is, if you wish to call sending in a big bale of orders for pipes and cigars, sojourning. These salesmen are having a special run on pipes. In fact, the company for the next sixty days will push an especially good line of pipes at especially good prices. That's the kind of proposition these salesmen have been telling the dealers to put in pipes and smoke, and the smoke's a-curling, too.

J. R. Jordon and E. Fiebelman report good business from their holiday display in Birmingham. They have been in that city three weeks, and will close their exhibit this week. They represent Montag Bros.

Beginning October 1 Dr. J. N. Buxton will travel south Georgia and a portion of Florida for Lamar, Taylor & Riley Drug Co., of Macon. Dr. Buxton succeeds Mr. Beckham, who has entered the real estate business in Albany.

"An Irish potato famine is now prevailing in Atlanta and 2 1-2-bushel bags sold the first of the week for as high as $5, being brought in here by express," said A. Fugazzi, the Broad street produce dealer. "The scarcity is caused by a shortage of cars in the north and west. I do not expect the famine to be of any great duration. Basket grapes and California oranges are alos selling well this week."

E. D. Huguley, of the Huguley Oil company, is away on a two weeks' sales trip through Alabama. G. A. Zellner is pushing the Huguley products in south Georgia, where he has been for a month. He will be in that territory for several weeks yet. R. D. Bagwell, of this company, has been sending in some nice business from northeast Georgia and South Carolina.

Joe Di Cristina and Mr. Dennis, salesmen of A. Fugazzi, report a splendid week on all lines of this firm's goods.

J. W. Feeney & Co., merchandise brokers, with offices in the Empire building, last week sold $40,000 worth of hay. Some big deal that, eh?

"We are busy now with cameo mountings," said Frank B. Green, head of the Vollmer Manufacturing company. Shell cameos and pink coral cameos continue to be popular. Rings, brooches, and La Vallieres of platinum are also much in favor. Our business is 100 per cent ahead of this time last year, and we will be compelled to put on several new workmen in the next week or so. Our business is one that reflects immediately a prosperous financial condition. We are also feeling the effects of the approaching October wedding season in increased work on wedding rings and engraving on silverware to be used as presents."

I THOUGHT I LEFT MYSELF BUT I SEE I AM STILL WITH ME.

E. P. Lewis, of the McClure Ten Cent company, had a customer last week, C. E. Odom, of Johnston, S. C., who, he says, would make a good booster for Atlanta. Before leaving the wholesale store he asked for a catalog, and wanted to know if it had the street and number in it anywhere so he could find his way if he wanted to buy more goods before he left Atlanta. Mr. Odom says he was in Atlanta several days, but was never able to find the same place twice, but met himself coming back several times from the place he had started. He says Atlanta no doubt was a sawmill town in time, and that the streets were made by ox-carts hauling logs. After traveling one path for a while it would become muddy, and they would switch off somewhere else. In this way he thinks Atlanta was laid off. Mr. Odom says there is no use looking back after you have gone a block, for you would have to climb a twenty-story building to see where you started from.

I. N. Binder, of the Binder Frame Manufacturing company, is still away on an extensive trip through south Georgia, Florida and Alabama. He has been sending in some splendid orders during the past week for pictures, frame, mouldings, and in fact for all his company's holiday line.

E. H. Janes and J. W. O'Donnell were the two travelers in at Dobbs & Wey's yesterday. They leave Monday for the road again to push their holiday lines. "Fourteen-cent cotton is greasing the ways and everything is sliding smoothly," declared Mr. O'Donnell.

A. P. Baylis, of the Baylis Office Equipment company, was found busy last week with inventory taking, but not too busy to say that the trade in office equipment is showing up at a lively rate.

H. T. Burton, of John Silvey & Co., was in the house the early part of last week looking after house trade. He sold a number of customers on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

P. H. Jeter, of John Silvey & Co., was at headquarters Saturday from his southwest Georgia territory. Z. F. Daniel came in Friday with some good orders from his Georgia road territoy. J. W. Hughes was in Thusday with his share of business from the northeast Georgia territory.

The Liquid Carbonic company has recently sold a sixteen-foot soda fountain to the Winnie Davis Candy company, on Peachtree street. This company recently purchased a ten-foot fountain from the Liquid company, but within three months its business had increased so that a larger fount became imperative.

The meeting of the City Salesmen's association was held yesterday at the new hour of meeting, 10:30 o'clock, and it brought out a big attendance. Spirited talks were made by J. C. Harrison, R. H. Harwell, C. F. Holt, F. B. Florence and Eugene Czintz. L. R. Wright, of the F. W. King company, was admitted as a new member. President Simmons urges all jobbers to have their salesmen attend these meetings.

A. H. Henslee, of Barnesville, Ga., traveler for the Franklin Buggy company, was a pleasant caller at the Firing Line office last week. Mr. Henslee has recently removed from Atlanta to Barnesville.

E. P. Lewis, of the McClure Ten-Cent company, spent last Friday and Saturday in Millen, Ga., giving plans for 5 and 10c stores. During the first part of the week he negotiated for a 10-cent store to be opened some time in October.

R. K. Rambo, of John Silvey & Co., is still in New York, where he went to buy spring goods. D. M. Braswell and Sam Johnson, travelers of this company, were at headquarters last week with orders enough to boost their sales records considerably.

B. L. Fox, of Montag Bros. was in last week from a trade-getting trip in middle Georgia. He reports that cotton is coming into market rapidly and everybody's happy.

M. H. Kleinberg, traveler for the Ward-Tritt company, returned Saturday from Southwest Georgia. It was his first trip with the Ward-Truit and proved to be a very successful one.

HUGULEY ATTENDS OIL MEETING AT CLEVELAND

Independents Meet Next Year at New Orleans—First Time in South

E. E. Huguley, head of the Huguley Oil company, returned last week from Cleveland, Ohio, where he attended the annual convention of the Independent Petroleum Marketers' association.

"Those Cleveland people certainly did give us a royal good time," said Mr. Huguley. "We had a clambake, a banquet and various sight-seeing trips. One of these was to the factory of the White Automobile company, which did itself proud in entertaining us. We were in Cleveland during the celebration of the Perry centennial. The town was crowded and everybody was in holiday spirit.

"New Orleans secured the next convention of the independent marketers, which will constitute the first gathering of the association in the south. Great credit for this is due to William O. Hudson, of the Marine Oil company, of New Orleans. Mr. Hudson made a fight for his city and section on the floor of the convention and played rings all round the representatives from Indianapolis and Denver, who wanted the convention for their cities.

"The southern oil men present as delegates were Mr. Hudson, T. J. Gay, of the Gay Oil company, of Little Rock, Ark.; G. T. Wofford, of the Wofford Oil company, of Memphis; J. H. Handley, of the Palm Oil company, of Mobile, Ala., and myself. Mr. Handley came back with me from the convention and stopped over with me for a day in Atlanta.

"The independent oil men are rapidly increasing in numbers, influence, and wealth. The ocnvention delegates this year numbered 400, which we expect to increase to 600 by the time of the New Orleans meeting."

"ATLANTA'S THE MARKET FOR ME," SAYS MERCHANT ON VISIT HERE

Pelham, Ga., Retailer Says the Market Here Affords Everything He Wants at Proper Prices, and the Saving in Freight Proves Attractive Item

W. F. Hayes, proprietor of the Cash Dry Goods store of Pelham, Ga., is another enthusiastic booster of the Atlanta wholesale market. He was in Atlanta last week and was found buying a big fill-in order of fall goods at the Ward-Truitt company.

"From my experience I should say that Atlanta has 'em all beat when it comes to giving the merchant what he wants at proper prices," said Mr. Hayes. "I find here all the variety and quality which I desire and the saving in freight is a big advantage over more distant markets. I came up this week in response to the special inducements which the Ward-Truitt company is now offering."

Mr. Hayes has been a buyer from the Atlanta market for the last six years for other concerns, but last year he established his own business which is proving highly successful.

"Our offer to refund the railroad fare of any merchant who buys as much as $500 worth of goods from us, which we have been advertising in the Firing Line, is a winner," said W. A. Ward, Friday, discussing the general business which his company has enjoyed the past week. "Why, today up to 1 o'clock we have had sixteen merchants in the house from all sections of Georgia buying good bills and all of them state they came in response to our advertising. Our offer will continue until all our stock has been disposed of and our going-out-of-business sale is ended. So brisk have we found trade the past month that we have been compelled to have new goods in to meet it. We received today shipments of corsets, hosiery, shirts, sheeting and cheviots."

Atlanta Theater Busy This Week With "Ready Money" Monday and Tuesday, "Little Boy Blue" Wednesday and Thursday, and De Koven Opera, "Robin Hood," Last of Week

It is said to be swift in action, full of humorous situations, and altogether one of the most entertaining of American comedies staged in many years, while it contains a love story of tender grace and charm. It is declared to be a laugh from the rise of the curtain on a penniless hero until its fall on a prosperous and happy one and the woman he is to marry.

"Ready Money" has been highly praised as a smashing comedy by the critics of Chicago, New York, London and Boston. When it was produced in London last August, the Daily Express said: "If all the plays to come this season are as happy and as interesting, no playgoer need complain." Matthew White, Jr., writing in Munsey's Magazine for October last, said: "'Ready Money' holds interest from curtain lift to tag.'"

That man cannot succeed without a woman's help is one of the morals to be drawn. Had not Stephen Baird, the hero, been in love with the right kind of a girl, he would never have endured hardships and bent his energies as he did to winning the fortune which brings him happiness and a wife. "Without wealth you cannot marry my daughter"—that is virtually the ultimatum laid down by the mother of the girl he loves. This mother is a loving and cautious mother, and she feels that a man who cannot make good in a business way will not make a good husband. The sweetheart stands by him and puts her wits against those of her mother to the end that she and Stephen may marry. Stephen is celebrating the end of the old year with 25 cents in his pocket, when the mother tries to take his sweetheart from him. At this critical juncture, he meets Jackson Ives, a man about town, who comes to him and offers a proposition which he guarantees will make his fortune in a couple of days. His proposal is a perfectly legitimate one and Baird finally consents to try the experiment. The result far exceeds Ives' fondest hopes, and Steve is changed from virtual poverty to a very rich man within a short time.

Manager Brady has produced a company of unusual excellence to interpret the comedy, which includes Corbett Morris, John M. Kline, Frederick Webber, Bruce Elmore, Robert Toms, Mars Sullivan, Ruth Farnum, Mae Keese, Marjorie Conroy and fifteen others, and a complete and artistic scenic production.

BOY BLUE HERE WEDNESDAY.

More than ordinary interest is being manifested naturally in the coming engagement of Mr. Savage's superb production of the joyous operetta, "Little Boy Blue," which will be seen at the Atlanta Wednesday and Thursday, with a Thursday matinee, following long runs in New York, Philadelphia and Boston. "Little Boy Blue" was so much of a success in New York City when played at the Lyric theater on Forty-second street that it continued there for six months.

The original music play of "Little Boy Blue" was first produced in Vienna and subsequently in Paris and Berlin, and met with extreme favor in each of these three cities. During a trip abroad Mr. Savage obtained the American rights, and forthwith—after Americanizing it—produced it in New York City. The original book was by Rudolph Schanzer and Carl Lindau, with music by Henri Bereny. The American adaptation of the book was made by A. E. Thomas and Edward Paulton.

The story has to do with "Boy Blue," supposedly the heir of an estate in Scotland, who has been missing, and whom his uncle, the Earl of Goberdeen, vainly seeks in Paris. This youth has a twin sister, and through the machinations of one Dupont, a detective, she is induced to don boy's clothing, impersonate her brother and attempt to save his inheritance. Eventually the deception is discovered, but the brother turns up in time to save the situation. The scenes of the play move from a famous cafe to the Scotch highlands.

The original production will be seen here. The cast is headed by Otis Harlan, one of America's best known and best liked comedians, who will be seen in the role of the comical French detective, and a chorus of forty pretty and vivacious young girls and good-looking boys.

OPERA "ROBIN HOOD."

The nation's funniest and most tuneful light opera, "'Robin Hood," will be presented here at the Atlanta Friday and Saturday, with a Saturday matinee, by the de Koven Opera company, under the direction of Daniel V. Arthur.

This is the organization formed to revive the glories of standard English opera, and which met with immediate success at the New Amsterdam theater last season. This year it is making a tour of the larger cities, and carries an orchestra, a large and tuneful chorus and several grand opera singes among the principals.

Foremost of these is Heloise de Pasthory, prima donna soprano, Royal opera, Budapest, and she is assisted by Misha Ferenzo, of the Imperial opera, St. Petersburg; George Frothingham, of the original Bostonians; Sara Maxon, Helena Morrill, Phil Branson, Tillie Salinger, Jerome Daley, Joseph Parsons, Sid Braham and others.

The chorus is a large and tuneful one, and a special orchestra, under the direction of Joseph Sainton, is a feature of the organization.

The production, which requires two cars, is the one used at the New Amsterdam theater last season.

ZERO TROUBLES.

"The Count of Luxembourg," Franz Lehar's musical romance, adapted for the American stage by Glen MacDonough, is now in the far west. Since the opening of the tour weather conditions varying from the freezing point to over 100 degrees above zero have been experienced and this has been the subject of some remarks by Frank Moulan, who plays the part of the Grand Duke.

"The business of being funny," he said, "is absolutely weather-proof. The comedian must be prepared to be funny in furs when the mercury threatens to go up through the roof of the thermometer and just as funny in a bathing suit when the icy blasts of winter are cavorting about. It's all a part of the game."

Show Talk

Last season "The Garden of Allah," the first of the big Century Theater spectacles to go on tour, visited sixteen cities and broke all records for box office receipts in nine of them. This season another Century theater spectacle, "Joseph and His Brethren," has taken to the road, and, opening its season at Syracuse, took up its companion piece's playful habit of record breaking and drew more money to the box office than has ever before passed through the ticket window during any engagement of any attraction in any theater in Syracuse.

Thirty real Arabs appear in the production of "The Garden of Allah." Up to this year these Arabs were content to play what are generally known as "thinking parts." All the Arab parts with the English lines to speak were given to American actors. This year, however, some of the Arabs, who have spent two full years in this country and in this play, expressed a desire to show what they could do with real parts. As a result they were given a trial at rehearsals, and some of them did so well that the names of Dekram Kremple, Selim Ayobb and Keill Ayobb now appear on the program opposite characters of some importance.

This is George Arliss' fourth season in Louis N. Parker's "Disraeli." This play has a renewed interest this year in the approaching completion of the Panama canal. The play, it will be remembered, deals with the crowning incident of the career of the famous British statesman, his winning of the control of the Suez canal for England. In his achievement of this purpose he was hindered by the clever intrigue of spies in the employ of Russia, but, by brilliant checkmating, accomplishes his end—a good omen for those in charge of the American interests in the isthmus.

The engagement of Alice O'Day, who last season played the mother in "Hindle Wakes," for the part of Mrs. de Courcy practically completes the cast of principals to appear in the American production of the London comedy success, "General John Regan." The other important members of the cast are Arnold Daly, Harry Harwood, Frederick Burton, Oliver Doud Byron and W. G. Fay and Marie O'Neill, the last two former leading members of the famous Irish Players company at the Abbey theater, Dublin.

One of the most interesting of the plays to be staged by Cyril Maude during his forthcoming American tour is a new version of Goldsmith's "The Vicar of Wakefield," written by Louis N. Parker, author of "Joseph and His Brethren," "Disraeli" and "Pomander Walk."

The plans of Paderewski, who is due here October 7, to begin a tour under the management of C. A. Ellis, call for between eighty and ninety concerts, and he will be in America until the latter part of April. His season begins in Trenton, October 13, to be followed by a concert in Jersey City on October 14. His first appearance in New York will be in Aeolian hall, Saturday afternoon, October 18. Then he will make a short trip westward, playing in Detroit, Ann Arbor, Toronto, Erie and Buffalo. Returning to the east he will give a series of recitals in the principal cities, and on the first of January he leaves for the west and the Pacific coast, where he will be for approximately two months. Reports have it that Mr. Paderewski has not been in so good health for years.

Before the stage manager had time to rebuke the actress for being late to rehearsal, she began breathlessly:

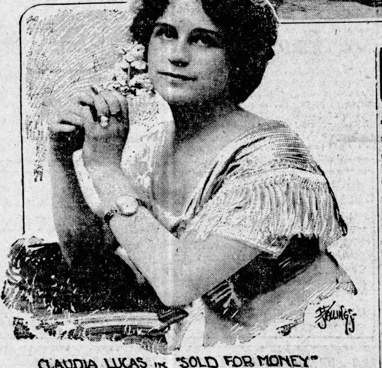
"Burglars entered our flat last night and broke into the ice box. They ate a roast chicken and I lost my diamonds. I always put my diamonds in the ice box."

"Are you sure they are gone?" gasped the press agent hoarsely.

"Very," replied the actress. "When the burglars went away they left the door of the ice box open, and you know how they melt."

"It goes again," said the stage manager, relaxing a frown.

From an opening on the road, Fanny Ward has come into town with "Madame President," and there are indications that she will remain at the Garrick theater for a longer period than she has ever before lingered in this metropolis.



CLAUDIA LUCAS IN "SOLD FOR MONEY" AT THE LYRIC

EDNA GOODRICH WRITES OF COLLEGE GIRLS AND STAGE

BY EDNA GOODRICH.

Not in any season that I know of has there been apparent a greater degree of seriousness on the part of young women entering the theatrical profession than is to be met with on every hand this year. Naturally, a production of the magnitude of "Evangeline" demands the services of a large number of players, and this means, in turn, a large number of applications for parts. As a result, I have had from many young women personal requests for such assistance as I might be able to render them in the way of obtaining a hearing with the Hopkins' management, under whose direction the Longfellow poem is being produced in dramatic form.

It is difficult for some of these young and ambitious aspirants to understand that the man or woman playing a leading role in such an attroction has, after all, precious little to do with the selection of the cast. They imagine that I can, with little effort, obtain the coveted hearing. I have done what I could in many instances, to be sure, and very gladly, but not always with success. However, the requests have brought me into touch with the young women especially who have come from other cities and other towns to New York to prepare themselves for careers on the stage.

In past seasons I have seen these young candidates from more than one angle. It was not so long ago that I was one myself. But this season I am especially impressed by the character of the girls who are seeking a beginning on the stage. They are girls of refinement and education who have come from colleges throughout the country. They are serious minded, and they are possessed of a very fair estimate of what the stage demands of them. They are bent on studying, working, bringing intelligence to bear and, for the most part, eschewing the foolish and frivolous things that too often are associated in the public mind with a career behind the footlights.

The stage needs this sort, and it will find room for them. Year by year the standard has increased, has been bettered, and playwrights, producers and playgoers have all been benefited thereby. Nowadays it requires intelligence of an uncommon kind to play some of the subtle roles that playwrights create, and producers and public alike realize this. Then, too, I don't believe any player ever reached the pinnacle of his career until he had, in some manner, equipped himself with a liberal education. The man or woman on the stage who does not study, who declines to increase the store of information day by day, who stands still, stagnant mentally, stands still professionally. And standing still at all means going backward.

It is a most promising sign of the times, it seems to me, to see these young girls turning seriously to the stage. They come with high ideals and good mental equipment; they come with poise, a deft sureness, a command of self, a discipline in the matter of study that has been gained in schools and colleges. They will do an immense amount of good, that is sure. And they are welcome, and it is a pleasure to encourage them and to assist them.

A WRITER FROM THE RANCH.

Eleanor Gates, whose play of fact and fancy, "The Poor Little Rich Girl," came into New York City recently, finds pleasure in drawing upon some of her early girlhood experiences for much of the material that she makes use of her plays. The new product from her pen, still unnamed, which will be produced shortly, reflects, it is said, more than one personal experience.

Miss Gates is a writer from the west. She was raised on a ranch in Dakota, where she learned to love the outdoor life. Subsequently, eager to be in the center of things that are moving apidly, Miss Gates made her way to Oakland, Cal., where she found employment on an Oakland newspaper. It was here during her prentice days as a newspaper writer that she encountered many of the incidents which have served her in recent years as plots for both stories and plays.

Stage Letter

By Norman

NEW YORK.—Half-close your eyes and you're all at sea.

A dozen white-sailed yachts are skimming back and forth, in and out, cutting across one another's bows in a fashion that seems to promise disaster at any instant.

But there are no collisions and no upsets. The spread of snowy canvas (only it happens to be silk) is upheld by human masts that dart about the Hippodrome stage in the steps of one of the most unique and fascinating ballet novelties ever devised.

There are other wonderful things in the new Hippodrome spectacle, "America." The Panama canal scene is, perhaps, the greatest triumph of stagecraft. A most realistic representation of a section of the great waterway extends across the enormous stage, and through it there passes majestically a huge steamship.

A fire scene, too, is particularly well done. An East Side tenement burns, and there are thrilling rescues by firemen who slide down ropes from the fourth story with their unconscious burdens, leap from the roof into nets held below, and other startling performances.

More daring, however, than any of the feats in the fire spectacle is the performance of four men who ride down a mountain road in an automobile which strikes a bump at a sharp turn, makes a half somersault and lands, bottom upward, in a lake. The men leap clear of the car just as it strikes the hummock, which overturns it, and land in the water on either side of the overturned machine.

A moment's wrong timing of the jump or a miscalculation of direction would be bad business for any one of the quartet who do the nightly splash.

ALICE JOYCE NEVER WAS KISSED---ON THE STAGE

Since kissing has become a vital issue of the day, especially among Atlanta folk, the views of beautiful Alice Joyce, called by some the loveliest camera player in the world, on the subject are of some interest.

Miss Joyce has pretty strong ideas of her own about the making of pictures. For instance, she does not believe in "stage kisses." "I think those long kisses to be seen so often in the pictures are positively repulsive," she said. "A little, slight one—well, that might be tolerated. However, during all my screen experience I have never been kissed—"

Then Miss Joyce laughed and added: "in the pictures."

"Robin Hood" Tenor Found Through Jail

Misha Ferenzo, the handsome young tenor who will sing the ttile role in "Robin Hood" at the Atlanta on Friday and Saturday of next week, was born in Russia and educated there and in Berlin, and subsequently studied piano and singing in Italy.

Ferenzo discovered his voice through an incident that landed him in jail. While a student in Berlin, he joined a party of fellow Russians one night who were singing and carousing. Ferenzo's voice, much to their surprise, rang out above all the others and they placed him on a table and commanded him to sing their Russian folk song, "Volga." While he was roaring at the top of his voice the police entered, thinking that it was a Nihilist uprising, and dragged the future rival of Caruso off to jail.

Almost everything is "verboten" in Germany, but Ferenzo escaped with a reprimand and was then induced by his comrades to take up the cultivation of his voice.

He graduated at the Royal Conservatory in Berlin, and then went to Milan to perfect himself. He has the advantage of the pure Italian method and the study strength of his fatherland and his voice is of wonderful quality and untiring strength.

Joe Jefferson and Company, With Old Soldier Fiddlers, at Forsyth—Cecil Spooner Play at Lyric—Bijou Presents "Zeke," the Country Boy," Kinemacolor at the Grand

Joseph Jefferson and his company will be the headliners of the program of Keith vaudeville features that will attract attention at the Forsyth all of this week.

The appearance of Joseph Jefferson is more evidence of the fact that the management is faithfully living to its promise to give the people of Atlanta absolutely the best quality of real vaudeville. Mr. Jefferson, with the support of his company, will present "Poor Old Jim," a comedy founded on the experience of a club man. The song of the famous old "Rip Van Winkle" will not appear in old man character, but assumes the role of a young man about town who is more fond of a good time than of the comforts of home. His friends try to get him in the right road, and how they succeed is the story that has been applauded in the very best vaudeville theaters since the opening of the season. Young Joe Jefferson is an actor of rare ability. He has fallen heir to the great comedy ability of his great father, and with the modern finish is conceded to be among the cleverest of the new school of entertainers.

Colonel John A. Pattee and his old soldier fiddlers will be another of the features, introducing what is declared to be the greatest novelty in modern vaudeville. The company appeared at the Forsyth two years ago and proved to be one of the star attractions of the season. The quintet of war veterans play and sing the tunes that were popular around the camp fires when there was trouble between the states.

Still another feature will be the first appearance here of beautiful May Wirth, the bareback rider who was a star feature with the Ringling shows. Miss Wirth is a young lady of remarkable talent and charming personality. She was not permitted to ride in New York until last season, because of her youth, but so soon as she was granted permission, she became a star in the vaudeville theaters, and is now on her first tour of the Keith circuit.

There are hundreds of vaudeville patrons who have not forgotten the visit of Lola Merrill and Frank Otto to the Orpheum several years ago. Miss Merrill is a pretty girl and as graceful as she is pretty and there are few comedians superior to gifted Frank Otto.

Van and Schenk, "the pennant winning battery in the song league," will offer all new songs and register along with the best hits on the bill and others who will contribute to the success of the week will be Dale and Boyle, "The Belle and the Beaux," and Bob and Tip in a genuine novelty.

"Sold For Money," Is Play at the Lyric.

Regarding "Sold for Money," which is to be the attraction at the Lyric theater, opening here for a week's engagement Monday, a leading dramatic critic has this to say:

"'Sold for Money,' a four-act American drama, written by Cecil Spooner, is the most successful creation of this type of modern play yet produced. In the evolution of its plot, which is charmingly interesting, it deals with a phase of life of interest to everyone; a phase that is on the whole a factor of vast importance to all of the present generation. It is original in its design and proved a revelation in modern play writing, and its immediate and unprecedented bound into wide popularity stamps it with the seal of unequalled success.

"It awakes the beholder to the study of a picture of daily life around him, and shows many forms and moods with finely drawn emotion. The author has constructed a creation born to live; something novel and picturesque, and which will impress itself indelibly on the world of dramatic art. The great class of the outer world has before it a convincing representation of existence as it really is. It is a picture taken from life and is so accurately presented that the spectators live in reality, forgetting the acting pictures. Its moral appeals, its actors convince, its construction pleases and the climaxes thrill."

Eddie Black Featured This Week at the Bijou.

What promises to be the biggest hit of the Bijou season will be presented the coming week in the four-act comedy drama entitled "Zeke the Country Boy." The play is a rural comedy drama, featuring the popular comedian, Eddie Black, in the star part of Zeke. At times the action is intensely dramatic, and the scene where the heroine is bound and gagged and thrown on the pile drivers to be killed is one of the most sensational that has been given the stage in years.

Edgar L. Darrell, a new acquisition of the company, who makes his first appearance before a Bijou audience Monday afternoon, will play the part of William Hartley; Jewell Kelley will be seen in the role of Jim Saunders, foreman at the mill; E. H. McDonough will play the part of old Lucas; Earl Higley will be seen as Jim Blake, fellow conspirator with Jim Saunders. Eddie Black will delight his many friends in another of his country boy parts as Zeke, and can always be depended upon to give a splendid interpretation of the role. The opposite part of Cinders will be played by Rose Morris.

REAL INDIANS IN "EVANGELINE."

When Gustav von Seyffertitz arrives at the stage door of the Park theater in New York to continue his rehearsals of the Hopkins production of Longfellow's "Evangeline" he will find himself confronted by eighteen Indians, who, according to the contract signed between their manager, F. E. Moore, and Arthur Hopkins, are scheduled to report for rehearsal. The Indians appear in but one of the various scenes of the dramatic version of the poem, but the scene in which they are to appear, though brief, would be incomplete without them. The Indians—nine men, six women and three children—come from the Canadian reservations, and on their arrival will see New York for the first time. It was necessary to obtain northern Indians rather than western Indians for the production because of the very marked difference between the latter and their western cousins—a difference readily observable in facial features, in general bearing and in costuming.

For several years William Collier has been growing thicker and his plays thinner. The limit seems to have been reached in "Who's Who," which Richard Harding Davis wrote for Collier. There's mighty little to it except the same old Collier. Goodness knows he's always worth while, but the play Davis has given him makes him work hard to give his auditors their money's worth.

Atlanta's Famous Dinners

Also some of the Famous Diners

CARUSO'S dinner, selected from eight pounds of spaghetti and four pounds of cheese, is of undoubted fame. He cooked it himself upon his last visit to Atlanta, and ate three pounds of the spaghetti.

But the dinner served a year before to Geraldine Farrar is of less artistic but of more superficial interest. It is distinguished among the city's dinners.

The menu was:

Clams.
Celery and olives.
Cream Princesse.
Broiled pompano, maitre d'hotel.
Potatoes La Boheme.
Larded tenderloin of beef, Tosca.
Sweetbreads, saute, and fresh mushrooms.
Royal squab. Salad Farrar.
Ice cream Chambord.
Petits fours. Cafe noire.

This dinner is remembered chiefly for its simplicity. The chef at the Georgian Terrace, by whom it was chosen, says with emotion, that it was not unlike the most exquisite passages of La Boheme, in which Miss Farrar sang. He endeavored to reproduce in pompano and larded tenderloin the harmonies which prevail in the opera.

DINNER STRENUOUS.

Upon another occasion he expressed strenuosity in a dinner served to Theodore Roosevelt. His distinguished menu began with onion soup and continued as follows:

Royal extra sirloin steak, with marrow.
Boiled Irish potatoes.
Hearts of lettuce salad.
English Stilton cheese.
Toasted crackers.
Turkish coffee.
Apollinaris.

Mr. Roosevelt's only suggestion had been that chicken should have no place in the dinner. It had been served to him in varying southern styles throughout a long trip, and his appetite had begun to weary of it. But the chef was not content with a pleasing menu; he insisted upon one which should be characteristic. He meant that even the toasted crackers should have a strenuous quality above other crackers and he succeeds in his intention.

Less fortunate at the time of President Wilson's visit, was the chef of the Piedmont. Mr. Wilson, who spoke here previous to his election, was guest of the hotel only for breakfast and, of course, breakfast never admits of such "expression" as dinner. Yet, it was chosen with a simplicity that was characteristic—fruit, eggs, bacon, coffee.

Upon a visit which Mr. Taft had made while he was president, Edward R. J. Fischel, steward of the Piedmont, prepared the following breakfast menu, which is notable:

Eggs au bourre noir.
Broiled pompano with lemon butter.
Spring lamb chops with Virginia ham.
Bermuda potatoes baked.
Old-fashioned buckwheat cakes with Georgia cane syrup.
Vienna brioches, French rolls.
Southern corn bread.
Coffee.

Apollinaris was served by special request of the president.

Following are recipes for each of the dishes served at this breakfast:

Eggs au Beurre Noir—Take an earthen au gratin dish, grease inside with little butter, drop two eggs in nicely so they won't break; put into hot oven until they are well set, take about three ounces of butter, put in frying pan over a hot fire until it almost boils, take half lemon and squeeze juice into butter until it sizzles—then pour over the eggs and serve.

Broiled Pompano with Lemon Butter—Take two pompanos about one and a half pounds each, split open, roll into two teaspoons of good olive oil on a platter, then season well with salt and paprika and arrange on broiler and broil five minutes on each side and put on hot platter and pour over it lemon butter to be prepared as follows: Melt four ounces of butter, a little salt, white pepper, a sprig of chopped parsley, all well mixed together and put on top of fish and serve.

President Woodrow Wilson

Spring Lamb Chops with Virginia Ham—Take eight ribs lamb chops, flatten out a little, season well on both sides with salt and white pepper, arrange nicely on broiler and turn over three to four times; take four slices of very thin cut Virginia ham and put on broiler without seasoning and cook until done. Place on platter arranging one chop, a piece of ham and one chop alternating and decorate with watercress.

Old-fashioned Buckwheat Cakes—Add to one pound of buckwheat flour one ounce of baking powder and a half teaspoonful of baking soda, mix with milk and water to a soft batter; add half cup of molasses, three ounces of melted butter, half ounce of salt and pour on hot griddle and bake as usual.

Vienna Brioches—Take one pint of milk, two ounces yeast, one ounce sugar, pinch of salt, eight ounces butter and four eggs; make a light sponge with milk and yeast; when ready add the beaten eggs, sugar and salt, add the flour and last, the butter. Make a medium dough, let come up and work over and set in a cool place for one hour to get firm; then form into different shapes, either twist rolls, etc. Give good prove and bake in evenly heated oven to a nice brown.

COLONEL WATTERSON'S DINNER.

But a discussion of breakfast is a digression. The famous dinners are sufficient in themselves. Of much interest is that served at the Piedmont to Colonel Henry Watterson.

It is considered such a fortunate selection of dishes that it has been copyrighted, and is referred to by stewards and chefs as masterly.

The menu follows:

Caviar Canape
Celery Ripe Olives Radishes
Clear Green Zurtle Madeira
Planked Pompano Piedemont Cucumbers
Calves' Sweetbread under glass
Sorbet Parfait d'Amour
Roast Pheasant with Chestnut Dressing
Cauliflower Holandaise
Bermuda Potatoes Vissolees
Aligator Pear Salad
Bavaroise en Bellevue
Nesselrode Pudding
Corgowzola Cheese Cafe

Geraldine Farrar

Enrico Caruso

Recipes for each of these dishes follow:

Planked Pompano a la Piedmont—Take two pompano about two pounds each, neatly trim and clean, split in half, remove the bone, season well with salt, pepper and a little paprika. Oil the oak plank, lay the fish on the plank and pour a little melted butter all over the fish, set in hot oven and bake for twelve minutes, make a brioche, potato preparation, put it in pastry bag or make a bag from strong paper and decorate the edge of the board—then peel, wash and slice ten fresh mushrooms, one green pepper, four eschallots and lightly brown these articles in frying pan with a teaspoon full of olive oil for four minutes, then place these on top of the fish; prepare four peeled raw tomàtoes, slice and place around the fish, sprinkle over with fine chopped parsley a little chopped chives (cipulette) a teaspoonful of fresh bread crumbs and the juice of half lemon; set in stove and let bake about twelve minutes, remove from oven and decorate with sliced cucumbers, slices of lemon and pour some pimentos butter over the fish.

Calves Sweetbreads Under Glass—Clean and trim two pairs of sweetbreads, soak them for three hours in cold water, changing the water three times, remove from water and drain well, then boil in salted water for five minutes and drain again and place in saucepan with a little melted butter, add twelve fresh mushrooms peeled and well cleaned and let cook for ten minutes, then add one teaspoon of sherry and one of white wine, one quart of cream and cook for five minutes more. Take four pieces of toast about three inches in diameter, place these in four separate au gratin dishes, put one sweetbread on top of each, three mushrooms on top of the sweetbreads; reduce the cream for about three minutes, add a little butter (fresh if possible), season to taste and pour over each sweetbread, then cover each dish with a glass bell and let these cook in slack oven for fifteen minutes more.

Serbet Parfait d'Amour—Prepare one quart of water, twelve ounces sugar and six lemons; make sugar and water into a syrup, let infuse with the grated rind of six lemons, add the juice of the lemons and strain. Beat the white of two eggs and pour in to syrup while warm adding a teaspoon of vanilla flavoring extract and freeze, add while freezing a wineglass of orange juice and half wineglass of strawberry juice and, just before serving pour into it half wineglass of rum and a tablespoon of kirshwasser; serve in sherbet glasses.

Roast Pheasant with Chestnut Dressing—Cut off the head, tail and wings and preserve carefully for final decoration of the bird after it is cooked. Pick two pheasants carefully, singe and draw and tie for roasting and cover breast with piece of salt pork. Place in sauce pan and moisten with a pint of chicken stock, cook in slow oven for forty-

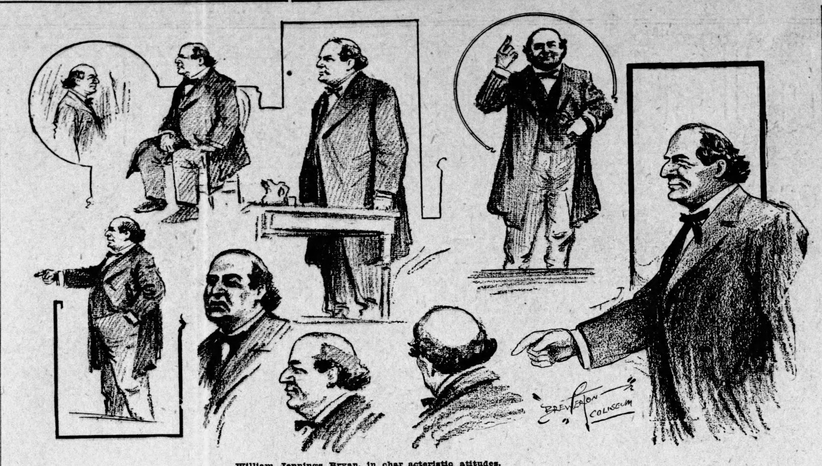
MISSIONS

By William Jennings Bryan

(Copyright, 1913, by William J. Bryan.)



William Jennings Bryan, in char acteristic atitudes.

This Is the Second Lecture of the Supplemental Series of William J. Bryan, Secretary of State, in which he proclaims his opinions on a subject which is of much interest to a large number of persons who read the Sunday newspapers.

By William Jennings Bryan.

HAVING been a church member from the age of 14, and having taken an interest in church work, I had contributed to foreign missions as to other branches of Christian work, and had heard numerous addresses by missionaries respecting the work done in the foreign field. In planning a trip through Asia I had intended to visit a mission station for the purpose of informing myself as to the environment of the missionary, and as to the details of his work; circumstances, however, very much enlarged my opportunities for observation, and I feel that I am only performing a duty when I endeavor to convey to your minds the impression made upon my mind by what I saw in the Orient. My experience and observation suggests answers to the objections which I had heard to missionary work in foreign lands, and it may be worth while to consider some of these objections.

First, it is argued that "we need the money at home" and cannot afford to send it abroad. I am satisfied that this objection is not sound. The ministers will bear me out in the assertion that money contributed to foreign missions is not subtracted from money available for home missions. The foreign missionary work is, as a rule, supported by those who are interested in home missions. The man who excuses himself from contributing to foreign missions on the ground that he wants to keep his money for home missions, generally finds some excuse for withholding his money even from home missions. The enthusiasm aroused by work in other lands so enlarges the Christian sympathies that the home missionary work is better supported than it would be if foreign missionary stations were abandoned.

Akin to the first objection is the second, "that we ought to correct the evils at home before we attempt to give instruction abroad." No one will deny that we have a great deal to do at home, but when shall we begin to help others if we must be perfect ourselves before we attempt to extend aid? If an individual refuses to give advice to others, or to lend assistance in the reformation of others until he is himself perfect, he will never render any service to others, for none of us are perfect. Our nation will in like manner, postpone forever the rendering of service to other nations if it waits until there is nothing more to be done at home.

No matter how much progress we make, there will always be room for improvement; the higher we rise, the larger the area of our vision and the more we see that needs to be done. If we are ever going to be helpful, we must be helpful while we are still imperfect. The command is not, "Let him that is perfect help the imperfect,' but rather, "Let him that is strong help the weak." Every effort that we put forth to help others strengthens us. I remember hearing, in my youth, the story of two travelers in the mountains. One was overcome by cold and sank down discouraged; the other, instead of leaving him to perish, stayed, and by rubbing him, sought to prolong his life. The effort kept both alive until help came. And so I am satisfied that the work done in foreign field strengthens us for work done at home, and that the evidence which the missionaries bring us of the triumphant march of Christianity inspires us to greater activity, both at home and abroad.

Some complain that the missionaries make but few conversions. It is a matter of regret that progress is not more rapid, and yet that is no reason why we should give up the task. The progress of Christianity in the United States is not as rapid as we would like to have it. More than half of the adult males of the United States do not attend any church, and that, too, in a land where we see on every hand evidences of the advantages which Christianity has brought to our country. If here, where the environment tends to bring people into the church, so many remain outside, we must not be surprised if the spread of our religion is even more slow among the heathen where it is often necessary for one to leave home and friends and to submit to social and business ostracism to become a follower of Christ.

But in spite of all the opposition met by the missionaries Christianity is spreading. The growth of Christianity from its beginning on the banks of the Jordan until today, when its converts are baptized in all rivers of the earth, is so graphically described by Rev. Charles Edward Jefferson, of New York, in his book entitled, "Things Fundamental," that I take the liberty of quoting him:

"Christianity in history! There is a fact—face it. According to the New Testatment, Jesus walked along the shores of a little sea known as the Sea of Galilee. And there He called Peter and Andrew and James and John and several others to be His followers, and they left all and followed Him. After they followed Him they revered Him, and later on adored and worshipped Him. He left them on their faces, each man saying, "My Lord and my God!" All that is in the New Testament.

• • •

"But put the New Testament away. Time passes; history widens; an unseen Presence walks up and down the shores of a larger sea—the sea called the Mediterranean—and this unseen Presence calls men to follow him. Tertullian, Augustine, Anselm, Aquinas, Francis of Assisi, Thomas a Kempis, Savonarola, John Huss, Martin Luther, Philip Melanchton, Ulrich Zwingli, John Calvin—another twelve—and these all followed Him and cast themselves at His feet, saying, in the words of the earlier twelve, 'My Lord and my God!'

"Time passes; history advances; humanity lives its life around the circle of a larger sea—the Atlantic ocean. An unseen Presence walks up and down the shores calling men to follow Him. He calls John Knox, John Wesley, George Whitefield, Charles Spurgeon, Henry Parry Liddon, Joseph Parker, Jonathan Edwards, Horace Bushnell, Henry Ward Beecher, Richard Saltus Storrs, Phillips Brooks, Dwight L. Moody—another twelve—and these leave all and follow Him. We find them on their face, each one saying, 'My Lord and my God!'

"Time passes; history is widening; humanity is building its civilization round a wider sea—we call it the Pacific ocean. An unknown Presence moves up and down the shores calling men to follow Him, and they are doing it. Another company of twelve is forming. And what took place in Palestine nineteen centuries ago is taking place again in our own day and under our own eyes."

A fourth objection is advanced by a few, namely, that our missionaries may by their mistakes get us into trouble with other nations. Of course, people are liable to make mistakes, whether they live abroad or at home. We all make mistakes, the non-Christian as well as the Christian, the layman as well as the preacher, and a minister may make mistakes in Asia as well as in the United States, but I am convinced that the good that the missionaries do far outweighs any harm that can come from their mistakes. They make us more friends than enemies. The Americans who go into foreign lands to make money are much more apt to involve us in diplomatic controversies than the missionaries who devote themselves to the uplifting of the people among whom they go.

The last objection to which I shall refer is one that is now made with less frequency than formerly, namely, that God is too merciful to punish the heathen if they die without an opportunity to hear the Gospel and that, therefore, it is not necessary to carry the Gospel to them. Some have even carried this argument to the point of asserting that if the heathens are free from guilt until they have a chance to reject the Gospel, we endanger them when we put them in a position where they may reject it.

• • •

I am not going to attempt to set limits to the mercy of the Almighty or to interpret His plans respecting the heathen in the next world, but I have seen the heathen in this life, and I believe that we owe it to them, as a religious duty, to carry to them the Christian conception of life that they may have the benefit of it upon earth, no matter what the future may have for them. If Christ's conception of life is worthy to be adopted by us, it is worthy to be communicated to people everywhere—and this service the missionaries are rendering.

I found several departments of work fully organized. The missionaries are building churches and increasing the number of congregations; I attended church at several places and was impressed with the earnestness of the native Christians. Japan, it seems to me, furnishes a great field for missionary work and Korea is scarcely second to it. In China the native Christians showed, during the Boxer trouble, a heroism which equalled that displayed by the early Christians.

The medical missionaries are increasing in number and they are doing a very important work. The aid which they render is of a kind that challenges attention, and when natives know that the medical missionary is actuated by love rather than by a desire for gain, they inquire into the source of his love and the reason for its manifestation.

• • •

The American college is also a potent influence for good. These schools spring up about the missionary stations and are constantly growing in attendance and in influence. I followed an unbroken chain of them for some six thousand miles from the Pacific to the Mediterranean; I looked into the faces of hundreds, yes thousands, of boys and girls taught by Americans or by teachers paid with American money, and I rejoiced that, if our country could not boast that the sun never sets upon its possessions, it has a prouder boast, namely, that the sun never sets upon American philanthropy. Before the sun goes down on one center of civilization established by American money, it rises upon another, and the boundaries of these centers of civilization are constantly enlarging; after a while the boundaries will meet and when the Orient is redeemed, America will deserve a large share of credit. One cannot measure the far-reaching good that these schools are doing. When we calculate the impress that a life can make upon a nation, and then remember that thousands are instructed in these schools and go out from them to touch the lives and hearts of the people of the Orient, who will attempt to estimate the total good done? Infinite opportunities open before each teacher and each one who contributes to the work has a part in the result.

• • •

I found that the Young Men's Christian association and the Young Women's Christian association have already gained a foothold in Asia. At Kagashima, Japan, I attended a meeting held under the auspices of the Young Women's Christian association, and at a number of places I was the guest of the Young Men's Christian association. At the close of a Young Men's Christian association meeting in Allahabad, India, an Indian arose and asked me to assure the people of the United States that Christian ideals have made a deeper impression than the church membership in India would indicate. He expressed appreciation of the missionaries and the teachers who had been sent to them, and complained only that the number was so small compared with the great population of India.

It may not be out of place briefly to call attention to the religions which our missionaries have to meet. If I had derived no other benefit from the trip I would consider the time well spent because of the acquaintance that it gave me with the religions and philosophies of the East.

If a tree is to be known by its truths, surely the fruits of Christianity justify its followers in claiming for it a vast superiority over other religions, whether we compare the doctrines taught or the general effect produced by the religions.

• • •

Take Mohammedanism for instance. It has several merits. First, it rests upon a belief in one God—the Mohammedan has as great faith in Jehovah as the Christian has. Second, it teaches prayer. The Mohammedan is as careful to observe the hour of prayer as is the Christian, if not more so. Five times a day he kneels, his face toward the Mecca, and supplicates his Creator. No matter where he is, the prayer is on his lips. If he is traveling across the desert, he dismounts from his camel and spreads his blanket upon the sand. There is something to respect in a religion that compels man to commune with his heavenly Father.

But the Mohammedan religion degrades woman. In the mosque there is a place for men to kneel, but if the women enter at all they visit only the gallery, and there they are screened from the sight of men while they look down upon the worshippers. At the age of twelve the girl is taken from the companionship of others, and after that she cannot go unveiled in the presence of men, except those of her own family. Among the followers of the Prophet society loses the inspiration of woman's presence and woman loses the advantages of social intercourse. Christianity, on the other hand, recognizes the woman's rightful place is by the side of the man; Christianity regards man and woman as equal cotenants of the home and as joint partners in the responsibilities and joys of life.

Mohammedanism is propagated by force, while Christianity rests upon love and is spread by moral suasion. Dr. Parkhurst once illustrated the difference between force and love by using a hammer to represent force. With it a chunk of ice could be broken into a thousand pieces, but each piece would still be ice. Love he likened to a ray of sunshine falling upon the ice; it would act slowly but surely, and in a little while there would be no more ice. Love is the most potent influence in the world; it is the weapon for which there is no shield, and Christanity is moving with irresistible force because love is the principle which underlies it.

Buddhism is an agnostic religion. One of the Buddhist papers published in Burma urged the sending of delegates to an international agnostic congress. A Buddhist monk, in enumerating the advantages of Buddhism, told me that one did not have to believe anything to be a Buddhist. It is a reformation of Hinduism. Buddha taught that one could "escape from the wheel"—from the endless round of existence, by absorption into the spirit of the universe. Arnold has described it as "the dewdrop melting into the sea." To the Buddhist, life is a calamity from which escape is to be sought in the loss of individuality; Christianity regards life as an opportunity to be crowned at its close with still higher existence.

• • •

The Buddhist believes that if one has done evil through an indefinite number of lives, he can turn over a new leaf and finally, through an indefinite number of existences, do enough good to overcome the evil; the Christian believes that through repentance past sins can be blotted out, and the new life commenced at once. No wonder that a Japanese in contrasting Buddhism with Christianity said that the former looked down while the latter looked up.

• • •

I was more disappointed in Confucianism than in either Mohammedanism or Buddhism, for I had been led to form a higher opinion of the philosophy of the Chinese sage. I had not read much that Confucius had said, although I had read tributes to his wisdom, but the more I read of his utterances, the more my admiration for him diminished. I have wondered whether some have not magnified his teachings in order to find in them justification for the rejection of the teachings of the Nazarene. The golden rule of Confucius reads "Do not unto others as you would not have others do unto you." The golden rule of Christ is, "Do unto others as you would have others do unto you." There is a wide difference between the two; one is negative and the other positive; one enjoins a life of negative harmlessness, while the other commands a life of positive helpfulness. You could stand by a stream and watch a neighbor fall in and drown, and if you did not push him in you need not pull him out; and yet you would not violate the negative form of the rule, but you would violate the positive form of the rule.

The Chinaman, following the doctrine of Confucius, does not regard it as a duty to help others, but the streams of Christian benevolence girdle the globe.

• • •

A follower of Confucius asked him if there was any one word that would cover all the relations of society, and he answered, "Is not reciprocity such a word?" Reciprocity? That is a balancing of benefits; if a person does you a favor, do him a favor, and do him about as much of a favor as he does you—keep even. It is the calculating selfishness upon which the materialist would build a morality. According to the philosophy of Confucius, we should measure our service to others by the service that others have rendered us; but Christ teaches us to measure our service, not by the service that has been rendered, or by the service that may be rendered, or by the service than can be rendered, but by the need of those unto whom we minister. Reciprocity? That is not sufficient. The Christian nations of the world spend hundreds of millions a year to make life more pleasant for the helpless and unfortunate who cannot hope to repay a single dollar of the money spent upon them.

• • •

Another follower of Confucius asked him what he thought of the doctrine that evil should be rewarded with good, and he replied: "If you reward evil with good, with what will you reward good?" And he announced his rule, "Reward evil with justice and reward good with good." Reward evil with justice? How can one tell what justice is if his heart is full of hatred and he is waiting for an opportunity for revenge? Only when love takes the place of hatred—only when one understands his relation to God, and understanding his relation to God, learns of his kinship with his brother—can he know what justice is or the measure thereof. If I were called upon to name the one thing which more than any other distinguishes the Christian religion from all other religions and moral codes, I would name forgiveness—Christ taught forgiveness, and, therefore, he could command his followers to love their enemies and to return good for evil.

• • •

The Chinese boast that they live up to the ideals of Confucius, but those ideals could be embodied in the life of a nation without lifting the nation to a high plane, and I believe that the philosophy of Confucius is largely responsible for the fact that China has stood still for twenty centuries. The people easily overtook the ideals of Confucius, and when a man overtakes his ideals his progress stops. It is the glory of the Christian ideal that while it is within sight of the weakest and the lowliest, it is yet so high that it keeps the best and noblest with their faces turned ever upward; and Christian civilization is the greatest that the world has ever known because it rests upon a conception of life that makes life an unending struggle upward, with no limit to human advancement or development.

• • •

If religions are to be measured by the results recorded in history, behold the greatness of Christianity! Except where they have borrowed from the Christian nations the followers of Mohammed, the followers of Buddha and the followers of Confucius are practically where they were fifteen hundred or two thousand years ago, while Christianity took the races of Europe when they were called barbarians and in ten centuries has enabled them to reach a civilization surpassing all the civilizations of the past.

• • •

How shall we show our gratitude for the blessings that Christianity has brought to us? We are largely indebted to it for the benefits which flow from universal education; who will measure its advantages to our nation? Christianity has strengthened the doctrine of self government by teaching the claims of brotherhood; will estimate the benefit which this nation has derived from the belief that all men are created equal. Christianity has given us a system of religion which leads us to the worship of a Creator; it has taught us a sense of responsibility to a personal God, and it has set before us a measure of greatness in which he is to be the chiefest among us who is the servant of all.

• • •

What is it worth to us and to our children to be permitted to enjoy the triple blessings of universal education, free government and the Christian religion? We cannot repay the debt to those who gave us these things; they are dead. These blessings have come through generations of toil and sacrifice. We must make repayment to those about us and to those who come after us. We can make part payment by transmitting these institutions to posterity, not only unimpaired but improved; but we shall not discharge the debt entirely unless we bring these institutions to the attention of others who know them not, and the foreign missionary field furnishes us one avenue through which to manifest our gratitude to God for the inestimable privileges of a citizenship to which Christianity has so largely contributed.

five monutes. When done take off strings and dress on top of large piece of crouten bread hollowed out in such a way as to have the pheasant stand straight and decorate with their own plumage, keeping it in place with silver skewers so as to let it appear lifelike; decorate with watercress, strain and skim the fat from the pan in which the birds were roasted, add a little more clear gravy and pour over the pheasants before serving.

Cauliflower Sauce Hollandaise—Cut off the stalks and outer branches of two good sized white heads of cauliflower, neatly trim all around, take one gallon water, add half pint of mik, a little salt, put in large saucepan and when boiling put in the cauliflower, cover the pan and let boil for forty-five minutes, remove, drain well and serve on fancy folded napkin.

Sauce Hollandaise—Place three yolks of eggs in a small sauce pan on the range, add twelve drops of lemon juice, one teaspoon of cold water, salt and cayenne pepper, sharply beat with wire whip for one minute then place the pan into another larger one containing very hot, but not boiling water and stir for five minutes, remove the pan from the water and add little by little three ounces of butter, continually stirring while adding it. Remove, strain through a cheese cloth and serve with the cauliflower.

Bermuda Potatoes Rissolees—Peel, wash and drain well eight sound new potatoes, heat two teaspoons melted butter in a frying pan, add the potatoes and fry over hot fire until nice golden brown, keep on turning them all the time, sprinkle over a little salt and of parsley hashed fine and dry and set into moderate oven for twenty minutes

Bavaroise en Bellevue—Line the mold with clear wine jelly; decorate the bottom with a star or any other fancy design of angelica and cherries, fasten the fruit to the sides by dipping in some jelly. When the lining is set fill with the following: Bavarian cream, half pint of plain cream, half pint of double cream, the yolk of five eggs, four ounces sugar, one ounce of leaf gelatine and vanilla flavor. Soak the gelatine in a little cold water; beat the double cream firm and let drain on a sieve, put the sugar, yolks and plain cream on the fire, stir till it thickens but—do not let boil; take off, stir in the gelatine, strain and add the flavor. Stir on ice until it begins to set, then mix with the whipped cream, fill into the cold form and set on ice until wanted.

Nesselrode Pudding—Take one pound of chestnuts, blanch and remove the brown skin; put on the fire in a thin syrup to cover the nuts and stew slowly until soft; put in a mortar and pound to a smooth paste adding one pint of cream and a wineglass of maraschino, add some vanilla flavor, cool and freeze.

Take six ounces of sultanas, three ounces of cherries and two ounces of sliced and browned almonds, simmer in a little wine sauce till soft; let cool, add the fruit to the frozen cream and incorporate half pint of whipped cream. Fill into pudding form and pack in ice for three hours and serve with whipped cream.

NEWSPAPER DINNER.

A recent achievement was the following dinner by the Hotel Ansley to the newspaper men of Atlanta:

Grape Fruit Cocktail
Celery Farcie Olives Amandes
Petit Buffet Russe
Tortue Claire au Quenelle
Filet de Pompano, Saute Meuniere
Sliced Cucumbers
Riz de Veau, Sou Cloche Eugenie
Asperges de Califournie, Hollandaise
Sorbet a la Ansley
Boned Royal Squab, Sur Canape
Petit Pois Francaise
Pommes Laurette
Tomato en Surprise
Glace en Fantasie
Gateau Pieces Montees
Fromage de Roquefort
Crackers Toasted
Demi Tasse

This dinner is considered by Leo F. Alsup, steward at the Ansley, as one which approached the ideal. It fell but little short of perfection.

PERFECT LUNCHEON.

Martini Cocktail
Virginia Prime Mignonette
Celery Radishes
Watermelon Rind Pickeled
Chicken Gumbo Strained (in cup)
Piedmont Omelette
Virginia Gumbo glace with Dandelion Greens
Boiled Bermuda Potatoes
Broiled Quail on Toast
Guava Jelly
G. H. Mumm Brut.
Cantaloupes a la node
Apollinaris
Gergenzola Cheese
Black Coffee

Following is the recipe for each dish of this luncheon:

Virginia Ham Glace with Dandelion Greens.—Take a very small Virginia ham, soak in cold water for 12 hours, then boil for 3 hours, remove the skin and neatly trim all the black and lay in roasting pan, sprinkle with powdered sugar, pour into pan one-half glass of sherry, set in oven and let glace for 15 minutes, baste four to six times, take out and boil your greens in the same water you boiled the ham in; then put your greens on a platter, put the ham on top and take the ham gravy, strain and pour over the sliced ham just before serving.

Broiled Quail on Toast.—Pick and singe the quail, split open down the back, without separating, draw and wipe inside with a towel, mix on a platter a tablespoon of olive oil, salt and pepper, dip quails into this mixture and place on broiler and place on fire for six minutes on each side, when done place on service platter, pour over a little melted butter and decorate with watercress and serve guava jelly on the side.

Artichokes Vinaigrette. — Select four medium sized fresh artichokes, remove the hardest leaves from the base, pare the bottom well and tie up well with string, tie to each bottom a slice of lemon and boil in salted water until outside leaves detach, let get cool in their own liquor and set off on a napkin to drain, then serve with the vinaigrette separate.

Chicken Gumbo Strained in Cup.—Cut one tender well cleaned chicken in small square pieces, place in saucepan with three ounces butter, add four ounces of lean raw ham, two onions, two branches celery, two leeks, two green peppers cut in square pieces; stir with wooden spoon over fire until the moisture evaporates, then add about one-half gallon of chicken broth, add three peeled tomatoes and ten pieces of well washed okra, cut in pieces, as sprig of thyme, a teaspoonful of gumbo file, two bay leaves; let all this simmer until okra is well done, remove fat on top and strain into cups and serve.

Piedmont Omelette.—Peel, clean and wash well twelve fresh mushrooms, slice and place in saucepan, add three sliced green peppers, a tablespoonful of butter and cook for five minutes, then add the breast of a boiled chicken, sliced, two tablespoonfuls of cream sauce and season to taste. Take twelve eggs, break into bowl, add one-half cup of cream, beat up well with a beater. Put in a frying pan four ounces of butter, set on hot fire, then drop in your eggs, mix well for about three minutes and fold up the opposite sides, then pour into this the above preparation and fold over; always keep side of pan on hot fire, turn out on platter and decorate the ends of the omelette with what filling you have left.

Buffet Russe
Astrachan Caviare
Creme Contesse
Tourtue Verte a l'Anglaise
Darne de Saumon, Presidence
Gujon de Sole, Venitienne
Medaillon de ris de Veau, Medicis
Tornedos, Chevalier
Supreme de Volaille, Chanteclaire
Selle d'Agneau de lait, Metternick
Articheause Moussoline
Punch a la Romaine
Pigeon de Brodeause, Savaroff
Pudding Saseson
Bombe a l'Alhambra
Panier de Petits Fouls
Friendice
Cafe-noir.

Other breakfasts, luncheons, dinners might be given without number, but these chiefly are famous.

The One Woman Railroad

THE other day The Daily Journal told about Kansas' famous "one-man railroad," built entirely by a lone man. Now, today, we have unearthed the "one-woman railroad." The owner of this one-woman railroad is Mrs. Cora B. Williams, of Atlanta, Ga.

Mrs. Williams is the only known woman in the world who owns and runs a railroad. It's the Georgia, Florida and Alabama, which runs for 200 miles through a rich region of cotton, timber and naval stores.

The death of her husband, Captain J. P. Williams, has just left Mrs. Williams in possession of this property, with all its trains, stations, shops, terminals and docks, and a steamship line, besides. She owns all of its $2,000,000 of bonds and 90 per cent of the stock, together with 250,000 acres of land and other interests that bring her fortune up to over $10,000,000.

And there isn't any doubt about her being able to run it. During the several years of her husband's illness before his death she consulted with him on all matters of finance and management, and toward the end was practically in control of the railroad system herself. Now it is expected that the board of directors will elect her president.

The railroad was built by Captain Williams, and he made every cent of his fortune himself. At the close of the war he was penniless. He took a job chopping trees in a turpentine camp at $1 a day. Realizing the vast possibilities of southern timber lands, little by little he invested his small savings and erected mills and distilleries until he had accumulated half a million dollars. Then he went to railroading.

Mrs. Williams expects to carry out her husband's policies, and has able and trusted lieutenants to help her. And those who know her expect that, under her direction, the property will keep right on developing.

She owns a hotel and summer resort at Lanark, Ga., and handsome homes in Savannah, Atlanta and Statesboro. She will continue to make Atlanta her business headquarters and chief place of residence.

The Samuel Johnson Museum

No better site could have been chosen for a Johnson Museum than the house in Gough Square, Fleet street, where he lived from 1748 to 1758. In this house, which is now being converted into museum, the lexicographer's wife died, and it was there he began the issue of the Rambler and finished his dictionary. It was at the same house that he was arrested for the small debt which was discharged by a brother litterateur in the person of Samuel Richardson.

Reading from left to right, the singers in these pictures are: Miss Margaret Hecht, Miss Caroline Crenshaw, at the piano; Miss Ruth Oppenheim, of whom a full face view is shown; Miss Lala Bright Cannon in profile, just beneath Miss Oppenheim, and Miss Mayme Clyburn, at the right.

BY LINTON K. STARR.

ATLANTA has enough women who sing to supply voices for every opera under the sun.

To be more explicit, Atlanta women who have stood the test of critical audiences, could be formed into an opera company that need exclude nothing from its repertoire, provided the necessary male voices could be found.

The only thing out of place would be the lack of dramatic training. In many cases this is being supplied, and, as a matter of fact an Atlanta musician is planning the orgnization of a company that actually will produce operas.

To form such a company musicians say there should be at least six distinct voices, and more than one singer for several of the parts, as in the opera Tannhauser where the voices of Elizabeth and Venus are very similar.

There must be a high dramatic soprano, like that of Madame Gadski, to take such parts as Venus in Tannhauser; Aida in Aida; Leonora in Beethoven's Fidelia or Santuzza in Cavalleria Rusticana, all of which are familiar to Atlantians, except possibly the Beethoven opera.

LYRIC SOPRANO.

Then the lyric soprano, like that of Geraldine Farrar, for parts such as Marguerite in Faust, and Tosca in Tosca, sung this past year in Atlanta by Emmy Destinn.

And a coloratura soprano, as Frieda Hempel, for parts like that of Violetta in La Traviata, sung in Atlanta the past season by Miss Hempel.

Also, there must be an alto, as Louise Homer, for roles like Amneris in Aida, sung here by Madame Homer.

Then the mezzo-soprano, for a role like Carmen in Carmen, and a soubrette or an ingenue, indispensable in some operas.

All these, Atlanta musicians say, can be supplied by Atlanta women whose voices have stood the test.

The story of Atlanta women who sing would begin of course with the long hours of tortuous study through which every one must pass. It then would recite the story of how one girl, to achieve success, lived months and months as a singer for a motion picture house to overcome the timidity of appearing in public.

How another girl, now just eighteen, timidly approached the great Klidansky after more than three hundred had preceded her, and by her tremulous, almost faltering rendition of the simple "Birth of Morn," convinced the master that she, above all others, was entitled to a $3,000 scholarship in his studio.

SINGS BEFORE CRITICS.

Of how another young woman went to sing before the critics of Germany; watched them shake their heads and hear them mumble their regrets that her work still was too crude. How, then, she redoubled her efforts and two years later was given a part in the Royal Opera and two years after that was hailed with joy by half a continent.

Some of Atlanta's singers are ambitious for operatic careers. Others for success in concerts. Some believe that their life work lies in bringing joy through song to their friends and in religious work with the church choirs. Others are devoting half of their time to promoting the musical interests of Atlanta.

Miss Margaret Hecht is an Atlantian, now teaching singing, who already has had a career that gave her the leading roles in practically all of the best known operas. She studied under the celebrated masters of Europe; was in successful concert work in Germany and Austria, and later on the opera stage Miss Hecht was acclaimed as one of Europe's greatest singers.

PARTS SHE HAS SUNG.

Miss Hecht has sung the parts of Marguerite in Faust; Elsa in Lohengrin; Elizabeth and Venus in Tannhauser; Santuzza in Cavalleria Rusticana; Tosca in Tosca; Leonora in Fidelio; The Countess in the Wedding of Figaro; Mimi in Boheme; the leading roles in Carmen; Meistersinger and other well known operas.

She mastered her parts so thoroughly that now, almost on a moment's notice, she can sing a good portion of almost any role.

Miss Hecht and Mrs. M. E. Carthew-Yorstoun, who achieved re--nown in Europe, probably are the only two "real" opera singers of whom Atlanta can boast. There are others who hope to be, and so many of these that an Atlanta conservatory this year has inaugurated a course in opera coaching, and a noted Chicago baritone, C. Frederick Bonawitz, is expected in Atlanta soon to help form an operatic society.

Miss Ruth Oppenheim is an aspirant to the opera stage who, her instructors say, is certain to achieve renown with her splendid coloratura soprano. Miss Oppenheim is what some people call just a "natural singer." She made her debut in the musical world as a tot of two years when she sang to an admiring audience the old story of "A Passing Policeman." During the last grand opera season Miss Oppenheim sang before a number of the Metropolitan stars who pronounced her voice exceptionally good.

Miss Lala Cannon is the eighteen-year-old Atlanta girl who won the $3,000 scholarship by singing "Birth of Morn" for Klidansky. Before Miss Cannon went to New York her soprano was pronounced by Atlanta critics to be especially good.

COACHED FOR OPERA.

In New York she heard of the scholarship that was given by an "unknown lady" for the best soprano. Already more than 300 had tried for the prize. Miss Cannon chose one of the simplest of songs and bravely began "Birth of Morn." When she had finished the great Klidansky asked her to return for a second hearing. Then he told her to stay. Klidansky now is coaching Miss Cannon for grand opera.

Miss Caroline Crenshaw, dramatic soprano, now also studying in New York, has a voice of great power and flexibility. She has studied in London under the tutelage of Herman Klein, where, in one winter she memorized the principal roles of Carmen, Lucia, Wedding of Figaro, in addition to carrying on her other work. The past May she was awarded soprano position over sixty odd competitors at the Presbyterian church of Summit, N. J. She is studying carefully for the concert stage but has no intention of going into opera.

Miss Mamye Clyburn, whose voice may be called either a lyric or dramatic soprano, is another Atlanta young woman who, although she already has achieved much success in singing, has no ambition to go into opera. Among Miss Clyburn's instructors have been Mrs. Viola Hampton, of Massachusetts, and Prof. Louis Koemmenich, of New York. She already has done some notable chautauqua, concert and choir work, and at present is associated in Atlanta with Miss Lula Clark King.

Miss Mamie Adel Hayes, coloratura soprano, has achieved such success with her studies in New York that she probably will make her debut in grand opera this winter.

Mrs. O'Brien, of 500 Spring street, is an Atlanta coloratura soprano who has been engaged to sing this winter in the choir of a big Jacksonville, Fla., church.

Mrs. Grace Lee Brown Townsend, soprano, is an instructor at the Atlanta Conservatory of Music, as is Mrs. Virginia Gottlieb Hudgin, contralto, who soon will give a recital.

Mrs. J. W. Hurt, formerly Miss Mary Lovelace; Mrs. Louis Meckel, Mrs. Benjamin Elsas, Mrs. Charles A. Sheldon and others are well known sopranos. Mrs. John Lamar Meek, vice president of the Atlanta Musical association, has a beautiful soprano that is the delight of her many friends. Miss Sylvia Spritz is an Atlanta contralto of note.

WORTHY AMBITION.

Some of the Atlanta women who sing hope to become instrumental in convincing American audiences that our native singers are just as great artist as many foreign born.

Opera and concert managers generally admit that so many foreign singers are appearing in America simply for economic reasons. It is an established fact that the average American audience will pay more to hear an artist from across the seas than one bred at home. Which leaves the managers, who of course must profit financially as in any other business, with no choice whatever. The people as a rule simply won't listen to American artists.

The consequence is that some of the greatest American singers have been forced to go abroad to get experience and reportory that could have been obtained at home. Many American girls are overcoming their faults that prevent them singing in New York, Boston or Atlanta, by appearing before long-suffering audiences in Italy, France or Germany, while equally as bad artists from those countries are being tolerated here.

That is one thing the opera company of Atlanta women who sing will try to demonstrate. It is pointed out by musicians that the finishing process in vocalism can be obtained in America as easily as abroad.

It may remain for Atlanta women who sing to prove this to the satisfaction of American audiences.

TERRIBLE COST OF THE BALKAN WAR

ONCE more the lid has been put down on the Balkan question—that kettle of trouble that always simmers and occasionally boils over. Once more it is complacently announced that the Balkan question is settled, that it has, indeed, thanks to the skill of the diplomats, ceased to exist. Yet all the time, under the thin covering that diplomacy has spread, it seethes with the fires of internal discord, fed by the greed and jealousy of the European Powers.

The final conference at Constantinople during the past week to adjust the differences between Bulgaria and Turkey is the last chapter in the many negotiations that followed the defeat of the Turks by the Balkan allies last winter, a defeat that now seems to have been rendered by diplomacy considerably less crushing than it was when measured by military standards. Adrianople has been saved to Turkey, and with this ancient holy city once more in his possession the Turk can view with equanimity the bloodshed and defeats by which he lost it less than six months ago.

The first diplomatic chapter in the dramatic Balkan upheaval of the past year, wherein politics and bloodshed have steadily checkmated each other, was written in London when Turkey, acknowledging her defeat, sought to save her national pride and honor. After weeks of weary diplomatic hairsplitting this conference reached a ground from which it was announced, complacently as always, that the Balkan question was settled. It was—in London. But in the Balkans it flared up with a bloody ferocity that brought the diplomats' carefully reared structure down about their ears like a child's house of blocks.

Once more diplomacy was called upon and a conference was called at Bucharest to settle the differences between the allies themselves, a matter to puzzle the hardiest treaty maker, since these differences had their source in half savage racial hatreds that took no account of political expediency. But Balkan treaty makers have learned their trade in a severe school, and they went cheerfully at the task of settling what can not be settled, when suddenly just as they were about to announce once more that the Balkan question was now permanently disposed of bloodshed again followed. While the diplomats were solemnly disposing of things in Bucharest the Turks, who had never entirely acknowledged the loss of Adrianople, marched a picked body of soldiers into the war ravaged city, re-established their institutions there and denied the authority of any power to oust them.

Thus did the active Balkan lid blow off again, necessitating of course yet another conference to clamp it on in the position of stability which European politics demands of it. This has been the work of the conference at Constantinople.

Although the recovery of Adrianople goes far toward assuaging Turkey's wounded pride, yet the fact remains that as a result, final as far as anything in the Balkans can be said to be final, of all this fighting and treaty making Turkey stands stripped of all her European possessions save for the narrow strip less than seventy-five miles wide lying between Constantinople and Adrianople.

From the lost territory four countries have enriched themselves and a fifth has been formed by arbitrary edict. Bulgaria, Servia, Greece and Montenegro have extended their boundaries, while Albania, which promises to offer an interesting experiment in state making for the coming generation of diplomats to dally with, has been created outright. Besides this Rumania, as the price of her non-interference in her neighbor's embroglio, has been given a long coveted slice off northern Bulgaria, which has increased her coast line on the Black Sea and considerably improved her strategic position.

Under ordinary circumstances such territorial acquisitions would be considered, politically speaking, worth whatever they might cost, but when the figures are added up and the totals put on a comparative basis even politicians must question if the harried, warworn lands acquired by the victors were worth their cost. It is almost impossible to realize what the events of the past year have cost the Balkan people.

The total number of troops the Balkan allies could put in the field last October, including every able-bodied male over sixteen years of age, was about 850,000. Of these more than 100,000 died in battle or of disease. The same ratio applied to the male population of the United States would mean the death of 8,000,000 men in less than a year as a result of war.

In money the past year has cost the four Balkan States about $400,000,000, which is something like four times the combined annual budgets of the countries involved. Resuming again the comparison, it means that if the United States should make a similar outpouring of wealth on warfare a single year would cost four billions of dollars.

But another factor must be taken into account in estimating the cost of this new territory. The countries involved were wretchedly poor in the beginning and tremendously in debt. For twenty-five years, ever since they could fairly lay claim to a national existence, they have concentrated all their efforts on preparation for their supreme task of driving the Turk out of Europe. During this time Bulgaria, Servia and Greece have spent from a seventh to a quarter of their annual budgets on military and naval preparation. It is impossible for the American mind to grasp the significance, politically and economically, of such figures.

Equally impossible of realization to Americans is the extent to which the ordinary life of the country has been paralyzed by the events of the past year, during which time the earning and producing capacity of the entire male poulation has practically ceased. When the troops were mobilized a year ago all the commercial and agricultural life of the people stopped short except in so far as it touched military matters.

Agriculture is the chief source of livelihood of all these people, and agriculture more than anything else has been paralyzed. Cattle of every kind were commandeered for the use of the army, whether it was the carriage pair of the city official or the flea bitten mule of the peasant. Such farming as has been done in the Balkans for the past year has been done by the women and children, with a result that is pitifully inadequate for the needs of the whole people.

Already destitution is rife and there is absolutely no hope of relief until after next season's harvest. The men are coming back to the devastated villages and farms, but they are coming back to destitution. Next year there will be some sort of harvest, for the peasant women will pull the plough themselves, but now there is ahead only famine and a long, cold winter. Nothing can be expected from the several governments, for all are practically without funds.

The Balkans have paid for their new lands with appalling individual suffering. Every man and woman from the highest to the lowest has paid part of the price, every home from the palace to the hovel has felt the pinch. And all this mass of human suffering has brought after all only national disappointment. The Balkan allies won a tremendous victory over Turkey, but each of the Balkan States suffered a disappointment. Not one of them succeeded in reaching the goal for which it poured out its life.

Montenegro sacrificed the flower of its manhood and left its women folk to face starvation in order that it might gain the city of Scutari. But Scutari goes to Albania, and the Montenegrins gain instead a narrow strip along their eastern border and a bit of old Servia, populated by the most turbulent of the Albanians, who will always be a source of difficulty.

Servia stripped herself of every resource and threw into the sacrifice all the hard won prosperity of her country districts in order to win a direct outlet on the sea, a condition she deemed indispensable to her national existence. She won her seaport by her brilliant march on Durazzo, and then lost it again through the machinations of the diplomats. Not even the rich Vardar Valley that she has acquired, nor the assurance of access to the sea through Saloniki, guaranteed to her by Greece, can compensate for this humiliating disappointment.

Of all the allies Greece has probably fared best so far as attaining her ambitions is concerend. She has gained Saloniki and a splendid strip of coast line on the Aegean Sea, with rich country back of it. But nothing will quite make up for her disappointment if she fails to gain, as she probably will, all the Aegean islands, many of which are still held by Italy as hostages to secure the withdrawal of the Turkish troops from Tripoli, and the final rights to which are still to be adjudicated.

So far as soaring ambitions are concerned Bulgaria has had her wings clipped the closest of all. Bulgaria's ambitions mounted high. She saw herself a "Greater Bulgaria," with a coast line taking in most of the Aegean and a large part of the Black Sea. She saw herself enriched by the cities of Adrianople and Saloniki, and it was said that in her private councils not even the walls of Constantinople stopped the flights of her fancy.

In the Balkan situation as it stands today it seems unbelievable that the spoils of the war could ever repay to the conquerors their immense cost.

Walter Taylor—Playwright

(By WARD S. GREENE.)

THERE are several reasons why Walter Taylor happened to become a moving picture playwright as well as Atlanta's city clerk. First, he used to work with a circus, and that gave him an idea. Second, he used to work with a newspaper, and that made him know an idea when he met it in the street, and taught him what to do with the idea when properly introduced to it. Again, he works in the city hall, and that gives him the sense of humor to coax the idea along.

But most of all he happened to become a movie writer because he is one of the supposing kind who can take an idea and develop a whole family of young ideas along with it.

Have you ever played "supposing?" Children know it as "if I had a million dollars" or "if I was you and you was me;" and grown people play it the same way, only they call it "Castles in Spain." Walter Taylor didn't call it anything in particular and perhaps didn't even know he was playing it.

You see, it happened in that day-dreaming month of June. It had been one of those long hot days that herald the swoop of the longer hotter, summer.

The afternoon sun was beginning to smoke its way into the dusty western sky as Walter Taylor sat at his desk in the city hall and looked out of the open window at the parched stone flagging, at the shifting crowds of tired people, hurrying homeward after long hours spent in rooms where the sun seems to make itself felt rather than seen.

A cool breeze whipped across the window sill, and the edge of the shadow on the pavement seemed to trickle further across the bright waste of light. The slippery elms on the sidewalk's border shook the dust from their leaves and rustled them faintly. The blazing light mellowed and dimmed. And Walter Taylor began thinking about the crowds and the street in a rather whimsical way.

The light, for instance. Why, it was drifting from yellow into a subdued grey as though the sun's rays filtered down through a sieve. It was like being under a tent.

If one were supposing now, that green hydrant out there might very easily be a post, and the delivery wagon rattling by it might be a chariot rumbling into the ring. The ring itself, well, it wasn't very hard to turn the dust-swirled street into a tan-bark arena.

A man slid out from the sidewalk, hopped nimbly out of the way of the delivery wagon wheels, and skipped across the street. He waved his hand to the watcher in the window.

"Funny fellow, that clown," thought Taylor.

The show went on. Two jugglers who strangely resembled men who were, say, matching, paused on the corner, in the ring rather, and entertained him a bit with their antics. Now a beautiful equestrienne swung by with her hands tugging at the wheel of her car, no, at the reins of her gallant steed. Then again, a dwarf comedian dressed in newsboy costume turned cartwheels through the magic street.

A donkey whisked a cart around the corner and stopped opposite the window. He was a trick donkey of course. The driver jerked at the reins while the donkey stood still and flipped his ears. By the rights of the ring now, the man should beat him. Walter Taylor held his breath lest the man not play the game. Then he grinned with delight. The red-headed one in the driver's seat stoutly belabored the steed with his whip.

The donkey would buck, and the red-headed clown would tumble into the street. In his mind's eye Walter Taylor saw him fall on his stomach. He enjoyed the huge joke so much that he chuckled until his sides ached.

Out in the office a grizzled clerk said, "what t'ell?"

Walter Taylor continued to chuckle. The clerk ran to the window and peered out. Nothing in sight but a mule, a wagon, and a driver. The clerk gaped at Taylor. The man was daft, he thought.

So he said, "What's the joke?"

"I think I'll write a moving picture play," said Walter Taylor.

The clerk grinned a glassy grin. "Well, that is a joke," he grafted and went back to the interrupted contemplation of his lower vest-button.

PLAYWRIGHT IN 20 MINUTES.

Walter Taylor felt deeply hurt, but none the less in earnest. So while he continued thinking about the circus in the street, at the same time he grabbed the typewriter and began stabbing some of the thoughts through the frayed ribbon.

Twenty minutes later he zipped the paper out, leaned back in his chair, and sighed with satisfaction. He had written the moving picture play and it was a corker.

Yes, Walter krote his first moving picture play in twenty minutes. Later, of course, he spruced it up a bit, and polished off some of the rough edges.

"Don't tell anybody I wrote it in twenty minutes," he says now, "I wouldn't like to make that statement in print, simply because nobody would believe me. But it's the truth."

Why nobody would believe Walter Taylor, we don't know. But if you are one of the ones who tried to write a play in twenty minutes, you know that what he did was rather wonderful.

Some take weeks at it. They buy books on the subject, study 'em, dig deep into form, technique, the rudiments and the graduate work; then they ask all their friends about it, make seventeen different copies, and after it's all over, are afraid to send off a single one.

But none of these things did Walter Taylor.

"Books?" he says. "Didn't see a one. Nor did anyone ever tell me how to write one of the darned things. The best way to learn is to go to some of these shows around here and watch how it is done. Simple as falling off a log. Anybody can do it."

Neither was Walter Taylor bashful about submitting his maiden effort. He would take a chance anyway, he thought, though in all probability they would send it back right away and beg him as a personal favor not to send 'em any more stuff like that. But stamps cost only two cents, so he sent it.

A few days later he had his answer. It came in the form of a check.

"Surprised?" says Walter Taylor, "I was plum duffled."

But taking the old motto of if at first you succeed, try 'em again, he sat down and wrote another. This time it took him longer than twenty minutes, but he finished her at last, tied her up, and away she went. And the check came back.

HIS RULES ARE FEW.

The plays have been written and dispatched several times since then, and several times has the check come back. Several times, too, the plays have come back. But that is only part of the game.

Not long ago Atlantians had the opportunity to see one of Walter Taylor's plays flicker across the screen. It was shown at a local theatre and was all about clowns, donkeys, and circuses. It was his first play, and although many who saw it didn't know they were indebted to Walter Taylor for a hearty laugh, yet many more did know it and thanked him for it.

A man who can write a play in such a very short time as twenty minutes must of necessity have very few rules to go by. But Walter Taylor's rules are as good as they are small in number. He didn't get them out of a book and nobody told them to him. He just sensed them.

First and chiefest, give the public what they want. The public's desire is the motion picture men's desire, and according to Walter Taylor that desire is not what it once was.

"A few years ago," he says, "a moving picture wasn't complete without a lot of blood in it. You had to kill off somebody every few feet of film. The drunken father must crash into his home and beat his child over the head. The next scene must show said father spilling tears over the child as she dies with reproachful eyes fixed on him. And then of course the thing ended with father saddened but reformed. Nowadays it's different. Characters can get sick as much as they want to, in fact, it's a fine thing to get them very sick indeed, but always cure 'em before the last flicker. Once your consumptive went west and died in agony. Now he must go west and be cured. People are tired of the sob stuff. Let it be in spots, but be sure to end up with the 'lived happy ever after clause'."

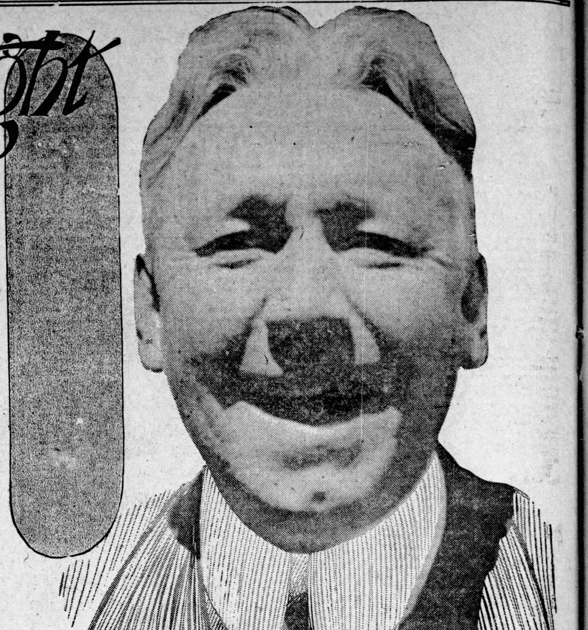
His rules do not provide that all plays shall be funny.

"It's not the ridiculous so much as the human interest stuff that takes," he says. And human interest is a very hard thing to define. It can mean a sob or a giggle, may inspire envy or ambition or hope or recollection; but whether strange or sad or silly it must carry some appeal to touch the common chord.

And as for other rules, Walter Taylor has none.

Just get your idea, tell it, and when you're through telling it, for the love of Mike, stop.

Which is a very good rule, not only for moving plays, but for Sunday feature stories as well.



WHEN THE IDEA HAS BEEN FOUND —

ILLUSTRATING INCIDENTS FROM A SCENARIO —

Gold at Last Is Panned From New Alaskan Mines

BY E. O. SAWYER.
Staff Correspondence.

SHUSHANNA, Alaska.—"Oh, Billy, we're rich!"

The little woman, clad in "mucklucks" and trousers, looked up from the frying pan she held in her hand and in which rested half an ounce of coarse gold, to the silent, grayhaired man beside her and repeated again and again the magic words:

"Oh, Billy, we're rich!"

* * *

Snow-capped peaks and icy walls surrounded them. Three years in the wilderness of the upper White river country, the man and the woman had "mushed" over the snows by winter and the swamps by summer in search of this gold. Twice in that time they had been to Dawson for supplies. For seven years before the woman came the silent man had "mushed" by himself.

But away with those years of "mushing"—HERE WAS GOLD AT LAST!

* * *

The silent man, standing there looking at the gleaming gold, was William E. James, discoverer of the Shushanna Gold fields—the new fabled treasure-house of Alaska, whither I have journeyed over a perilous and almost impassable trail. Since he sent his signal out to a waiting world of men early in July over 2,000 men and four women have stampeded into these fields from McCarthy!

And now on the surrounding hills and on creeks in all directions from the James claim over an area of some fifty miles thousands of claims have been staked, but on all, with the exception of a few in the narrow gulches where the gravel is shallow, it will take months of work before the owners can tell whether they, too, will find as "rich little pockets" as James has located.

Last year Nels P. Nelson joined them for a year's prospecting, and William E. Johnson, of Dawson, "grubstaked" the expedition. The winter's search for gold was nearly over and they had only been able to find a few colors along tributaries to Beaver creek in Yukon territory when they met Indian Joe, a chief among the White River Indians and a friend of James.

Joe told them of a quartz ledge on Chathenda creek, tributary to the Chisana river, twenty-eight miles north of the White. Coming up this creek they met Carl Whitham, a young trapper and prospector, who had also been in this country for ten years. They camped together and began to prospect.

On May 3 James and Nelson found pay dirt at the mouth of a creek above the quartz ledge which they called Bonanza creek. Prospecting up this creek, they found a tributary in which the gravel yielded as high as $25 to the placer pan. They named it "Little Eldorado" and staked a claim. Carl Whitham staked the next one above. Nelson started to Dawson for supplies and Whitham to Golcona. James remained, living in a little 12x12 tent.

When I arrived at Shushanna a mining engineer, who had just bonded a claim for six figures from which, he told me in confidence, he expected to take half a million, guided me three miles and a half over the mountain from Johnston creek to the James' home.

The woman had discarded trousers for a skirt of her own making, but still wore the mucklucks. Her hair is just turning gray and her hands and face are tanned nut-brown.

"I am sorry to be found in such a shape," said she, "but one can't keep up with the styles here, and houses are real scarce. Won't you come into the tent?"

Stepping between a Yukon stove and a little stand made of split willow poles, on which a lot of condensed milk cans were piled, I seated myself on a moose hide which served as carpet, mattress and table at different hours of the day. There was over $15,000 in gold in those cans I learned later.

We discussed the high cost of living. Word had just come that a pack train had been quarantined by the government because one horse had been sick. Flour was selling at $1.50 a cup, bacon at $2.50 a pound and sugar at as high as $5 a cup.

"At the present rate I think we had better pack up the money we have and leave," she said. "We would, too, only Mr. Johnson will be here tomorrow with a pack train from Dawson and then we will have a bigger tent and plenty of everything, as well as gold."

Hearing that I had been on the trail eight days Mrs. James said, "You are probably hungry. No man gets enough to eat on the trail. We will have tea just as though I was entertaining at my future home."

She set before me a bowl of tea, two great slices o "sourdough" bread and a huge hunk of butter. It was my first sample of this kind of bread and although eight days of hot cakes might have made me a little prejudiced I say without reservation, that it is the best kind of bread baked. Canned butter from Petaluma, Cal., is not so bad, either! Tastes better than some fresh fruit you get at the corner grocery back home!

Speaking of the search for gold she said:

"Billy knew there was a big pay in this country somewhere, but he had an idea it was on the White river side. We 'mushed' and prospected and camped all over that country. Our staked claims are thick there. On many of them Billy believes they will find lots of gold over in that country now that his strike here will bring in men with machinery.

"The years in here were not so bad. At first I let Billy go away during the day and it was very lonely, but I grew afraid that he might be killed by a slide or a grizzly and I would be left alone. So after the first month I always went with him. We would have breakfast and set out together prospecting or hunting and return together at night. It was even better this year with Mr. Nelson along to talk to."

She told me how she followed Billy and Nels up Bonanza creek and panned out her first gold on the new claim with a frying pan. Not till then did it dawn on her that they had struck it rich. She named the camp "Shushanna," which is Indian pronunciation of "Chisana," the name of the river.

FUR TOUCHES ON AFTERNOON COSTUMES

THIS season registers the high-tide mark in the use of peltry. Smart costumes, almost without exception, emphasize as a leading feature the use of fur. It is employed in every conceivable manner; to fashion collars and cuffs, cover buttons, as a border on wraps and gowns, to trim millinery and to adorn fabric muffs and stoles.

The zenith of luxury is attained when fur is introduced as a trimming, and its possibilities are unlimited. A narrow outline of fur bordering a gown is, in many instances, more effective than a broad band. Much depends upon the character of the gown and the result which the designer strives to obtain.

The collection of fur-trimmed garments on this page are especially worthy of your attention, for they illustrate the use of fur trimming in the artistic manner of the Parisian couturier.

Every well-selected wardrobe requires a loose wrap suitable for wearing over the afternoon or evening costume, and the model trimmed with narrow bands of fur possesses every favorable attribute. The material used for the wrap is rust-red velours de laine in a ribbed design. The left half of the front crosses over the opposite side and is fastened with a row of disk-shaped buttons covered with the material. A narrow band of skunk fur borders the coat, and the long kimono sleeves are finished in the same manner.

With this stunning wrap is worn a small hat of black velvet with a large butterfly of black tulle poised directly across the front. Outlining this butterfly bow is a narrow band of skunk fur. A large pillow muff of skunk completes the costume. Velours de laine can be purchased in many lovely colors, so the wrap can be duplicated in any hue you may prefer.

Brocaded velvet is extensively used for the broad scarfs which accompany the afternoon costumes, and this one, bordered with skunk fur, is of brown brocaded velvet. The ends gradually grow narrower from the shoulders to the hem, and brown satin is used for the lining.

Brown velvet is used for the modish beret hat which is artistically trimmed with an ornament of jet. A band of skunk fur forms the headband.

The fascinating afternoon gown with the tunic overskirt is of copper-colored satin trimmed with corbeau-blue velvet and opossum fur. The lower portion of the bodice is oddly cut, extending over the kimono upper half in points both back and front. A small collar of the fur furnishes the V-shaped opening at the throat, and a band of the fur forms the cuffs on the sleeves.

This smart gown could be successfully duplicated in deep violet or blue satin charmeuse and trimmed with opossum.

Taupe color continues to be numbered among the favored hues, and the three-quarter length wrap is fashioned of taupe velours de laine. It is cut in kimono style, and the short sleeves have turned-back cuffs of black velvet. The double collar finishing the neck line is developed of black velvet and tailless ermine. A single button, covered with black velvet, is used to fasten the wrap.

The picturesque tricorne hat is of black velvet bordered with gray fox fur. Two gray plumes are gracefully arranged over the brim.

Panther is a youthful fur, and the smart frock trimmed with this spotted animal is developed of sand-colored cloth.

The low-cut V of the decolletage is filled in with white mousseline de soie, and a double frill of the same material softens the line at the neck. A flat collar of the panther extends across the shoulders and back and double frills of the mousseline trim the sleeves.

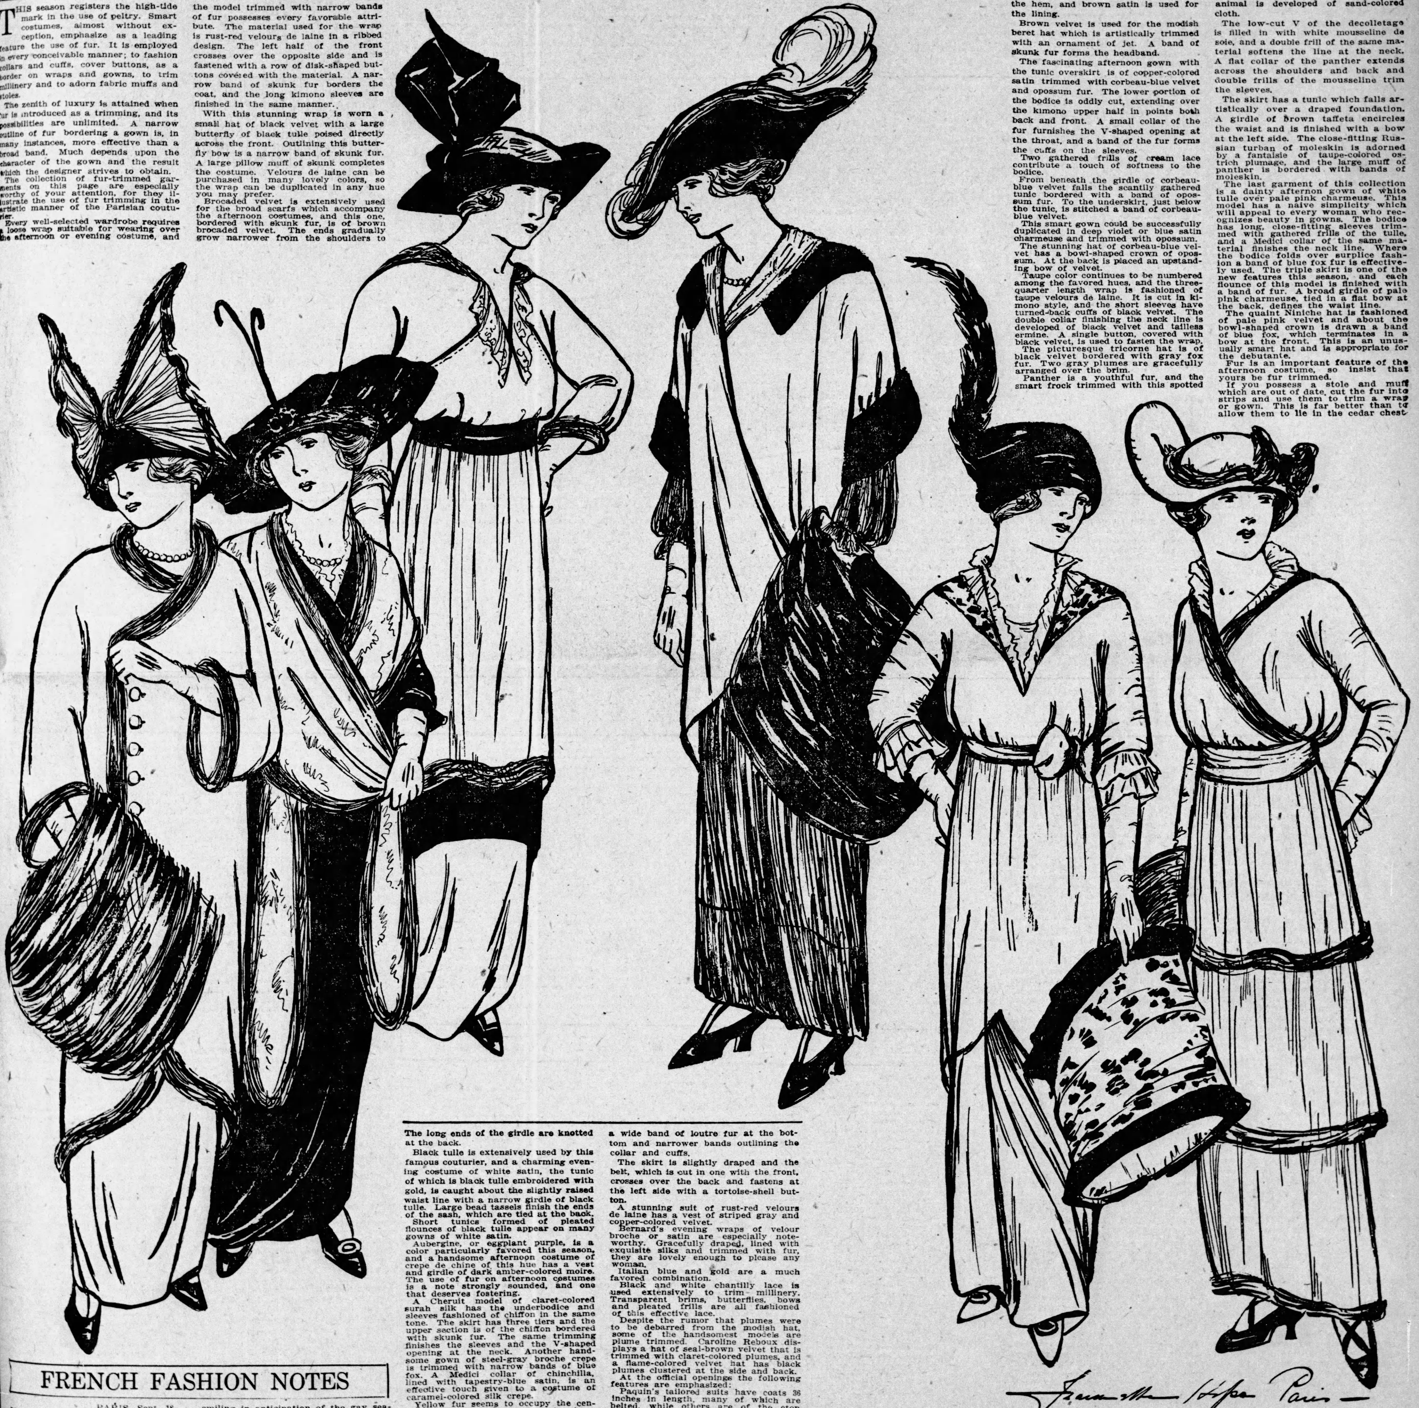
The skirt has a tunic which falls artistically over a draped foundation. A girdle of brown taffeta encircles the waist and is finished with a bow at the left side. The close-fitting Russian turban of moleskin is adorned by a fantaisie of taupe-colored ostrich plumage, and the large muff of panther is bordered with bands of moleskin.

The last garment of this collection is a dainty afternon gown of white tulle over pale pink charmeuse. This model has a naive simplicity which will appeal to every woman who recognizes beauty in gowns. The bodice has long, close-fitting sleeves trimmed with gathered frills of the tulle, and a Medici collar of the same material finishes the neck line. Where the bodice folds over surplice fashion a band of blue fox fur is effectively used. The triple skirt is one of the new features this season, and each flounce of this model is finished with a band of fur. A broad girdle of pale pink charmeuse, tied in a flat bow at the back, defines the waist line.

The quaint Niniche hat is fashioned of pale pink velvet and about the bowl-shaped crown is drawn a band of blue fox, which terminates in a bow at the front. This is an unusually smart hat and is appropriate for the debutante.

Fur is an important feature of the afternoon costume, so insist that yours be fur trimmed.

If you possess a stole and muff which are out of date, cut the fur into strips and use them to trim a wrap or gown. This is far better than to allow them to lie in the cedar chest.



FRENCH FASHION NOTES

PARIS, Sept. 18.

PARIS is again the mecca of the fashionables, for those who migrated to Deauville, Ostend and Dieppe with the first hot wave have returned to pay homage at the shrine of pleasure and assume the social activities suspended during the summer.

The chateaux in the country are being prepared for the hunting season, and hostesses are planning campaigns which require no mean amount of strategy. Those who fill the ranks are smiling in anticipation of the gay season in store for them, and are preparing their wardrobes for the conquests.

Evening costumes are masterpieces of line and color, and whether your taste is of oriental extravagance or spartan simplicity it can be gratified.

A handsome gown from Paul Poiret's recent display of new creations is of flame-colored mousseline de soie. The flounced tunic is of lace, dyed to match the mousseline, and is side pleated at the waist, falling free from beneath a broad girdle of putty-colored charmeuse. The long ends of the girdle are knotted at the back.

Black tulle is extensively used by this famous couturier, and a charming evening costume of white satin, the tunic of which is black tulle embroidered with gold, is caught about the slightly raised waist line with a narrow girdle of black tulle. Large bead tassels finish the ends of the sash, which are tied at the back.

Aubergine, or eggplant purple, is a color particularly favored this season, and a handsome afternoon costume of crepe de chine of this hue has a vest and girdle of dark amber-colored moire. The use of fur on afternoon costumes is a note strongly sounded, and one that deserves fostering.

A Cheruit model of claret-colored surah silk has the underbodice and sleeves fashioned of chiffon in the same tone. The skirt has three tiers and the upper section is of the chiffon bordered with skunk fur. The same trimming finishes the sleeves and the V-shaped opening at the neck. Another handsome gown of steel-gray broche crepe is trimmed with narrow bands of blue fox. A Medici collar of chinchilla, lined with tapestry-blue satin, is an effective touch given to a costume of caramel-colored silk crepe.

Yellow fur seems to occupy the central position among the fur trimmings, and both gowns and wraps show touches of this peltry.

On coats of black caracul are used collars and cuffs of yellow fox, while narrow bands of the same fur are used on gowns and hats fashioned of seal-brown velvet or silk.

Medici collars of sheerest lace or tulle are bordered with narrow bands of fur.

Velours de laine is one of the fashionable fabrics for street costumes, and a Bechoff-David model is of ribbed velours in a rich tone of tobacco brown. The coat is three-quarters length, with a wide band of loutre fur at the bottom and narrower bands outlining the collar and cuffs.

The skirt is slightly draped and the belt, which is cut in one with the front, crosses over the back and fastens at the left side with a tortoise-shell button.

A stunning suit of rust-red velours de laine has a vest of striped gray and copper-colored velvet.

Bernard's evening wraps of velour broche or satin are especially noteworthy. Gracefully draped, lined with exquisite silks and trimmed with fur, they are lovely enough to please any woman.

Black and white chantilly lace is used extensively to trim millinery. Transparent brims, butterflies, bows and pleated frills are all fashioned of this effective lace.

Despite the rumor that plumes were to be debarred from the modish hat, some of the handsomest models are plume trimmed. Caroline Reboux displays a hat of seal-brown velvet that is trimmed with claret-colored plumes, and a flame-colored velvet hat has black plumes clustered at the side and back.

Paquin's tailored suits have coats 36 inches in length, many of which are belted, while others are of the eton type with godet basques. The skirts have slightly flaring tunics, and frequently the three-tiered model appears.

The short coat is a feature of the three-piece costume, and the high muffled collar is among the new notes recently introduced.

Some of the Paquin skirts are fuller and the sleeves of transparent materials are of ample width.

Drecoll favors conservative styles and the average length of the suit coats are 24 inches. The Russian blouse and the godet basque are favored and the two and three tiered skirts are used for street and evening gowns. A few evening costumes show the hoop tunic.

The coats to Cheruit's suits are 26 inches long, with pleated backs, blouses and long sashes.

Callot's suit coats are of three-quarter length and include draped effects. Skirts are tight and very much draped and many are noticeably shorter. The edges of the tunics are frequently scalloped.

Bodices of chiffon matching in color the material used for the skirt and made over a foundation of white are exploited by this designer.

Georgette, Lanvin, Marie Louise and Reboux all favor the Niniche and Louis XIV hats.

These milliners are combining the following colors: Brown and purple, blue and green. Tete de negre, petrol and gendarme blue, amber, bordeaux red and olive green are also favored. The very latest innovation is the four-cornered sailor of black velvet, with puff-balls of black ostrich fronds poised on three corners.

The empire style is strongly revived in juvenile apparel, for the frocks have extremely short bodices, sashed with wide ribbon, and skirts which extend to the ankles. Hats are small and bonnet-shaped and of such a quaint daintiness that the small Parisiennes closely resemble the delightful children painted by Greuze.

COMMON SENSE in the HOME

EDITED by MARION HARLAND

A TALK ABOUT THE HABIT OF GOSSIPING.

“THAT is the third time Mary Allen has been by here today. I do wonder where she is going?”

I was spending a few days in a little country town and the remark I have just quoted was made by my landlady. From the corner where I had settled myself with my book, I could see, when I lifted my eyes, a lovely prospect of hill and forest; from her place at the window she could command a view of the village street. With the unconcern which marks those not especially given to reading she commented upon any passing which took her attention, apparently feeling that my absorption in my book was a matter of no importance and that I would prefer to any printed page an interruption which would tell me of the doings of the villagers.

My interest in humanity in general and in particular is deep and genuine, and many of the bits of information vouchsafed by my companion took my attention and prompted me to further questioning. But as the morning wore on her remarks palled upon me, and when the surmises as to Mary Allen's destination and business proved barren, I picked up my book and betook myself to my own room. I did not read, however. I sat down and thought again, as I had often thought before, on the prevalence of gossip in small towns.

The dictionary gives “scandal” as one synonym for “gossip”; “tattling” is another. When we are charitably disposed we are prone to discriminate between them and to look upon gossip as kindly and as opposed to the harsher terms. Yet the line separating them is almost imperceptible and easily crossed—the more easily because pleasing reports of our neighbors' conduct are far less interesting than statements spiced with something a trifle more startling.

* *

No Thrill in Good Report.

Does this sound severe? Think about it for a minute. If Mrs. Brown tells you that Mrs. Black's husband is a good, sober, hard-working man, always regular in his home-coming, and of steady habits, you are naturally glad to hear such good reports of him, but you are not thrilled. Compare the effect upon you of this statement with a story from her lips of how Mr. Black comes home two or three nights out of the week in a state of fierce intoxication, or that he never fails to call on a neighbor's pretty wife when her husband is out of the way, or that he neglects his own wife and pays attention to some charming girl! Don't you know that you crave details of his shortcomings as you never would of the quiet round of domestic happiness?

Carry the idea a little further. Put yourself in the place of the one who supplies the news and think how much more attention you command when you can give a striking story of some little occurrence and you will appreciate the temptation besetting all of us to make the most of any small piece of gossip that comes our way, even if we have to approach perilously near to scandal to achieve this.

When we ponder upon this we understand why gossip, tattling, scandal—give it whatever name you please—flourishes in villages and small towns. The dweller in the big city has distractions which call her attention from the affairs of her next door neighbors.

“The fine thing about living in a city is that something is happening all the time,” said a young man to me the other day. “Yesterday I saw a thief chased by a big crowd and three policemen; last night I went to a big fire; this morning there was an automobile collision near me and a horse ran away. Something is doing every minute.”

This is felt by women as well as by men. They may not find the thrill experienced by my young friend in fires and smash-ups and thief-takings, but there are other absorptions—shopping, dry goods displays, concerts in department stores, sales—to mention a few of the less important events. For those with more intellectual tastes are picture shows, galleries, free musical events, lectures, museums, and when they wish to pay money for their diversion, theaters, opera, concerts, and moving pictures which are something more than mere amusement.

* *

Visiting by Telephone.

All these are lacking in the village. There the only relaxation which prevails all the year round is the discussion of the doings of others, and it is no wonder that after a while the question as to where Mary Allen—or any one else—is going, and what she will do when she gets there, rises to a point of disproportionate importance.

In the real country gossip has received an impetus by the introduction of telephones. The first summer I visited a locality where the telephone was the cherished means of long distance visiting, I was a good deal irritated by conditions.

“Every time I speak over the phone I hear the other receivers taken off the hooks all along the line,” I complained. “I think it's abominable!”

I acknowledge this, and yet I confess I don't like the thought that all I say over the telephone is listened to by strangers, even although my remarks are entirely innocent and might be printed in the papers with perfect propriety. To me it seems as though the telephone thus used is merely an extension of the gossip habit I deplore.

* *

More Charity Needed.

Since we cannot change conditions and import city distractions into the quiet country life any more than we can revolutionize human nature and deprive us of interest in our fellow beings, what can we do to make the tendency to gossip kindly instead of cruel? For cruel it often is when the eagerness to make a striking story out of an innocent occurrence leads us to put the worst interpretation upon it.

Each of us can tell of shocking scandals, of heart breaking slanders started by the uncharitable repetition of some trifling item of news that in itself would be harmless, but that has been amplified and trimmed by each one who retells it until it has grown so from these additions that the orginal statement would not be recognized. Possibly not one of those who repeated the tale had a malicious meaning, but the story grew in the telling, and the individual color given by each gossip monger has blended into the manufacture of a monstrosity.

To my mind the first step to be taken towards modifying gossip is the acquisition of a more abundant charity. We should be badly off if we had no interest in the affairs of one another. The trait which leads you to try to make life easier for your poor neighbor, to endeavor to cheer the downcast and to comfort the afflicted, is an offshoot of this same attention to the concerns of others which if wrongly exerted tends to tattling and scandal. When your tendency to learn all you can of the habits and conduct of those who live near you is directed in the right way it leads to philanthropy, to helpful offices of all kinds, to the friendliness that helps make the earth more like the garden of the Lord than it would be without the exercise of these qualities.

We should be in a bad way if we could cut out of our makeup an interest in the daily lives of those who surround us. Only when this interest is mixed with malice or with a lack of charity does it become a menace to ourselves and to the community.

Of course if all of us had a full measure of Christian charity and of love for others the kingdom of heaven would be here, and there would be no need for seeking out any other methods of correcting unkind gossip. But so long as poor human nature remains human we require helps of other sorts, and one of the best of these is a common interest on which a neighborhood can unite and divert attention from individual shortcomings.

* *

Neighborhood Societies Practical Aid.

There are many of these. Some of them are already known to you, and among our Cornerites are those who are foremost in women's clubs for work, for study, for village improvement, for the discussion of public questions, for training in child culture and education. To such of you as already have your heads and hearts and hands full of these objects I do not have to talk. If you are doing your full duty by them you have no leisure time to spend in discussing your fellow townspeople, in spreading reports about this one or that, in running to earth some unpleasant tale of the past or the present that will sow wretchedness among those of whom it is told. I only wish I could turn some of you loose as missionaries in gossip infested quarters to preach a gospel that would mean reform.

Yet in the places where scandal is most plentiful there are always those who long to turn the energy and time expended upon aimless or harmful gossip to better things. I wish with all my heart that this little talk today could serve as a suggestion to you of the work awaiting you close at hand. I do not mean you are to set yourself upon a pedestal and condemn the habits of those about you, but that you are to seek out what you yourself can do to broaden and brighten the pursuits of those with whom you live.

Done by Village Women.

Here are some of the things I myself have seen done by women in small places:

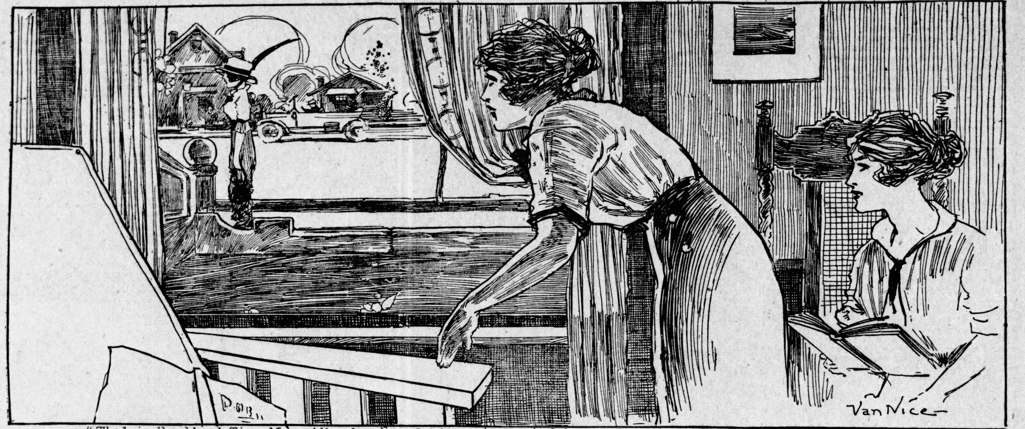
A library started. This was done by a teacher whose health had forced her to return to a little country home, and who secured one of the traveling libraries and kept it in her own sitting room. It served as a nucleus for something larger, and now has a home of its own.

A sewing class among factory girls. One of the heads of departments began this to help two girls who were getting their wedding clothes ready, and the work grew.

A working girls' club. This started as a social club and developed into an aid society as well, organizing a camp for working girls' summer rest.

Three village improvement societies formed in different localities and all working for better conditions, clean streets, improved sanitation, and higher standard of morals.

I could tell of more, but these will serve as a sample of what may be done in small places without outside influence, where earnest women did the next thing and made a success of it. Gossip may not have been eliminated from any of these towns and villages, but it has been wonderfully lessened, and the new interests introduced by these organizations are bound to grow and to choke scandal mongering sooner or later. Try one of them and see. And if others of you can report similar efforts for the help of the rest of us, will you not do so and let us print them here where we can all learn from them?



“That is the third Time Mary Allen has been by here today. I do wonder where she is going!”

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND.

“I WISH to ask your advice about my little adopted daughter. She seems to be a peculiar child and I certainly have tried everything I could with her. Just a few months after she came here she told me when she came home from school that her teacher had said she was coming to see me, and added: ‘I told her she would be treated awfully nice if she did, because I had a real nice mother.’ Yet it seems no matter what one does, if she can't have her own way there is trouble, as she is so strong headed and self-willed.

“You will understand my feeling about her better when I tell you that many a time after she has been particularly trying I have gone to her bedside when she was asleep and with a heart yearning over her I have kissed her and with tears rolling down my face have prayed the Lord to help me.

“Perhaps I have not been so firm as I should have been with her, as my own little boy was born just a few months after she came to live with us, and I was not well and strong thereafter. When she was self-willed then and I was feeling weak and ill I simply could not stand it and would have to give in. I have not wished to send her to the house of correction, as I think there is a stigma attached ever after to a child who has been in such a place. Yet I do not wish to punish her all the time, and I want to do what is right for her. Cannot some one advise me as to the wisest course to follow with her? I would like counsel from the Cornerites.

“Can you also tell me what to do for a maiden hair fern which is growing brown and white on the edges? Mrs. G. H.”

You have a difficult problem with the child and I hope most earnestly that some of our constituency can give you helpful advice. For myself I can only counsel patience and an effort to awaken the child's belief in you and to win her confidence so that she will try to govern herself for her own sake as well as for yours. If you can arouse her conscience half the battle is gained. As to the fern you might try repotting it or giving it some kind of fertilizer or plant food. It is rather difficult to advise when I do not know what treatment it has had hitherto—whether it has been overwatered or kept too dry.

Will Loan Invalid's Chair.

“I believe I know where there is a wheeled chair that will be gladly loaned to the sick man you mentioned in a recent paper. If you will let me have his address I will try to see that he has a chance to secure the chair as soon as possible. Also in reply to the inquiry of the woman who asked about lodges she could join. If she is near enough I will be pleased to call and see her and give her information. We are organizing a new order here which admits women on the same footing as men. This order, besides giving good social advantages, supplies a physician free in case of illness and a sick benefit of $10 per week to each beneficiary member, and pays funeral expenses. All white persons of good character, over 16 years of age, are eligible for membership. The initiation charge is $5, the members' dues are only $1 a month for full membership, and 25 cents a month for those wishing only social membership. Mrs. E. L. Y.”

The kindness of another friend has supplied this special sufferer to whom you refer with the wheeled chair, for which request was made, but I print your friendly offer in the knowledge that it will receive early acceptance. Thank you also for the information about the lodge you are forming. I am sure the information you give will be welcome to others besides the constitutent who asked for it in the first place.

Asks for Author's Name.

“Can you give me the author of the following quotation? If not, can some of your constituency help me out on the matter?

No one, I say, is conquered till he yields;
And yield he need not, while, like mist from glass,
God wipes the stain from Life's old battlefields
From every morning that he brings to pass.

“H. T. C.”

I wish with all my heart I knew the authorship of the lines for my own sake as well as for yours. It is a bit of genuine poetry which I value highly, but I do not know who wrote it. I shall await anxiously a reply to the query.

Lining with Grape Leaves.

“In a recipe which you give for pickles you say to line the kettle with grape leaves. Is it necessary to use them? I don't know where I could get them. I have never tried to make pickles, but would like to attempt some. Will you publish a recipe for sweet mixed pickles without either onions or peppers? I have eaten good cabbage pickle, but I don't know how it is made.

The grape leaves are not absolutely essential in pickle making, although veterans in the art think they make the pickles a finer green. They may be omitted without injuring the quality of the pickle. I am sorry to say that I cannot give you a recipe for sweet cabbage pickle. Perhaps some one of our Cornerites can help you out. If you will double the quantity of sugar called for in the cucumber pickle recipe, to which I refer, it will serve for sweet mixed pickles.

Helpful Home Study.

“I am a married woman—a young one—and want your advice as to some helpful books to study. I never had a chance to get an education and sometimes when my husband takes me out I am much embarrassed in conversation. I have a card at the library and if I knew some good studies to take up that would teach me words and their meaning and to use them, etc., I would be only too glad to study them.

Mrs. J. M.”

An appeal of this sort always touches me, for I have met women like you so often. Sometimes they have not had the chance to study because of the circumstances of their families, which forced early work upon every member of the household; sometimes they have been careless in youth and did not appreciate until too late the advantages of education. I am glad to give you what advice I can and I will begin by saying that I am afraid the study of words and their meaning will not help you in the way you wish.

My own counsel would be that you read good magazine articles on subjects of every day interest and books of history or dealing with events which come near you. Take, for instance, the history of the interesting state in which you live. If you begin to study that—and your librarian should be able to tell you the best book on the subject—you will find a whole field of interest opening before you.

When you read of the early missionaries in California, for instance, this will lead you to Parkman and his accounts of the Jesuits in the eastern part of the United States; the Spanish occupation of the state will turn your thoughts to the history of Spain and of all that it stood for in years past, to the discovery of America by a Spaniard, to the reign of the monarchs who fought with the English, and by that to much thrilling English history and the beginnings of the story of the United States.

Don't confine yourself to this but, if you can, join a class in current events or go to lectures on these; find out the important matters in state politics; read the daily papers and see what is going on in the world. Read the writings of our great authors and copy such portions of their books as appeal to you. Read Stevenson's essays and stories as a good beginning.

As to the use of words, the best plan is never to let one go by you without understanding it. Keep a dictionary at hand and look up every word which puzzles you, writing it out with its meaning to impress it upon your memory. You write a good hand (I wish you had used a pen and ink instead of pencil!) and you express yourself well. With these beginnings you ought not to feel discouraged. I shall be interested to learn if my advice is of any help to you and I wish you success with all my heart.

Both Signatures Omitted.

“Kindly give me the address of the woman who is willing to exchange sewing for children's clothes. She can phone or call upon me. Mrs. S. S. L.”

If you had given me the signature of the correspondent to whom you refer I might have been better able to help you, although your failure to sign your full name to your own letter would have stood in my way. We do not print addresses in the paper and the only method by which we can put one correspondent in touch with another is their adherence to the rule of giving the name signed to the letter of the one they wish to reach and also supplying their own correct names and addresses. Every week which passes sees chances of help lost because of the failure of the reader of the Corner to follow this simple plan. I am sorry I cannot help either you or the woman who wanted to sew in exchange for children's clothes.

An Overland Camping Tour.

“I am trying to get up an overland camping tour for the benefit of my wife's health. I want to spend the winter in the mountains between San Antonio and El Paso, where the winter is mild, then go to New Mexico for spring and summer. The doctor here told me if I would take my wife on such a trip as this the outdoor life would surely restore her health. Now, I am only a poor carpet layer, and what money I had when I came here is about gone, and I am not able to buy the outfit unless I could get some one to help me. It is hard to have to ask for any help, but I just cannot stand to see my poor wife in this condition when I believe such a trip will cure her. I gave up a good position to go south and I believe she has improved some, but the damp winters here will go hard with her and I must get her out. Work here in my line is not good, there being little carpet used and then negroes do it because they work cheap.

“If you cannot help me, you may know some one who has contracted lung trouble and would like to join me. I would be only too glad to do all the work in camp for their help in getting the outfit; then there is plenty of fish and game along the way, so after all the expenses would not be so much; the outfit could be sold afterwards. If you know of any one, please give them my address. J. R. M.”

I print this letter as it stands in the hope that it may meet the eye of some one who can be of service to the writer. I do not make an appeal for money, but I trust that there may be portions of an outfit for camping in the possession of one of our constituents who would be willing to give them for the benefit of the woman who needs the change to a dryer climate, or, as the writer says, there may be others who would like to join his company and help him by defraying their share of the expenses. Even to me, a woman, there is an attractiveness in the thought of such an expedition with all it means of outdoors and freedom. I hope there may be others who feel as I do and who can prove their faith by their works.

Putting Baby to Sleep.

“Will you tell me how to get my baby into regular habits of sleeping? He has been spoiled by the nurse who took charge of him and of me during the first month of his life and now he screams and cries when laid in his cradle and will not be quiet until I take him up and rock him in my arms. It breaks my heart to hear his cries, and I am afraid he will hurt himself. How can I get him to the point where he will go to sleep in his bed? A. L. M.”

The only way is to be firm about it and let him cry it out. This sounds hard hearted, but the screams hurt you a great deal more than they do him. If he is a sound and healthy baby—and on this your doctor can inform you—the lung exercise will not injure him and after he has tried it a few times he will learn that crying does no good and will reconcile himself to circumstances. Be sure that he is entirely comfortable so far as clothing is concerned, that he is not hungry or in pain, lay him in his cradle in a quiet corner and let him alone. If he cries a long while come in and change his position and make sure that he is all right, and then leave him alone. You will save him and yourself trouble and discomfort by instituting regular habits as soon as possible.

Recipe for Grape Wine.

“Will you kindly print in the Helping Hand a recipe for making grape wine and one for grape juice, preferably the latter, although I would appreciate the former. Also can you tell me how to can pineapples; whether they should be cooked, the length of time, etc. Mrs. W. H. H.”

The recipe for grape juice has just been given.

GRAPE WINE—Put the grapes, stems and all, into an open cask and mash them. Strain through a bag, pressing this to get out all the juice. To each quart of the juice allow half a pound of white sugar and put juice and sugar in a clean cask to ferment, covering the top or the bung hole with a piece of netting or cheese cloth. Let the juice and sugar ferment for three or four weeks, until it is clear and still, pour it off carefully, bottle it and seal. While the grape wine is fermenting it should be stirred up from the bottom frequently.

CANNED PINEAPPLE—Peel the fruit, cutting out the eyes, pick the fruit to pieces with a silver fork, holding in the left hand the stem with a cloth wrapped about it to protect your hand. Tear off all the fruit you can, leaving the core on the stem. Allow ten ounces of sugar to each pound of pineapple, put over the fire, and cook from ten to fifteen minutes. When the fruit is ready to can it should be clear. Turn into glass jars that have been rinsed out in hot water, putting the fruit in boiling hot and seal at once.

Religious Books for Young Folks.

“I have taken a homestead and am trying to make a home for myself and my children. I am a widow, 58 years of age, and not strong, but have to work hard to get along. I would be glad to receive any help in the way of making home attractive for my children, especially some good religious books. My boy takes great delight in Sunday school and meetings and has won a Bible twice for steady attendance at Sunday school. He is 13 years old and my girl is 17. Mrs. J. G.”

This appeal comes from Colorado. There must be religious reading and other reading, too, of a more miscellaneous character which will help to render this lonely home attractive to the brave woman who is trying to make a home for her boy and girl. Perhaps some one who reads this has a religious paper or a magazine or two she will undertake to send regularly to the “homestead.” I shall be more than glad to send the address to any one who seeks it.

Tent for Tubercular Patient.

“Do you know of a kind person who would be willing to dispose of a tent for a tubercular patient? I am unable to work at present and also have a family to care for. I would be glad if any one could help me out.

“A. J. H.”

Is such a “kind person” as the tubercular sufferer seeks for somewhere within reach so that the need can be supplied at comparatively small expense?

To Clean Black Crepe.

“Will you kindly furnish me with the address of the woman who asks for silk pieces? I have so many of them and would gladly send them to her if I had her address. Can you print directions for cleaning black crêpe de chine?

“Mrs. E. W.”

Another case of a failure to give the signature of the person making a request. With my large correspondence it is impossible for me to keep track of letters except by the signatures attached to them. By these signatures they are recorded in my index and without the name I cannot identify a letter.

My best success with crêpe de chine has been by washing it in water to which soap bark has been added. Rinse it well after washing, dry it in the shade, and press through a thick cloth while still damp. After such a treatment as this I have seen the silk look like new.

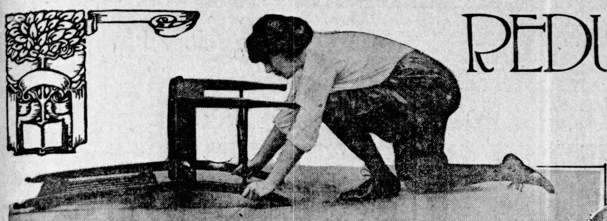
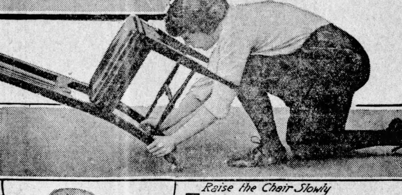
CONCERNING HEALTH and BEAUTY

By MRS. HENRY SYMES

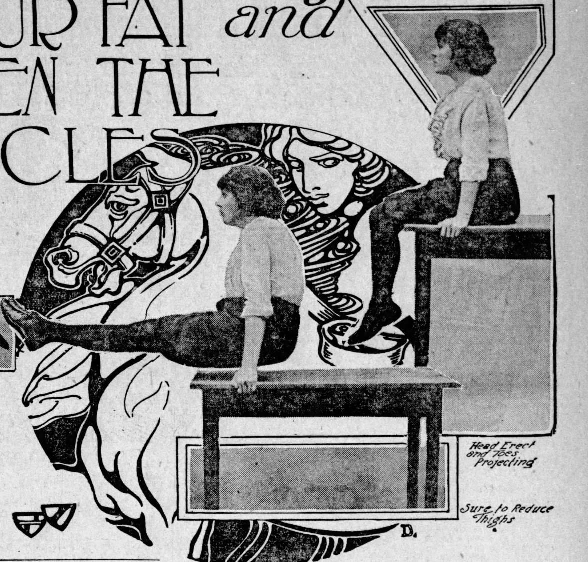
REDUCE YOUR FAT and HARDEN THE MUSCLES



Get a Firm Grip



Raise the Chair Slowly



Head Erect and Toes Projecting

Sure to Reduce Thighs

THERE are always a number of persons interested in ways to reduce superfluous fat, and I feel that my talk today is going to prove helpful to many readers. One thing must be remembered, however, and that is that every one who tries the methods prescribed must be persistent if he or she hopes to gain results.

Excessive fat is a disease and, like all diseases, it can be treated better and more quickly in its first stages. I laugh when I hear girls make the remark that they are getting too stout and that they intend to do something to reduce their weight. They let the many precious days and weeks pass before any attempt is made, and even then they give up in despair if a decrease is not seen in a day or so.

Dieting and exercising are the safest methods to follow, and as they cost nothing they are within the reach of all.

First of all, let us consider the foods which should be avoided. All foods which tend to produce fat must be shunned. These include wheat, rye, oatmeal, rice, potatoes, sago, pork, veal, rich soups, candy, ice cream, sweet cakes, white bread, etc. It is safe for the stout person to eat moderately beef, eggs, green vegetables, salads, fruits and dry bread. The appetite must be controlled as much as possible. Never eat between meals. The person who weighs too much is usually guilty of doing all the things she should not do, and for this reason it will be hard for her to curtail at first; but by degrees it will be easier for her to abstain and cling to the things which are better for her.

Now for the exercises which will help to harden the muscles and burn up the excessive fat.

Before starting any exercise all tight clothing should be removed, the room well ventilated and the mind ready to follow intelligently the directions stated.

There can be performed with a chair a feat which will develop a beautiful, firm arm and at the same time strengthen the muscles of the abdomen. You can do it if you will try. Place a chair in a recumbent position, kneel before it, as shown in the illustration, and grasp the back legs of the chair near the bottom. Without raising these legs from the ground bring the back of the chair up from the ground. Lower it again and then repeat.

If your figure is spoiled by having flabby thighs and legs, start right away to make the muscles of these parts firm and solid. Sit erect on a small but strong table. Maintain an erect position. It is important in all exercises that the head be held in an erect position. Twenty-three pounds is the average weight of the head, and it is therefore necessary to have it poised properly if one is to have proper balance.

Hold the feet together and extend the toes so that the muscles of the legs are rigid. Now raise the legs until they are at right angle to the body. Having assumed this position, raise the body from the table until it is supported by the hands. This is one of the most efficacious exercises for the thighs. Hold th position long enough to prove to yourself that you are master of the situation.

How many girls and women can jump from a height in a graceful manner and without injuring themselves? I am sure that not many of you can do so now, but after practicing the directions I am about to give you will be able to jump from an unbelievable distance. This exercise will not only teach grace and agility, but it will reduce the weight generally.

You can use an ordinary ladder. It is preferable to begin at the bottom of the ladder and work up. I advise you to spread a quilt, or something equally soft, before the ladder, so that the force of your weight will be somewhat broken. While jumping the body should be held well forward, and though you will alight on your toes, the heels should be rather close to the ground, so that there will be a spring and the weight will be divided.

Practice these exercises with an earnest and sincere desire to improve the figure. To have firm muscles it is necessary that good blood pass through them, and to have good blood it is necessary to have proper circulation. Daily exercise will give both.

ANSWERS TO BEAUTY QUERIES

REPLIES to letters to the writer of this department will be printed in regular order; but no replies in print may be expected in less than three or four weeks.

Correspondents desiring immediate replies to queries may get them by inclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope. Personal inquiries will receive prompt attention if accompanied by a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Hair Falls Out

Dear Mrs. Symes.

My hair is falling out in great quantities. I had quite a fever a few months ago and wonder if this could be the reason for the poor condition of my hair. What shall I do to prevent it from falling?

DISCOURAGED.

Fever will often cause the hair to fall out. The best thing for you to do is to rub a few drops of castor oil into the scalp every day. After the massage brush the hair gently. If you will do this regularly you will soon see an improvement in your hair.

The Eyelashes

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Does it increase the length of the eyelashes to cut them occasionally?

MILDRED.

Not at all. It is a mistake to imagine that the growth of the eyelashes is stimulated by this practice. The best thing to do is to apply melted vaseline to the eyelids; but great care should be taken that none gets into the eyes.

To Reduce the Abdomen

Dear Mrs. Symes.

I am a woman 35 years of age and have a rather prominent abdomen. Do you think I could reduce it to normal size?

A READER.

First of all, see to it that you stand correctly. Assuming the wrong position when standing and walking is often responsible for a protuberant abdomen. Also practice this exercise: In standing position, clasp the hands over the abdomen. Contract the muscles of the abdomen and bend at the hips six times, keeping the muscles well contracted throughout the bending. Rest by taking thr deep breaths between each exercise.

Toilet Water

Dear Mrs. Symes.

I should like to know of a good toilet water to scent the bath. Have you the recipe for one?

EDNA.

A very pleasant toilet water is made of:

Lavender flowers	7 ounces
Alcohol	8 fluid ounces
Diluted acetic acid	58 fluid ounces

Use only enough water to give a delicate odor.

Red Cheeks

Dear Mrs. Symes.

I used to have red cheeks, but since I have been working in an office the color is hardly noticeable any more. I live four miles from the city and do not have time to walk to work, but do you think I might regain the color if I were to walk part of the way home at night?

WORRIED.

You will receive great benefits if you form the habit of walking part of the way home at night. In a short time you will have gained speed and will be able to increase the distance covered every evening. Since you are obliged to be indoors all day, keep the office well ventilated and be sure to have plenty of fresh air in your bedroom at night.

For the Teeth

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Will you kindly inform me whether it is better to use cold or warm water when cleaning the teeth?

ANNA.

Warm water is a better solvent than cold. With the water you should use a good tooth paste to produce friction.

The Effect of Vinegar

Dear Mrs. Symes.

My daughter is very fond of vinegar, and I am sure it is not wise for her to take too much of it. What do you think?

E. T. Y.

The acid of vinegar, being a fermentation acid, renders the digestion of many foods with which it is taken more difficult, while vegetable acids, such as lemon juice and citric or tartaric acid, do not cause that objectionable effect. Whenever it is convenient it would be well for you to substitute lemon juice for the vinegar. Too much vinegar is sure to injure the digestion.

Moist Hands

Dear Mrs. Symes.

On the coldest day my hands are moist. I know this condition comes from my nerves. I am taking treatment for them now. In the meantime what can I use on my hands to make them more comfortable?

KATHERINE.

Fuller's earth used as a dusting powder often relieves the uncomfortable condition you mention.

Suitable Clothing

Dear Mrs. Symes.

When one is in a heated office all day do you think it necessary for her to wear heavy underclothing in the winter?

X. Y. Z.

If a person has a comfortable office in which she spends the most of her time it does not seem necessary for her to wear heavy clothing indoors. She should provide herself with a woolen garment which she can slip on under her coat when it is necessary to go out in severe weather.

Recipe for Sachet

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Please give me the recipe for a sachet which has a rose scent.

D.

Following is a recipe for a sachet which you will find satisfactory:

Rose Sachet Powder

Powdered Florentine orris	4 ounces
Rose leaves (air dried)	10 ounces
Musk in powder	10 grains
Lavender flowers	1 ounce

Mix well and keep closely corked until you wish to use for the sachet.

To Reduce the Hips

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Kindly give me an exercise for reducing the hips.

W. F.

Here is an exercise which, if persisted in, will reduce the hips: Lie extended upon the floor, supporting yourself by one hand, while the other is placed upon the hip. While holding this position raise the body gradually from the floor until the whole weight is supported by the hand and feet. It is comparatively easy to get the body from the floor as far as the knees, but to bring it up to the full extent is not so easy at first. It should be tried first on one side then on the other. When beginning this exercise you should be careful to get used to it gradually.

In Cold Weather

Dear Mrs. Symes.

When I go out in the winter I get chilled through and I wear very warm clothing. What can I do to be more comfortable, as it is necessary for me to go out every day?

EMMA.

I am afraid that you depend more on your clothes than on your circulation for warmth. As you walk along the street practice deep breathing. Inhale and hold the breath for eight seconds, and then exhale, and do the same thing over again. Remember that the breathing must be deep if you are to derive any benefit from the exercise. Walk fast, and if you are obliged to stand any length of time, swing the arms in driver's fashion and mark time with your feet. If a girl is well, there is no excuse for her being chilly.

To Rest the Feet

Dear Mrs. Symes.

I do my own housework. When I stand for any length of time my feet sting dreadfully. How can I avoid this?

MARGARET.

When it is necessary for you to stand in one place for a long time, place an old blanket, folded in several thicknesses, under your feet. Arrange the improvised rug so that it is easy to stand on.

Cure for Chilblains

Dear Mrs. Symes.

As soon as possible please tell me what can be done for chilblains.

MARTHA.

I am giving you a splendid cure for the trouble you mention:

Zinc oxide	60 grains
Camphor powder	30 grains
Myrrh powder	30 grains
Opium powder	30 grains
Lard	1 ounce

Dissolve the camphor in the lard, which has been melted at a gentle heat; allow this to cool, add other ingredients and mix well.

Before making this application the part should be immersed or bathed in cold water for a few minutes. In drying, it is always better to mop the part, so as to avoid the consequences of violent friction.

A Good Complexion

Dear Mrs. Symes.

My complexion is in very good condition, but I wish you would tell me just what I should do to keep it so.

MARY.

Plenty of water inside and out, life in the fresh air, the following of a sensible diet, a great deal of exercise and sufficient sleep are necessary if you would keep your complexion perfect.

The Brush to Use

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Will you kindly tell me what is a good brush to use on the hair? I am going to try the brushing method to increase the length of my hair.

AGNES.

Select a brush that has bristles stiff enough to stimulate the scalp, but do not have them so stiff that they irritate the scalp. The proper stiffness of a brush depends upon the sensitiveness of the scalp.

In order to have healthy and beautiful hair, the brush should be frequently washed. Nothing is better for cleansing brushes than ammonia. Put a teaspoonful of it into a quart of water, soak the bristles in the solution, keeping the back of the brush out of the water. Then rinse the bristles in fresh water and dry with the bristles down.

To Develop the Arms

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Kindly give me an exercise to develop the arms.

A. B. C.

Take an erect position, body rigid, head braced; with hands tightly clenched, extend the arms above the head as far as possible. Now bend the arms at elbows, and with the hands turned downward at the wrist drop the hands till the thumbs touch the shoulders. Extend the arms again to first position. The arm and shoulder muscles will be developed and the circulation of the upper part of the body stimulated.

Skin Food for the Hands

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Will you please give me the recipe for a cream which may be used to nourish the hands?

BEATRICE.

Cocoa butter	1 ounce
Oil of sweet almonds	1 ounce
Oxide of zinc	1 dram
Borax	1 dram
Oil of bergamot	6 drops

Heat the cocoa butter and oil of almonds in a double boiler, and when thoroughly blended add the zinc and borax; stir as it cools, and add the oil of bergamot last. Rub into the hands at night.

When Walking

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Will you please tell me what is the correct position for the body when walking?

AUGUSTA.

When walking, the chin and abdomen should be held in and the chest should be held out. The legs should swing from the hips and not bend mainly from the knees. The trunk should sway very little. The arms, while they must not be thrown forward and backward in an ungainly manner, must not be held rigidly at the side. One reason why many women do not walk correctly is that they do not wear proper shoes.

Cure for Dandruff

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Kindly tell me how to make the sulphur cure for dandruff.

AGNES.

To an ounce of sulphur add a quart of soft water and during intervals of several days agitate the mixture repeatedly. After the sulphur has settled to the bottom of the receptacle, use the clear liquid. Saturate the head with it every morning, and in a few weeks every trace of the dandruff will have disappeared. The hair will become soft and glossy, and there will be no return of the old trouble.

This remedy, however, will darken light hair.

Brilliantine Recipe

Dear Mrs. Symes.

My hair is very dull in appearance, and I should like to have a recipe for a brilliantine which will not harm the growth of the hair.

ALICE J.

You should try to put new life in your hair by massaging the scalp and brushing the hair thoroughly every day. I shall give you the brilliantine recipe so that you may use it until the treatment gives the hair a natural luster.

Sweet almond oil	8 fluid ounces
Alcohol	4 fluid ounces
Glycerin	1 fluid ounce
Oil of rose geranium	12 drops

For Perspiring Feet

Dear Mrs. Symes.

What can I do to stop my feet from perspiring? The rest of my body perspires a little, but not to any great excess.

E. T.

It is necessary for the body to perspire, for in this way the temperature of the body is regulated and the secretion of the water keeps the skin soft and pliable. When one perspires excessively one should consult a physician, for the secretion of sweat is under sensitive nervous control and is susceptible to various influences. For temporary relief bathe the feet twice a day in cold water if possible, or in tepid water if the cold water is too much of a shock to your system. After drying them rub alcohol into the skin and then sprinkle a powder over them. Here is the recipe for a pleasant one:

Salicylic acid	20 scruples
Boric acid	1 dram
Talcum powder	1 ounce

Filing the Nails

Dear Mrs. Symes.

I find it so difficult to file my nails into a regular shape. How can I learn to do this?

BERTHA.

To get your nails into good shape it is advisable for you to go to a competent manicure. Follow the line she will form and you will not have any more difficulty, I am sure.

Sores on the Face

Dear Mrs. Symes.

I have two sores on my face near the mouth. Some one suggested that they are signs of indigestion. Do you think this is the cause?

L. P.

Frequently indigestion will cause the face to break out, but I advise you to consult a physician and do no guessing about the matter.

An Astringent

Dear Mrs. Symes.

I should be most grateful if you will publish the recipe for an astringent.

REBECCA.

A very good astringent can be made of the following ingredients:

Oil of sweet almonds	6 ounces
White wax	3 ounces
Tincture benzoin	1½ ounces
Rosewater	1½ ounces
Pulverized tannin	6 drams

To Cleanse the Skin

Dear Mrs. Symes.

I work in a department store, and when returning home at night my face feels very grimy. What is the best way to cleanse the pores? I do not care to use a cream on my face.

R. G.

First of all, cleanse the face with warm water and an agreeable soap. Then rinse the skin with water to which a little witch hazel has been added. You can use two tablespoonfuls of the latter to about a quart of water. This lotion will prove refreshing as well as cleansing.

To Remove Warts

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Will you kindly tell me what I may use to get rid of some warts that are on my hand?

ETHEL.

I advise you to use the wart eradicator, for which here is the recipe:

Sublimed sulphur	120 grains
Glycerin	5 fluid drams
Acetic acid	1 fluid dram

Apply repeatedly to each wart, continuing the treatment for several days. The warts dry up and then drop off.

To Remove Vermin

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Pease tell me what to do to remove nits from the hair.

A READER.

Kerosene applied to the hair will remove the nits. Comb and brush the hair thoroughly and wash it. It may be necessary to repeat the process to entirely cleanse the hair.

ADVICE ON SOCIAL CUSTOMS

Mrs Chester Adams
most cordially invites her friends to bring to her their Social Problems and Perplexities
by letter at any time

[If a personal reply is desired, a self-addressed stamped envelope should be inclosed.]

THE BRIDE'S GIFTS

VERY soon after the invitations for a wedding have been issued the bride will receive gifts, which she must personally acknowledge as soon as they arrive. This is the accepted way now. There was a time when a bride was allowed several months in which to send her thanks to the donors of gifts, but express and delivery service is so complicated now that it is only courteous to the guests to acknowledge gifts, so that they will know of their safe receipt. Much anxiety and uncertainty concerning the delivery of a gift is thus eliminated.

The best way is to have a book in which the name of the gift, its donor and address are entered, and the whole line can be checked off when the present is acknowledged. The absence of a card ought to be signified, with any other facts that might lead to locating the sender.

Do not write notes too effusive. Be sincere in your appreciation and expression of thanks, and above all, do not criticise unkindly gifts that you will designate as the "loveliest" that you have received. Remember that all tastes may not be like yours, and that a gift that might not be admired by you has taken thought, time and money to select. Appreciate the thought, above all things.

The notes can be short, and it is generally best to have the husband's name joined with yours in acknowledging gifts that arrive after the marriage. An invitation to your new home to see the gift in its setting is a graceful way to extend hospitality.

I feel that your own expression at the pleasure of receiving a gift is always the best. Write from the heart, and you will have no difficulty in ringing true. I am going to give you a copy of a note that I received recently from a bride. It shows how well it can be done. Do not copy it, but it will give you an idea which can be followed when you write your notes of acknowledgment.

174 Grand Boulevard.
September 14, 1913.

Dear Mrs. Adams:

I wonder if you knew how I have longed for a Sheraton candlestick! It will serve to light the way into our library, which I feel sure you knew to be planned in this style. The thought behind the gift will always be appreciated. I wish you to come to prove for yourself how much the gift itself will contribute to the light of our home.

Robert, who is nearly crazy about the old things (including me, if you please), joins me in grateful appreciation.

Sincerely yours,
CAROLINE DALE.

You see how natural that little note is? There is no stilted, set form of acknowledgment, and the personality of the writer is undeniable.

If wedding gifts are displayed, they are placed in a room on tables or white muslin-covered stands, and no cards shown. If cards accompany the gifts, they are turned face down, for obvious reasons.

Acknowledge your gifts up to the last minute, and if any late arrivals are neglected see that all cards are kept and finish the list as soon as you return from the wedding trip.

SOLUTIONS TO SOCIAL PROBLEMS

Who Leads?

DEAR Mrs. Adams.

When a man and woman enter the dining room of a hotel, which one should lead the way?

D. T.

If it is not convenient for both to enter together the man should lead the way when entering the dining room the first time. After that, if the same table is theirs every day, the woman enters the room first and proceeds to her seat.

Eating Fish

Dear Mrs. Adams.

Is it proper to cut fish with a knife when eating it?

THELMA.

Resigning Her Place

Dear Mrs. Adams.

When a man has given me a seat in a car and a woman with a baby enters, would it be proper for me to offer her my place?

E. R. G.

Yes.

Acknowledging a Gift

Dear Mrs. Adams.

If a gift for a bride should arrive during the ceremony, should the bride wait until after the honeymoon to acknowledge the same?

IDA.

Under such circumstances the gift should be acknowledged as soon as possible after the ceremony. It would be unkind to wait until after the honeymoon to let one's friend know that the gift reached its destination safely.

The Bread and Butter Plate

Dear Mrs. Adams.

Where is the bread and butter plate placed? Should the small knife be on it?

ANXIOUS.

The bread and butter plate is placed at the end of the forks on the upper left-hand side of the plate. The small knife should be on the plate.

When to Rise

Dear Mrs. Adams.

Please tell me the rule about rising when introduced to a man or woman?

FLORENCE.

A hostess should always rise to accept an introduction to either a man or woman. A woman while a guest at a dinner, ball or an afternoon tea does not rise when a man is presented to her; nor when she is one of a group to which a woman is introduced, unless the woman is much older than herself or a person of distinction. In all other circumstances a woman rises to receive an introduction to one of her own sex.

Thanking a Man

Dear Mrs. Adams.

Is it polite to thank a man for taking me to the theater?

Should I get a man's coat and hat from the hall rack for him when he is calling on me?

ANNA.

Yes; you should let him know that you enjoyed the play.

No; let him get these himself.

Eating Tomatoes

Dear Mrs. Adams.

Will you kindly inform me whether stewed tomatoes are eaten with a fork or a spoon?

E. F.

A Widow's Card

Dear Mrs. Adams.

Will you please tell me how a widow should have her visiting cards engraved?

IN DOUBT.

A widow is at liberty to retain her husband's Christian name on her card, or to use instead her own; as, for example, the widow of John Craig Smith may have her cards read either "Mrs. John Craig Smith," or "Mrs. Eleanor Louise Smith." Quite frequently, however, a widow uses her maiden surname with the surname of her deceased or divorced husband.

Inviting Men to Call

Dear Mrs. Adams.

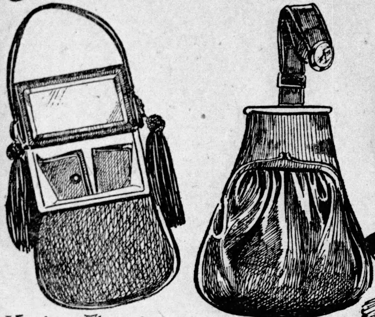
Is it customary and proper for a young woman to ask a man acquaintance to call?

A READER.

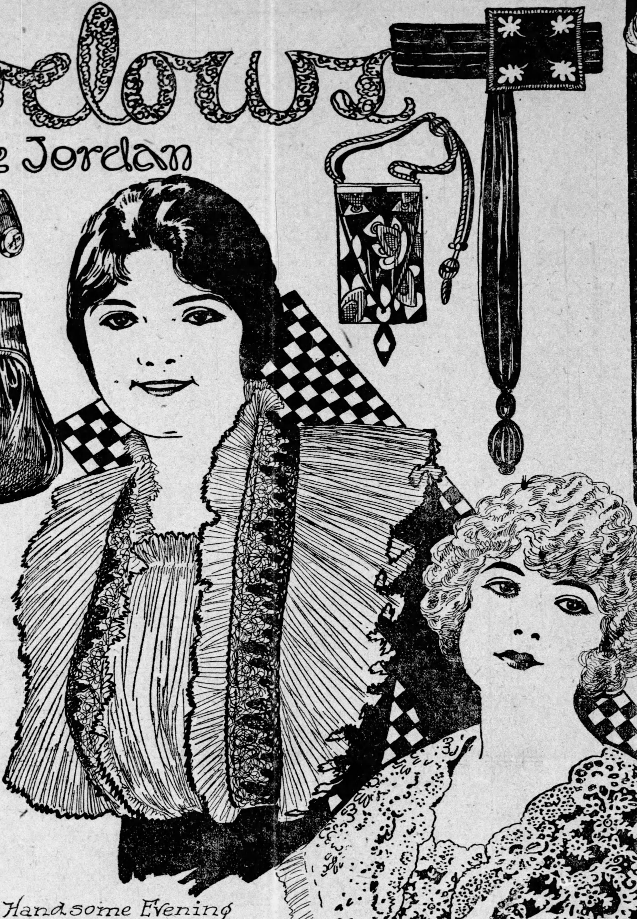
In certain localities a woman takes upon herself the right to invite men friends to call, while in other sections a woman expects a man first to ask this privilege. Both methods possess about equal advantages and disadvantages. A woman must let her common sense advise her.

Fall Frills And Furbelows

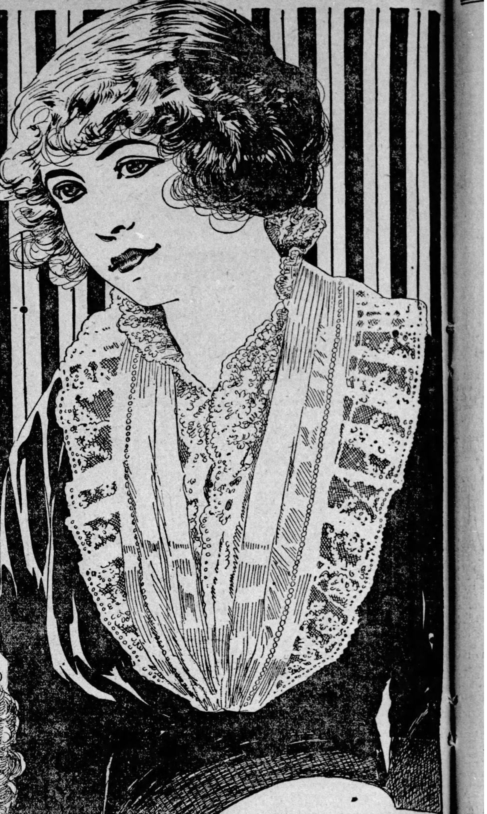
By Josephine Jordan



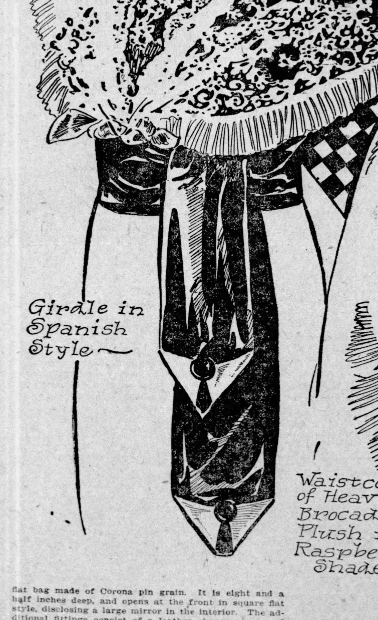
Vanity Fitted Hand Bag



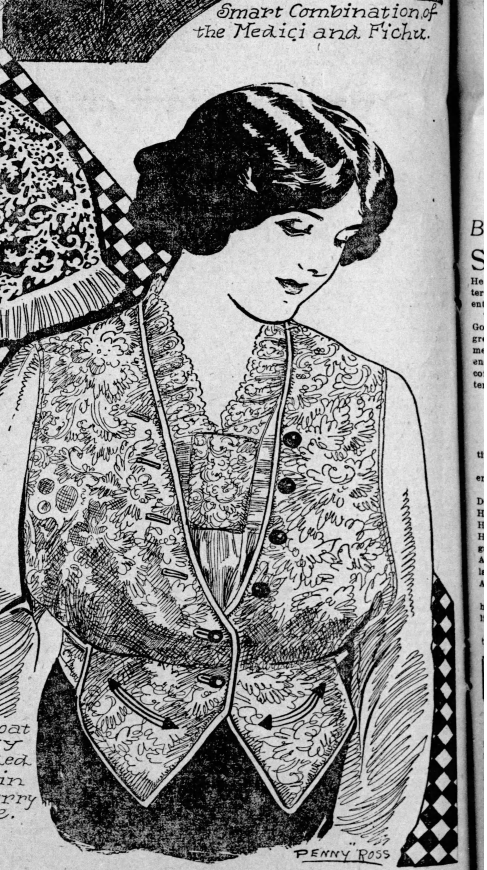
Handsome Evening Beaded Guimpe



Smart Combination of the Medici and Fichu.



Girdle in Spanish Style—



Waistcoat of Heavy Brocaded Plush in Raspberry Shade.

THERE is no time in the year when frills and furbelows are more luring to the feminine purse than in the fall. This year they are especially attractive, and lucky is the feminine shopper who can resist their fascinations.

This season's fluffy frills for the neck are perhaps the loveliest things that Dame Fashion has ever approved of. They are myriad in number, and so individually charming that no fall wardrobe will be without at least two or three of them. They are in all styles, from the simplest little tailored stocks to the most elaborate beruffled guimpes.

Some of the latest neckwear combine collar, vest, and jabot, and quite transfigure a simple costume. This season, more than ever before, the little details of a suit are characteristic of its style. The simplicity of the prevailing styles admits of much garniture as to frills. And they are all delightfully feminine. They give a soft fluffiness to the costume that is invariably becoming. These combinations of trimmings are particularly suitable for fall, since they have a wonderfully furbishing up effect on the late spring suit that is doing service for early fall wear.

One of the newest and most attractive novelties of the season is the guimpe. It comes in all styles, from the very practical plain little guimpe that forms the yoke and undersleeves of the semi-tailored blouse, to the ultra-dressy models that are suitable foundations for elaborate costumes. Low necks predominate in the guimpes. One very fetching model, which is plain enough for semi-dressy wear, is made of very fine net, which is tucked on either side of the opening in the front. Lovely frills of lace outline the very low neck, and extend into a Medici collar in the back. Its loveliness is the result of the extreme filminess of the lace, which would make any face sweet to look upon.

One of the new uses for the guimpe is as an overblouse. Fashioned of dainty shadow lace, with soft frills, it is worn over a dark silk blouse, to give a touch of daintiness to a plain waist. There are no sleeves. The armhole is just long enough to be comfortable, but no longer. It is very frankly a little lace overblouse without any pretensions aside from decoration. It has an unbelievably chic effect, however, and it will be popular with those women who are zealous followers of Dame Fashion in her daintiest moods.

* *

Another fancy of fashion are bright little waistcoats. Utterly stripped of masculine lines, they are the most charming little garments imaginable. They are gay or sombre in tone, but always fetching, and always splendid as to buttons. All sorts of rich and beautiful fabrics are used for these waistcoats. Not only silks, brilliant and multicolored, and warm thick cloths, but also short and long silky-napped plushes, with collars that may be opened when indoors and closed in a cozy, comfortable manner when out of doors. At last an underjacket can be worn by the most fastidious.

One particularly bizarre but handsome effect in a waistcoat was of heavy brocaded plush in a raspberry shade. The waistcoat was used with a dull green velour suit. The outline of the brocade was traced in gold thread and the buttons were handsome balls of gold. The one touch of contrasting color on many of the new fall suits is found in the brilliant little waistcoats. No blaze of glory is too violent for the fancy of fashion. They are perhaps the gayest bits of trimming that have been used for many seasons. And yet they are so attractive that few suits will be without them this season.

The little vestettes are also most attractive. They are the vests without a back, which are used on the simpler costumes. One very fetching one was made of white silk with a wide black stripe. A small black satin collar in tuxedo effect outlined the neck opening, and a stiff double frill of wide plaited chiffon made the entire effect extremely feminine and attractive.

* *

Fichus are the most charming and the most universally becoming neckwear that comes to us from the designers. Many of the newest styles are draped in typical Marie Antoinette fashion, instead of being attached to a collar. Combinations of the fichu and the Medici ideas appear in some of the smartest types. On the fichus there is much dainty embroidery. Very often the collar, a long, graceful shape, is embroidered in the daintiest of colors, and the scalloped edge is finished with a frill of soft net. Colored silks are combined with soft frillings to form fichus that are most attractive with a dark costume. An unusual fichu effect was gained by the use of very wide applique lace. The scalloped edge was turned toward the neck. Mitered in the back, the lace fell from the shoulders to the high waist line in a soft, graceful line. The outer edge was finished with a frill of soft knife pleating in net, and the ends were gathered into a lovely lace bow. Very often the finish of the fichu is a dainty artificial flower or a lace rose or a fancy tie in a bright color.

It would seem that no fancy neckwear could be without the charming plaiting which does so much to soften the straight lines of the tailored suit or garment. It is used everywhere—around collars of all sorts, as a neck finishing in the Medici effect, around the cuffs.

One of the most important and interesting fashion developments of the summer is the black and white use of the tunic. Most fetching is the white lace tunic over a black satin gown. It entirely tranforms the gown. The lace is usually a very handsome shadow or chantilly, and it is, more often than not, of a clinging soft silk texture. The black tulle tunic over a white satin gown is even more alluring. Tunics are sure to be one of the fads of the season.

* *

Girdles are another of the fall furbelows that will adorn almost every costume. They are of every shape and size and color. White girdles are worn very often with light afternoon dresses. One fetching one is made of white moire in a simple folded fashion, with one plaited end, which may be placed wherever it looks well on the gown. The black satin girdle, with the sash which is knotted over the hips, seems to be well liked by the designers. It is invariably finished with fringe or tassels or balls. This year sashes seem omnipresent, and only on the strictly tailored suit is the sash omitted. There are a few sashless girdles made of plaited ribbon, with a ribbon buckle and a ribbon bow, which is worn directly in the front of the gown, with a slight raising to give the high waisted effect. It is particularly attractive in Germanian red. The true harem note is seen in the single sash end hanging straight at the center front of the dress, and weighted by a handsome adornment or a rich tassel.

Plaid ribbons are extremely popular for use in girdles. Odd block effects in very handsome ribbons are a new product of the designer's search for the unusual. There is a novel surah ribbon in rich reds that looks like a glorified paisley shawl. It decorated a haremesque gown of white crêpe de chine, and it was lovely, indeed. The new bayadere is featured with wide stripes in mingled reds, yellows, and greens on a Delft blue background. No amount of description can do justice to the color harmony of this most brilliant of the new designs. Some of the ribbons are entirely different from anything that has ever been used before.

One of the most popular forms of adjustment of the sash is on the military order. The ribbon is run twice around the waist and knotted tightly on the left hip. A more extreme adjustment of the knot is to place it in the center front or in the center back. The ends fall nearly to the knees when the knot is tied in the front. A fashionable girdle of most attractive lines is a long piece of black satin, five inches wide, lined with white satin. The ends are turned back and caught with a covered button. It is worn in the Spanish style, knotted once about the waist.

The fall always seems the time for the appreciation of the clever new designs in handbags. Much of the ingenuity of the designers has gone into the fashioning of the fittings, although there are a number of new frames. The cigar case type is perhaps the most conspicuous among the new models. This model, which is perfectly flat when closed, has a roomy interior, and affords a liberal number of compartments, several of which contain the regulation vanity fittings. The envelope shaped bag continues to be popular. An extreme novelty of the season is the hand embroidered moiré bag. The embroidery is done in small designs, representing scattered floral effects, giving a Dresden appearance. Large silk tassels are conspicuous ornaments on the new hand bags. One model is a very flat bag made of Corona pin grain. It is eight and a half inches deep, and opens at the front in square flat style, disclosing a large mirror in the interior. The additional fittings consist of a leather change purse and a leather card case. Another neat model is the muff bag. It is made of black suede, and is pleated into a covered frame. The interesting feature about the bag is the placing of the loop handle at the front of the bag. It is nine inches in length and four inches deep. It is moiré lined and has an interior compartment lined with white kid and inclosed in a brass frame.

A handsome ten inch bag in brown genuine seal is fitted with most attractive vanities in plated gold—a cologne bottle, a vanity case, and a hairpin case, and the leather card case. On the outside of the bag is a large compartment that can be used for a handkerchief or papers.

Another bag has fittings of silver vanity cases which can be detached from the bag and carried separately if desired.

There are frills and furbelows for every fashionable maid. Everything is chic this year, with the fluffiest and daintiest of feminine alluringness.

FATHER OF 21 CHILDREN

Twenty-one children have been born to John Thomas Hagan since his marriage in 1863. Eleven of these children are now alive; among them is Lee Hagan, of Hagan-Dodd company, manufacturers. John Thomas Hagan makes his home with his children who live here. He is 77 years old, and yet he is in vigorous health.

By Angus Perkerson

SINCE his marriage in 1863, twenty-one children have been born to John Thomas Hagan. He is seventy-seven and three-quarter years old, and will complete seventy-eight years upon December 28.

"I have found," he says, "that Godliness with contentment is the greatest gain. I have seldom eaten meat, for I hold that flesh as food encourages old age. I never drink coffee or tea, for I believe that buttermilk prolongs youth.

"My rules of life are:

"Don't worry.

"Don't drink.

"Don't smoke.

"Don't eat meat in great quantity."

Lee Hagan, president of Hagan-Dodd company, manufacturers; John Hagan, of the same company; Walter Hagan, of Opelika, Ala.; Mrs. Cora Hughey, of Atlanta; Miss Leah Hagan, of Atlanta; Miss Lena Hagan, of Augusta; Miss Mary Hagan, of Atlanta; and Miss Margaret Hagan, of Atlanta.

He was married in Charlotte in the midst of the Civil war, to Miss Terris, whose father was from Philadelphia; and in 1865 he made his residence permanently in Atlanta. Eleven years ago his wife died.

CHILDREN HAVE SCATTERED.

At the time of her death, eighteen of their children were living. These children have scattered, and their number has been thinned by death.

Of the eleven who are living, none has greater vigor than John Thomas Hagan, who is 77 3-4 years old, and will be 78 upon December 28.

"I could walk to Stone Mountain and not feel it," he says. "Not so long ago, I walked to and from Kirkwood, daily. I am young in my old age because I have eaten little meat and have drunk no liquors or tea or coffee. I think, too, that buttermilk has helped to prolong my youth.

"Meat causes the arteries to harden; and, as you know, that is the condition that brings on old age. Upon the other hand, a sensible diet without flesh foods keeps the body young and the spirits light and hopeful.

"I have no complaint of how I feel except that I seldom sleep enough. I doubt that I average more than six hours of sleep a night. But when you are old, there is no building-up of the tissues to go on, and you can do with less sleep.

"Another reason why I stay young is that I never worry. I have learned that worry seldom lightens trouble, and most often is a means of shortening your days and your happiness.

"People need to live simply, to care less for money, to think more of health, and to learn Godliness and contentment.

RULE OF LIFE.

"My rule of life is a passage from the Bible:

"Godliness with contentment is great gain."

"Be content with your lot, whatever it is, though better it as much as you may, and your life will he happy, no matter under what conditions it is lived. After all, there is little to worry over and much to be happy at.

"The fault is, we think too much of money and of foolish amusements of the old generations. It is much better to live in the sweet, fresh country, where you can occasionally think of God.

ERRORS OF THE YOUNG.

"Young folks look upon such a life as that, as they would upon existence in a convent or a monastery. But they have been brought up with the wrong notions. They have as exaggerated an idea of what living really is as that moving picture had of Christ.

"There is no happiness without frugality, honesty, simplicity, Godliness, and contentment. Neither can a man be happy if he is single, and I scarcely see how he can be happy i he is married and childless.

"I also think that hard work is necessary to one's peace of mind. And if you live right otherwise the work will be an aid to your physical well-being. When I had a produce store just after the war closed and reconstruction times had begun, I worked from 8 in the morning until 12 at night.

"As I closed my store I would meet the policeman who went off duty at midnight. He would just be starting for home and he would say:

"Quitting soon, are you!"

He was a man that liked a joke when he liked one, and never bothered with new witticisms.

But my night work did me not the least harm. Talk of eight hours a day. What men need now is frugality, simplicity, little meat, no tea and coffee. So, may they work long and live happily.

that waste our time and substance. Until a month or so ago I had never visited a theater of moving pictures. But my daughter insisted that I should see the life of Christ as it was shown from Bethlehem to Calvary. It was interesting, but I am something of a student of the Bible, and this picture seemed too highly colored. There was too much surging back and forth, too many mobs, too little of the meekness of Christ.

"If a young man wishes to be happy, it is not hard for him to have his wish. Choose his wife carefully, then move out into the country, even away from railroads. That is the only way to live simply. You can't do so in the cities. The distractions are too many, conditions will force you to follow the extravagant and the foolish ways of your neighbors.

"You will spend too freely, you will think too much of money, you will lose the vigor and the hardihood

COMRADES THREE.

"During a part of the war, I, an Englishman, and a third man, who must have been Scotch, owned the only envelope making machine in the south, and we had it here and did work for the Confederacy. The Englishman smuggled that machine out of New York into Canada, and then began, by easy stages, to bring it to Atlanta. For awhile it was hidden in the cellar of my brother's home. Then, at last, we got it this far south and set up to make envelopes for Jeff Davis. I remember that at one time I had as many as forty-five employes working at this business of making envelopes.

"Afterward, I enlisted as a southern soldier, and fought in not a few battles. Before the war ended, I was married; and when it had closed, I returned to Atlanta. But the devastation here discouraged me to such a degree that I went to Rome, thinking perhaps it would be better to set up there in business.

"Yet, my better judgment sent me back to Atlanta, and here I grew up with the city. At the close of the war, there was chaos throughout the south. None could look forward and see what cities would grow and what would stagnate, what sections prosperity would choose and what it would avoid.

"But despite my first feeling of hopelessness at sight of the ruins of Atlanta, I soon came to believe that the future held great promise for this city. There was something about Atlanta, even then, that was vigorous and inspiriting. It was a city of promise, although it was a city of ruins. At once, it started to rebuild, and to set itself upon the road of progress.

"Atlanta has been like an indomitable individual: never beaten, never discouraged, always determined I am reminded of Robert Louis Stevenson when he said that he thanked God 'he was free to hope and free to love.' The optimism is the same

TO HOPE AND TO LOVE.

"So it should be with all men Never should the time come, no matter how thick misfortunes are, when you could not say that you thanked God 'you were free to hope and free to love.'

"Those are blessings which all mankind is free to enjoy and which are sufficient for happiness. I have no patience with the grumbler, the laggard, the man who fails to assume his proper responsibilities.

"There is little reason for discouragement and not much use in regret. Live with good sense and manliness, and failures need cause you no worry. Everybody's success is a succession of failures.

"The trouble is that so few realize what is success. People are too much concerned with seeking money The unhappy marriages caused by money are numberless. When you make everything practical, measure happiness, love, humanity, all by the standard of money, you are foolish.

"The man or the woman who marries for money deserves our hearty sympathy, for neither could be much more miserable if he or she had tried arson or murder or theft or some other crime. To marry for money is to defeat the purpose at which you aim. It is an absurd thing to do.

"To reach old age and not to know the comfort and the love of children is an immeasurable misfortune. It is the one failure in life.

"Remember: Godliness with contentment is the greatest gain.

"To much meat makes you old before your time.

"Liquors, tea and coffee shorten your days and your happiness.

"Buttermilk prolongs your youth."

Is the Immigrant Given a Chance?

CHICAGO.—Does America give the immigrant a chance? Well, it seems to depend largely on the immigrant. At least, that's what Elfriede Nerica says.

Miss Nerica came to this country seven years ago from Russia. Neither she nor any of her family could speak a word of English.

The other day Miss Nerica received her diploma from the University of Chicago and was elected to Phi Beta Kappa—the oldest of all college fraternities, which chooses its members for high scholarship.

That means that in seven years this little foreign girl learned the English language, did the eight years' work at high school and university, and did it better than nine-tenths of her fellow graduates.

And at the same time she earned her own tuition and kept house for her mother and brother.

"Of course, it was hard work," she says. "I had done the grammar school work in Russia, and had studied German and French. When I started to school in Chicago—I was fifteen then—they put me in the third grade. I got dreadfully discouraged. So after a few days I left the day school and started in the night school. There I took only English. I studied it for five months, and then entered the high school.

"Naturally I hadn't gained a thorough knowledge of English in five months, and my high school work seemed slow, because I had to learn so many words as I went along. But I succeeded in graduating at the end of three years, instead of the usual four.

"In college, too, I was so eager to learn that I did much more work than was required, studying eleven months a year and doing the four years' work in three."

Miss Nerica has accepted a position for next year as German instructor in the Dubuque high school. But that, she says, is only temporary. She has specialized in sociology and looks forward to a career of social service.

"I realize," she says, "that, while it is possible for inteligent and ambitious immigrant boys and girls to do as I have done. there are so many grown immigrants who need help and guidance when they reach America! And I want to help them, especially my fellow-countrymen."

What It Is Coming to

(From Judge.)

"What do you think of our bridge club?"

"You have some excellent material in it. How do you manage to secure such good players?"

"We pattern after the baseball players and maintain efficients scouts."

THE LITT·LE MISERY

BY ROBERT W. CHAMBERS

ILLUSTRATED BY DOM LAVIN, THE FAMOUS AMERICAN ARTIST.

(Copyright, 1898, by Robert W. Chambers.)

THERE was a river-driver beyond the Northwest Carry who respected neither moose nor man. Because he was the best river-driver on the West Branch, they let him alone until he struck an Indian with a pick-pole.

The Indian's head was damaged and while he waited for it to heal he selected his revenge. He hunted up the moose-warden and told many lies. Deftly concealed among these lies, however, was a truth that infuriated the warden.

The river-driver, whose name was Skeene, sneered when the moose-warden glided into camp. But when he dug out a head and antlers behind a shanty Skeene picked up his rifle, looked obliquely at the moose-warden, tied his blanket and fry-pan, hoisted his canoe onto his head and walked away to the southward, still sneering.

I don't know what they said about it in Foxcroft, but Hale, who owned the timber and who thought he owned Skeene, hunted him up and sent him to work on the new cut-off, hoping the affair might blow over in time for Skeene to drive logs again. But Skeene turned lazy and lined the dead water with traps and set-lines, and when Hale remonstrated Skeene laughed.

Then Hale threatened him and hinted about moose-wardens and $500 fines, but Skeene thrashed Hale before the whole camp, packed his kit and canoe and paddled serenely away down the West Branch.

That really began the trouble, for Hale never forgave him. When Skeene started to guide for Henderson on the upper Portage, Hale heard of it and ran him out.

Possibly, if they had let him alone, he might have turned out as tame as a moose-bird—he was only twenty-three—but Hale remembered, and the Indian remembered, and one day a man came in to the Carry Camp with a 44 bullet in his wrist and an unserved warrant in his pocket. The man was a moose-warden, and the warrant was for Skeene.

When the news spread that Skeene had shot a warden, the guides from Portage to Lilly-Bay condemned him. Down at Greenville a sheriff and posse boarded the "Katahdin" and spent several weeks cruising about at public expense. Possibly they expected Skeene to come down to the shore and sit on the rocks; perhaps they fancied he might paddle across their bows in his sleep. Naturally he did neither.

Even after that, if they had given him a chance, he might have surrendered and taken his punishment.

A warden saw him building a lean-to on the island that divides the West Branch. The warden waited until dark, crawled in outside the fire and caught Skeene asleep. What Skeene did to the warden when he awoke the official cannot remember distinctly.

Three weeks after that Skeene walked into Kineo store, handling his rifle in a most alarming fashion. He suggested that they place certain provisions and ammunition in his canoe, which lay on the beach below. The three clerks complied. Twenty minutes later Skeene, in his canoe, was seen making for Moose River.

They notified the sheriff again. People fought shy of Moose River and the lake beyond, which is called Red Lake. In vain the guides declared the region safe. Skeene let them alone. The Indian log-driver, however, stayed away after Skeene had shot a hole in his canoe.

Skeene went to Canada for a year, worked at anything that came along, and sent money to Kineo store to pay for his pork and powder. That, of course, won him the guides again. So when home-sickness drove him back to Red Lake he expected to be let alone.

Hale, sluicing at the Northwest Carry, heard he had returned and started for Red Lake with the log-driving half-breed and six men. Two days later they returned; Hale had a bullet in leg above the knee and the half-breed carried a similar gift in his forearm.

This incident bothered the sheriff cruelly. He went to Foxcroft, where they said unpleasant things to him; he went back to the Landing and they made fun of him.

The sheriff summoned his posse, boarded the steamer Red-Deer and left Greenville, bound for Moose River. Half a dozen canoes were abroad. The posse carried Winchesters, although no game was in season.

Off the Grey Gull, an island, the little steamboat stopped, the canoes were dropped, the moose embalked.

At the mouth of the Moose river two more canoes were waiting; Hale sat in one, paddle glistening in the pale spring sunshine; in the other sat the Indian log-driver, nursing the hammer of a rifle.

It was paddling for a mile to the first wing-dam, and there the sheriff who led, flung his stern-paddle into the bottom of the canoe, flourished the setting-pole and stood up. At the same moment a jet of flame leaped from the edge of the wing-dam and a bullet passed through the sheriff's hat.

The amazed official fell overboard, sank, rose, grasped the edge of the canoe and swamped it, turning the bow-paddler into the river. The swift current landed them on a shoal and they crawled up on a rock.

Nobody fired at the wing-dam except Hale. He banged away as fast as he could pump the breach-lever, and Billy Sebato, the Indian, took to the bushes and lay patiently waiting for a mark, purring with eagerness.

"Jim Skeene, you darned thief!" shouted Hale, "come out from them stones!"

"I ain't no more thief than you be, Josh Hale!" bawled Skeene. "I paid for them rations and ca'tridges and you know d—n well I did!"

The Indian, Sebato, fired twice.

"If that nigger Sebato don't quit shootin' I'll let loose on all o' ye!" called Skeene, shaking his rifle above the wing-dam edge. "Git back to your dreen, Josh Hale, I tell you."

Hale started to push his canoe among the rocks where he could hold it and fire under cover. Skeene slid suddenly to the corner of the wing-dam and fired three shots through the canoe, cutting a swale lengthwise at the water's edge. It settled in two feet of water.

"Now'll you let me be?" called Skeene. "I hain't done nothin' to you. If that there moose-warden wants me let him come and get me. I tell ye I'll shoot to kill at the next man that fires!"

"You dasn't," shouted the sheriff from behind his rock; "you ain't half a man, Jim Skeene!"

"I be," said Skeene calmly, "but I don't want no fuss. You keep off'n this river, and you keep off'n this here wing-dam. And you stop sneakin' along the woods there, Billy Sebato! Git back there! Git back, or I'll shoot to kill. Tell that nigger Indian to git back! Tell him quick! I see him—I—"

Sebato's rifle cracked, and the shot was repeated by Hale, wading out on the shoal. Then a forked flame flashed from the wing-dam, there came a crash and crackle of dry twigs, and the Indian pitched heavily over the bank into the swirling river.

Skeene's pale face appeared above the dam, but nobody shot at him.

"You drove me to it," said Skeene. He spoke huskily.

"Come down off'n that wing-dam," commanded Hale.

"Not for you, Josh Hale," replied Skeene, "nor not for any man o' ye! An' I won't be took, neither. I'm goin' away to live quiet if they let me."

He crouched and watched them as they pushed their canoes out into the main channel. The sheriff and Hale advanced to the pool where Sebato lay. A slender fillet of blood hung in the water, floating like a red string.

* * *

They gave Skeene little peace for two months. Week after week a string of canoes passed the swift water under the first and second wing-dams, disembarking a file of riflemen. Week after week the distant flash of a paddle startled the deer at sunrise among the lily-pads.

Once they saw Skeene for a moment standing in the stern of his canoe. The canoe lay at the mouth of the Little Misery, that dead stretch of water and dead-fall, winding through the bog to the southward. They gave chase, trailing Skeene's canoe by the wake bubbles until they ran plump into quick water.

But the Little Misery is a strange stream draining a strange land, and there, in that maze of cuts and channels, of "logans" and quick water, of swamp, shoal, sedge and spectral ranks of dead trees, towering above swale and deadwood, they stood no chance.

And so they hunted Skeene at twilight, at dusk of morning, at high noon from the Northeast Carry to the Northwest Carry, from the West Branch to Seboomook, from Portage to Lily Bay, and through a hundred miles of lake and stream, up and down, up and down. In August they gave up the chase.

That evening Skeene stood on a wind-fall in the depths of the Little Misery and watched three canoes file out of the discharge and glide into Moose River. The next morning he started a lean-to on the ridge back of the Little Misery, and the sharp crack and the thwack of his axe rang out over Red Lake.

At noon the echoes of axe-strokes died away and the hut was thatched with balsam. By three o'clock a spike buck, a yearling, lay across a log on the ridge, and at four o'clock Skeene had satisfied his hunger.

In the days that followed, Skeene learned to talk to himself. When he did this he forgot that he had killed Sebato; after a while he forgot it altogether.

When the August afternoons were ablaze with brazen sunlight and the lake glistened like a sheet of steel, Skeene sprawled on a log in the shade and watched the great blue herons. The great belted kingfishers knew him, the sheldrake, stringing along the creek at evening, turned their bright eyes to his.

The swift water of the Little Misery gave him a trout to every setline. On the Little Misery deer swarm at evening, and he had meat for the price of a cartridge.

The white nights of August brought that vague unrest that all forest creatures feel. As the moon wanted, the forest world stirred; its attitude was expectant; it waited.

An impatience, almost a sadness fell upon Skeene. And with sadness came fear. He covered his lean-to and built a smoke-hole through which blue haze rose in the calm morning air. But the steam-hole of a beaver's house might be more easily located than the chimney of Skeene's hut.

When Septemer came a hush fell over the forest. Silent and more silent the woods grew as the new moon rose in the evening sky. At its first quarter the silence deepened, at its half the stillness was intense. Then one black night the Full Moon of September flashed in the sky, and a gigantic black shadow waded out into the lake and a roar shook the hills.

The first bull-moose had bellowed, and the rutting season had begun.

Instantly the forest, the lake, the shore, the stream were alive; the meat-birds cried from every cedar; the deer barked from the sedge; a lynx howled and miauled in the second growth.

* * *

Now there is a season for all things. "Each after its kind," says the quaint Book.

At dawn the sky crimsoned the shore the red beam of the Carry lamp signalled him and his blood flamed the answer in his face.

And, as he strode up to the house, he saw a woman on the shore looking out into the night across the spectral lake. It was Lois, servant at South Carry. He had danced with her two years ago at Foxcroft Landing, he had sent her six otto pelts a month before he shot Sebato.

She was the girl he had come for.

Is it possible she expected him? The restlessness of Septemer had drawn her to the lake and something had led him to her.

And so, together, they glided away on a trail of silver water to the strange country, drained by strange streams, stirred by strange winds.

Skeene sewed porcupine quills in a semi-circle over the instep of his moccasins, laced a string of scarlet trout-flies across his slouch hat, and listened to the bull-moose bellowing.

They awoke and kissed each other.

* * *

When the public-spirited citizens of Foxcroft offered $500 reward for the capture of Skeene, Placide L'Hommedieu scratched his greasy chin, licked his lips, and went out to buy cartridges. The found L'Hommedieu a week later peacefully floating down Moose River in his canoe, with a bullet in his brain.

When the September moon waxed full Skeene's heart grew full, and the blood in his neck and cheeks ebbed and surged like moon-tides. So, on the second night, he took his rifle and dragged the canoe to the beach. But his heart failed him and he went back to his camp and rolled and grunted through a sleepless night.

On the third evening he started on foot, but he hesitated when the lamp in the Carry House broke out, a red beam in the night. He stood, wretched, wistful, undecided, fingering his rifle butt, and his heart beat to suffocation. Then, worn out with the fever in his veins, he slept openly where he lay.

On the fourth night of the full moon he went swiftly across the ridge, unarmed, and the miles of woodland and shore sped away like mist, so eagerly he ran. Far on the Little Misery. They slept. At sunrise a moose roared a salute to the coming day.

When Skeene paddled away with Lois, there was trouble in Foxcroft. Hale left sluice, drain and chain and wired the sheriff at the Landing to meet him at Moosehead Inn. The mayor went also, and next morning the reward was doubled for "James Skeene, murderer, dead or alive."

Hale had never forgiven the blow at the cut-off, but Hale had other reasons. They concerned Lois, servant at South Carry, for when she left with Jim Skeene she took Hale's betrothal ring with her.

After Skeene had set Placide L'Hommedieu afloat, with mud on his face and a bullet in his skull, Lois, waiting for him when he poled into the Little Misery, looked at his knife, then at his rifle and finally into his somber eyes.

"I heard—only one shot. Was it a deer?"

He nodded, muttering that he had missed; but that night she caressed him, taking his curly head into her arms, and wept over him till daybreak crimsoned the world.

After that they were almost gay. He notched logs and built a hut and rammed moss into the cracks. Lois brought clay from the sweet water, and cut balsam until her little hands were stained to the palm. Twice he passed the three carrys to the C. P. R. and hung to a freight as far as Sainte Croix. He bought salt and pork and flour and cartridges with the proceeds of Hale's ring.

They knew that happiness that is bred in haunting fear, that fierce, that intense love whose roots are imbedded in terror.

Snow came and Skeene lugged more deer hides into his hut.

The lake froze and Skeene dragged his canoe into the hut and daubed it with white-lead, while Lois crept close to his side and strung snowshoes. At times she sang. He listened, lying beside the canoe.

Snow fell on the frozen lake; the Little Misery was mantled, the carrys choked. The deer yarded on the ridge, the moose on the slope above; the black bear buried his feeble nose in his stomach and dreamed.

As for Lois, she learned that men are brutes, and that Skeene was all the world to her. She learned that he went hungry that she might eat, that he shivered while she slept under skin and blanket.

Sometimes they played together, Skeene and his slender girl, like young foxes in the snow. She would often hide, too, in the hollow of a great swamp-oak, and when he came home she would call: "Jim! Jim! find me!"

And so it came about that Skeene, laughing up at Lois in the hollow swamp-oak, glanced over his shoulder and saw six black dots clustered upon the frozen lake to southward. He said nothing, but looked into the north. There were more dots there, more also on the ice in the west. For a moment he thought the east was still open; after a while he heard the scrape of a snow-shoe very near. Lois also heard and her face was like death as she reached down and took the rifle from Skeene's hand.

When he had climbed up into the hollow tree beside her and looked out from the hole above the great branch, he saw Hale peering at him from a dead-fall.

"Come down," said Hale.

Skeene clapped his rifle to his cheek and fired.

"Come down," repeated Hale from behind his dead-fall. Lois, trembling at Skeene's feet, shrank at the somber voice from the woods. Skeene bent and kissed her and caressed her, muttering things she could not understand, but she caught his hand in hers and tore off the fur mitten and pressed it to her hot lips, moaning and sobbing.

"Come down for the last time, Jim Skeene," said Hale, slowly. Suddenly a rifle shot rang through the frozen forest. The hand that Lois held tightened against her lips, quivered, relaxed. Something outside fell clinking and clattering to the ground at the foot of the tree. It was Skeene's rifle; and Skeene sank forward, hanging half out of the hole in the tree, head downward, like a dead squirrel.

And beside him the other wild thing sobbed and whimpered and moaned among the branches while below the swift axes bit into the tree from which the dead game hung, head downward.

The tree swayed and cracked and fell crashing into the snow.

"Where's the woman?" shouted Hale from the hut;—"D—n her!"

But when at last he found her he changed his mind and let her stay with Skeene there in the snow.

"WHAT IS WRONG WITH THE CHURCH"?

By Bishop Warren A. Candler

REV. DR. DAVID JAMES RUSSELL is pastor of the Marble Collegiate Reformed Church in New York City. He is a vigorous Western product, and a man who commands and deserves the large hearing which he gets. Recently he chose to discuss the question which stands at the head of this article, being moved to the discussion by lugubrious accounts current of the failure of certain churches to secure any growth proportionate with the efforts and expenditures put forth by them.

The New York Times reported in part what he said, and it makes very wholesome reading. As given by the Times it is as follows:

"There is something wrong with the Church, for it is a mathematical fact that many Churches have reported a falling off in attendance, and the acquisition of new members by confession is not increasing as it should.

"Theer is something wrong with the Church, but there is nothing wrong with Christ. There is nothing wrong with the gospel, for it is the same gospel as of old ,and there is nothing wrong with the Church per se, as it is now as Christ founded it. Where, then, is the trouble? Is it in the ministry?

"Suppose the students at the Government Army and Navy College should be taught that the vital principles of constitutional government and of patriotism are out of date. Would there not be a falling off in attendance at these institutions? Would there be any great rush to volunteer when volunteers are needed?"

Dr. Burrell compared the present condition of the Church with a ship, the captain of which, instead of steering a direct course to port, called the crew down below to discuss the science of navigation, and to study the genealogy of the captain. "Would such a ship ever get anywhere?" he asked.

"Some Churches," he said, "give too much time to studying ecclesiastical genealogy and ritual, and others go off in Socialism. What, therefore, is to be done? Get back to the Way! O, if that voice could be heard by all God's people, 'This is the way'! The lost note in many of the Churches today is evangelism—the going out into the by-ways and hedges to save men's souls. If that is not true the Lord made a great mistake when he said: 'I am the way.'"

There is sound sense in these utterances. If there is anything wrong with any church, it is more than probable that the pastor has something to do with the matter, and it is certain that we have had in some pulpits a type of preachments which could not fail to lower the spiritual vitality of those who heard them.

Of what earthly use to a human soul can the ministry of an "apostle of interrogation" be? He doubts all the creeds and questions the beliefs of the whole body of the faithful of all ages; but he is not able to say what he himself believes. His is a mainstay of negation. The Hebrew Psalimst said "I believed, therefore I speak." How can he help anybody? Men are not saved by denials and doubts, but by positive beliefs and affirmative faith.

There are many evidences that the most thoughtful laymen in all the churches have grown tired of this sort of thing. The reaction has not come too soon. Individuals, families, churches, and in some instances whole communities, have been damaged irreparably by such stuff as the purveyors of doubt in the pulpit have put forth. Who does not know of individuals who were happy, consecrated, and useful members of the church until they sat under the ministry of certain men who preached more novelties than gospel? To make sermons which blight souls is a horrible profanation of the pulpit and a dreadful desecration of the Sabbath, which can not be condemned too strongly. If a parish ask bread, will the pastor give his people a stone? Alas! some have! And some for a nutritious egg of truth have given a serpent of doubt.

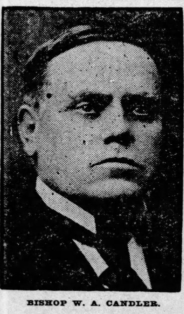
Churches can not prosper under such pastoral leadership. If every thing which has been believed by the saints of all ages is to be denied, what is the use of attending church at all? So men correctly argue, and they act accordingly.

Again, the apostles of sensationalism have done the churches as much harm as the "apostles of interrogation." In truth, the typical sensationalist is a doubter himself, or he would not be a sensationalist. The reason which moves him to adopt sensationalism as his method for getting a hearing is because he has lost faith in the gospel as the "power of God unto salvation." Doubting the gospel, he can not preach it with the ring of sincerity in his tone, and so he proceeds to discuss themes in the treatment of which his insincerity will not be betrayed by his speech. He can talk warmly about current topics, although he has no fervency in proclaiming the truth as it is in Jesus. Wherefore he falls to talking about political issues, social customs, popular books, court proceedings, crimes, and casualties, or whatsoever else may be attracting public attention for the moment. He is really running a sort of pulpit show, using current events as moving pictures to draw a crowd. And he gets his crowds and his gate receipts; but he never builds up a church or promotes piety in the community.

The greatest of minds have tried these methods and failed by them to accomplish any permanent spiritual good; and weak men can not hope to have better success when they pursue the same course of folly. Mr. Beecher tried it for years; but his ministry was barren of religious results after he forsook the spiritual ministry of his earlier days and went off after sensationalism of every sort. Philips Brooks took the opposite course, and there lingers in Boston to this day, when years have passed since his death, the most hallowed and enduring results of his holy ministrations. One looks in vain through his published sermons for any discussion of current theories in science, popular fiction, or the police force of Boston; but one never fails to find in his discourses the spiritual food upon which souls live, if they live at all. Distance will make Brooks look larger, but Beecher will fade away into a dim reminiscence, although in point of mental volume Beecher was perhaps the stronger man.

It may be that we ought to pity more than we blame the weak men who fall into the ways of sensationalism. Most of them fall into such methods for sheer want of resources. They string out this shoddy stuff in the pulpit like a country merchant at a cross-roads store displays a great exhibit of cheap tin-ware in order to fill shelves which otherwise would be empty.

There is no reason to employ sensationalism in order to get a hearing, if a man is able to discuss any great religious theme strongly and sincerely. The great questions of religion and morals have a deathless interest for mankind. Said the late Professor James of Harvard University, "Let a controversy begin in a smoking room anywhere about free will, or God's omniscience, or good and evil, and see how every one in the place pricks up his ears." This truth which the famous psychologist stated so clearly, but which he did not always remember in his public utterances, should dissuade all public teachers of every sort, and especially preachers, from indulging the itch for novelty and sensationalism. It is really discreditable to a man to use such meretricious methods; for thereby he betrays the poverty of his intellectual and moral resources.



BISHOP W. A. CANDLER.

In our country there are many thousands of godly men in the pulpit who have not run in these evil ways; and wherever one of them is found nobody is asking, "What is the matter with his church?" Hungry souls fly to his ministry for spiritual food. Godliness prevails in his congregation as sanctity shines in his life and breathes in his utterances.

Truly, as Dr. Burrell says, there is nothing wrong with Christ and nothing wrong with Christ's church. The truth once for all delivered to the saints is as potent as ever for the accomplishment of spiritual ends, and men were never more hungry for it. The people have grown tired of these other things in the pulpit. Yellow journalism and yellow pulpitism have both seen their greatest popularity. They must pass away. They may linger a little longer among certain debauched classes, but the gerat body of serious people are heatily sick of them. Decency dooms them. The votaries of vaudeville performances in the pulpit can not be depended upon to make an enduring church. When they try it they succeed in producing nothing better than an abomination of desolation standing where it ought not,—a theater comique in a place supposed to be set apart for the worship of Almighty God. It is time for Christly men to rise up and scourge these evils and drive them out of the temples which were designed to be houses of prayer and not places of cheap entertainment.

The lost note of a true Scriptural evangelism must sound through our land; we have had enough of the lucrative and hippodrome type of evangelism. Clerical mountebanks can bring us no good; we need the ministry of prophets of God calling lost souls back to Christ.

WASHINGTON MAY OWN ITS TROLLEY LINES

BY GILSON GARDNER.

WASHINGTON. — The national capital has received its first push in the direction of municipally-owned street railways. Representative Robert Crosser, of Ohio, has just introduced into the house of representatives a bill which would place the traction companies of Washington under public ownership.

"I am convinced that municipal ownership of the lines in Washington is now both desirable and practicable," said Crosser. "You see, we have no constitutional obstacles to surmount here. Congress, under the constitution, has exclusive jurisdiction over the federal District of Columbia and there can be no possible question of its right to institute government-owned and operated street railways.

"In addition to this, and most important of all, it seems to me, is the fact that Washington, being the capital city, would afford the best field for a demonstration of municipal ownership of street railways and furnish to the country at large the strongest possible illustration of the principle.

"There would be no franchise value to consider here, since congress has always reserved the right to amend or repeal any act granting the privilege of operating street railways in the District of Columbia. All that need be considered is the question as to what is the present value of the two street car systems, their rights in the streets having no value whatever."

If the bill proposed by Crosser should pass (and it will have strong support in both houses of congress) the city of Washington would be the second city in the United States to adopt the principle of municipal ownership of street railways. The city of San Francisco recently completed the first city-owned system in the United States, known as the Gary street line, and in the short period of its existence it has proved a great success. While the principle is comparatively new in the United States, many European cities have long ago adopted it.

"There are today," continued Crosser, "in the United Kingdom only three important cities that do not own and operate their street railways. In Glasgow 30 per cent of the passengers are carried for a one-cent fare, and in London 36 per cent. The average fare of a passenger in Glasgow is 1.89 cents, in Manchester 2.44 cents and in Liverpool 2.45 cents. In Sheffield there are no fares over two cents."

The city of Washington has long suffered under that worst of street railway systems, a two-company system. Although their lines intersect in every direction, the companies have persistently refused to arrange for interchange of transfers. In consequence it is frequently necessary to pay two fares to reach a point in the city.

Recently congress created a new utilities commission composed of the commissioners of the District of Columbia, and placed the street railways under this commission. The new commission has not had opportunity to do much as yet.

The new commissioners of the district, Messrs. Siddons and Newman, are understood to favor municipalization. There is strong support for the proposition on the house and senate district committees.

Wanted in America

(Special Cable to The Journal.)

LONDON.—Albert Victor Webb, business manager of no fixed address, was remanded at Bow street on an extradition warrant charging him with embezzling money belonging to the American Auto Supply company, by whom he had been employed as manager of their Chicago office.

Detective Sergeant Hambrook, of Scotland yard, who arested the prisoner in South Lambeth the same morning, said that when the warrant was read to him he asked: "How much do they say I embezzled?"

Witness told him that he did not know exactly, but the total amount was several thousand dollars. The prisoner then said: "I have an answer to it when I get back to the States." He had ten pawn tickets but no money upon him.

FORSAKEN IS THE TURKEY TROT

Illustrations of the one-step by dancers who appeared here recently at the Forsyth. Their dancing is the least bit theatrical; so are their costumes.

TURKEY-TROTTING is spoken of frequently and danced rarely. It is obsolescent, as well as abused.

At East Lake, at the Capitol City club, and at the Piedmont Driving club, new dances have supplanted the waltzes and two-steps of long ago.

But it is not the turkey-trotting that is danced at these clubs; it is the one-step, which is akin to the turkey-trot in one way and far different from it in every other.

Turkey-trotting was a shuffle in which the shoulders were swayed from side to side, and the whole movement was given an awkward and unseemly air.

But in the one-step, the shoulders are held straight, and the dance consists merely in "one steps" taken forward or backward or in turning.

It is true enough that the turkey-trot also was a simple "one-step," and that partly because of this simplicity, it became popular. But the movement of the shoulders made it far different from the mere "one-step," now danced at all the clubs.

TROTTING IS FORSAKEN.

Turkey-trotting has been forsaken as utterly as those quaint dances of long ago, known as two-steps and walzes.

Possibly, the one-step soon will become as neglected; or the tendency now is toward Spanish figures, which raise the "one-step" to the importance of the tango, and is making the tango itself more and more elaborate and graceful.

Here and elsewhere, dancers are beginning to learn the beautiful Spanish figures, and to make their dancing a nearer approach to art. The critic who looks upon the new dances as crude and unseemly is not familiar with the figures of the dance or the tendency of the dance.

The turqey-trot was objectionable enough for its mere awkwardness; and the "one-step," as it is commonly danced, shows but few graceful figures. Yet, this dance permits of more than 100 variations, all of which either have grace or a healthy vigor.

In assuming the position for the "one-step," the dancers should hold their left arms straight out and should stand three inches apart. All steps should be taken on the balls of the feet.

As for the steps themselves, they consist merely in "one steps" taken forward and backward, and in turning. The shoulders are held high and still, the steps are smooth and gliding, the knees are somewhat beat and relaxed. The man, as in other dances, begins upon his left foot; the lady upon her right foot. Usually they take four steps forward or backward, and then turn. Upon the turns, they usually "dip"—that is, the man bends backward upon his right foot, and the lady forward upon her right foot.

INDIVIDUAL FIGURES.

But the one-step and the tango are dances in which everyone may choose his own figures (and he usually does) and dance them in his individual way.

In waltzing and two-stepping there were precise rules to follow; but the most interesting part of the new dances, is the originality of which they permit.

ANOTHER FIGURE.

Still another figure, much seen, is when both dancers take four steps forward, each facing the same way, "dip" and turn; then take four steps in the opposite direction, "dip" once more; and continue the simple "one-step."

The Castle walk is a simple figure, introduced by Vernon Castle, the great dancer, and easy for no one but himself. It is done entirely with the ankles, and has the appearance of two dancers walking to the time of music. But it is none so simple as it looks.

The man turns his toes outward, then brings them in, and walks all the while upon the balls of his feet. He goes forward, for the most part, and the lady backward. After they have gone forward for eight steps, the lady usually skips for eight steps, then the walk is resumed.

But, like all other figures of the new dances, it is done differently by each dancer. Really detailed directions for any of the new figures are unnecessary, for the new dances are, above all, danced with individuality.

The popularity of these dances is undoubted. At the Atlanta Athletic Club's country club at East Lake, dances are given upon Wednesday and Saturday nights and the club life has come to center in these two evenings. At the Piedmont Driving club and at the Capitol City club, the new dances have met with equal popularity.

It is believed that dancing is to increase rather than wane in interest. This belief is based upon the tendency of the new dances to gain new figures and to become more and more an expression of music.

One authority puts it that they are to become more fanciful and fantastic. But the new figures which are being added are not so much fantastic as sensibly graceful and varied.

In alternation with the one-step is the "hesitation waltz." This, however, is not a variation of the "one-step." Upon the other hand it consists in three distinct steps, and many pretty figures The man glides forward upon the left foot, as the first step, advances the right foot as the second step, and points the toe of that foot as the third step. Or, if this dance seems too much of a feat,, one can simply keep time to the slow waltz music, his feet flat upon the floor, his figures consisting merely in occasional turns.

As one authority says, the waltzes—that is, the new waltzes—together with their variations, are becoming almost as popular as the tango and the one-step. The mazurka and other forgotten dances are coming back into attention. The one which promises to be most popular, and possibly to displace the tango, is an importation from South America, spelled both "maxixe" and "machiche."

The tango came from Argentina by way of Paris; and this new dance is from Brazil.

Throughout the summer it was popular at all resorts, even at Newport. But the dances to which all now take most kindly are what might be termed "walking steps." The tendency without doubt is toward the more elaborate, graceful figures. But not a great many of these figures are yet to be seen here.

Uriel Davis, who is quoted upon the subject as dancing almost as much as Vernon Castleton himself, says that 90 per cent of the dancers in this country are not yet acquainted with the new figures of the new dances, but that within the next two seasons these steps will have become familiar.

This will not come about through the efforts of dancing teachers, but through the desire on the part of the dancers for figures which are more graceful and more expressive of the spirit of music.

One recent dance is known as the "valse roseda." Another which will make its appearance this winter is the "tiger." It is entirely different from any dance now in vogue, and is intended to produce as great a variety of gliding and walking steps as the music will permit.

As for the turkey-trot, it is as forgotten as periwigs and hooped skirts.

TALK OF WAR WITH JAPAN IS ALL MOONSHINE

THE attempt to raise a further problem by talk of war with America, says Count Okuma, former prime minister of Japan, in the New York Sun, is all moonshine, a mere supposition based on the vagaries of suspicious imaginations, and the Philippine question which some endeavor to create is too absurd for serious consideration. Consequently the only important difficulty now coming above the diplomatic horizon is the integrity of China, a subject that demands the best and most constant attention of Japan.

The Corean problem, which hung fire so long, menacing the peace of the Far East, at last solved itself in annexation. The Manchurian difficulty, which has so long been the main point of dispute between Japan and Russia, has so far adjusted itself in the principle of equal interests and opportunities.

Consequently, with regard to the nature of her responsibilities in the sphere of diplomacy Japan has been one of the most favorably situated of nations, and yet it is this department of national affairs that attracts the most stringent criticism from the press and public.

Our diplomatic officials are charged with supineness and impotency in dealing with other Powers, and the department is alleged to be conducted without due supervision and to be destitute of enlightened policy.

Certainly it does not appear to be the policy of Japanese diplomacy to voice the views of the people and their representatives in the Imperial Diet. Our foreign office has as a rule either overlooked or disregarded public opinion. In most countries the co-operation of public opinion and diplomatic policy is thought to be most conducive to the best interests of the State, but in Japan diplomats are a class apart.

The question of China's integrity is not new by any means. The Powers have been facing it ever since the Manchu dynasty began to decline; for they naturally expected disintegration and probably a share of the spoils.

Back in the days when China first began to attract attention as a sphere for trouble and exploitation Japan was not in a position to take a leading part in Western councils regarding the decaying empire; she was too busy getting her house in order at home to devote any time to outside matters. Not until after the Sino-Japanese conflict did the Japanese foreign office seriously face the Chinese question and begin to study intelligently the attitude of the powers.

Up to this time Japan was a mere observer; thereafter she became an active participant in all questions affecting the future of China and the Far East. Nay, after her defeat of China, Japan came to be regarded by the West as the center of Occidental diplomatic consideration and the subject of a new problem to be reckoned with in the future of China.

Japan's victory over Russia concentrated Western diplomatic thought upon Tokio with still greater intensity, for Japan's position in regard to China was now firmly established; she took the lead, and no question could be settled without reference to Japan.

Because of the new role played by Japan the Powers were unable to have a free hand with China, for they realized that now nothing affecting China could be practically carried out except in co-operation with Japan.

This advantage which Japanese diplomacy possessed over all others in regard to China is not due to any overweening attitude or arrogant assumption on her part, but simply to the impression made upon the west, by Japan's prowess in war and by her naturally convenient geographical position as well as her kinship with China in blood and writing.

Japan, moreover, has a strong navy and a fine army with which few would care to take issue. Above all the position of Japan has been strengthened by the benefits of the Anglo-Japanese alliance, but for which her position in China affairs would not be what it is today.

Great Britain is the greatest sea power on the earth, and the army of Japan is admitted to be invulnerable. This combination of the greatest naval power with a great military power like Japan forms an alliance best fitted to deal with a baffling problem like the integrity of China. So long as the Anglo-Japanese alliance lasts no power, however great, dare put a finger on the ancient land of China.

IN the upper left hand corner of this page are three of the Sacred Harp singers who met in Atlanta recently for a session ofsong. They deplore all music that is ragtime, and urge the singing of the old songs, songs that have tender associations and bring to mind the sweetest things of life.

Beneath them, is Mr. Fred E. Farnsworth, general manager for the American Bankers' association. Upon a recent visit here as guest of Atlanta bankers he gave it as his belief that prosperity lies ahead. "While I have not been through the south," said Mr. Farnsworth, "I had opportunity to talk to leading southern bankers, and I have heard from them the most reassuring reports. There is a feeling among them of conservatism, but each one looks for an improvement in business. There are no signs of hard times, and there need be no fear of bad conditions in any part of the United States. Improvement is sure to come and is coming. I myself look for a prosperous year."

IN the upper right hand corner are students of one of Atlanta's excellent schools for girls. They are deploring the fact that another scholastic year has been begun. You can see how downcast they are.

Another scholastic activity is shown in the group picture of young men engaged in one of the most popular studies of the college curriculum. These are members of the Tech squad, which gives such fine promise this year. No scholar ever followed his studies with half the zeal that they play this game of football—and how could it be otherwise? What students' task ever held such zest, such contest of muscle, of brain, and of courage, as football? What daily studies ever called for such perseverance, such determination to bear hard knocks and smile under them, as the daily football scrimmages? Truly, the study of football is no unworthy study.

Solicitor Hugh Dorsey is shown as he confines himsel. to the occupation of an epicure. He is eating Georgia barbecue, and he is one of the opinion that neither learned books nor dash out-of-door games are a greater pleasure.

ALICE DAVIS, Missionary, Whom the Police Accuse of Her Husband's Murder

BY W. H. ALBURN.
(Staff Special.)

CHICAGO,—Alice Davis Sing, white wife of murdered Charley Sing, entered a stockyards morgue in the custody of detectives.

It was the crucial moment in the most remarkable Chinese murder case since the killing of Elsie Sigel with which it is strangely connected.

Mrs. Sing started as she saw the body of her slain husband lying before her, with a picture of the Annunciation at his head and a Bible at his feet. Then she sank to her knees, and kissed the cold lips.

Christian training and civilization fell away, and she turned all oriental.

"Charlie," she whispered, slipping into pidgin English, "you no dead, Charlie—tell me you no dead!"

Then the "third degree" began. The place of mourning changed to a twentieth century inquisition. The detectives raised her and pointed accusing fingers.

"You killed him, didn't you?"

"You saw him killed?"

"You know who did it!"

"You were there' weren't you?"

She listened in apathy. At last she moaned:

"Oh, go way. I not know anything· I not know he dead. Please go away from me!"

For nine hours the pitiless probing of her soul went on, but her acquired oriental calm stood the ordeal. Then they led her to jail and charged her with the murder of her husband.

It was a strange ending for pretty Alice Davis who started as a Christian missionary among the Chinese of Kansas City.

When the Elsie Sigel murder case was engrossing national attention and the dragnet was out for Leon Ling, her slayer, Alice volunteered to search the Kansas City Chinatown as a detective. She penetrated the secret places of that Chinatown—and never returned.

After a while she appeared in Chicago as the wife of Charlie Sing, a prosperous restaurateur, and lived with him in a quaint oriental cottage on Archer avenue.

A few nights ago Josie Modelski, maid at the Sing home, was awakened by a faint tapping on her door and a feeble voice calling "Josie! Josie!"

She opened, and there stood Mrs. Sing, in night attire. The woman looked wild, then fell to the floor.

In the darkened hallway the maid saw signs of violence. In the parlor she stumbled over Sing, dying, his throat slit with a dagger.

Police, drawn by her shrieks, ran up and found the body in the doorway. It had been moved after she left the room.

They searched, and found only the unconscious Mrs. Sing—and bloodstained footprints and finger marks all over the house, revealing a terrific struggle. Some of the footprints, they say, showed a man's shoe, the others bore traces of bare feet.

Now the police are scouring the country for "George Der Norn," a Chinese whose real name is Der Yuen. He is said to have been friendly with Mrs. Sing and there are rumors that Sing was jealous.

In Norn's quarters was found a "black book" that still further complicates the case. It bears the weird zebu calf symbol of the Hip Sing Tong, and appears to be a directory of crime, covering a dozen cities.

Owing the this "black book" and other features of the case, A. Camminetti, federal commissioner of immigration, has ordered an investigation of national scope to drag forth the secrets of Chinese "underground railways," white slave traffic and opium smuggling.

Prince Arthur's Next Title

LONDON.—Prince Arthur, of Connaught, will not have a long stay in York after his marriage. The Scots Greys are to return to Edinburgh in the spring, where the new cavalry barracks there will be completed. This will be a great disappointment to York, whose inhabitants would greatly like the prince to stay longer in their neighborhood. The house which has been taken for the prince and the duchess of Fife is only held for six months.

There is some speculation as to what title or further dignity will be conferred on Prince Arthur on his marriage, and the suggestion is that he will be made a peer. He is a Knight of the Garter, and so can receive no higher honor that way.

There is, however, no reason why he should receive a further dignity. In due time he will become the duke of Connaught, and I think he will desire no better title. He might, however, have a seat in the house of lords, where he could join his father on the cross benches.

Fatal Recklessness

PARIS.—A cafe in an industrial quarter in Paris was completely shattered by an explosion of gas, two people being killed outright and about twenty injured. At the time of the explosion the cafe was well filled with customers. A strong smell of gas was noticed and a waiter was reckless enough to take a lighted candle with him to find the escape.
